HUGHES SAID TO BE ABOUT READY TO QUIT THE CABINET

Information That Secretary of State Is on Verge of Resigning Comes From Dependable Administration Source and Dovetails With Recent Events.

REPORTED DISGUSTED BY DENUNCIATIONS

Criticism by Republicans Particularly Galling—Idea in G. O. P. Circles He Can Be Made Scapegoat for Administration.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
No. 20 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Until this afternoon the occasional rumors that Charles Evans Hughes would quit his post as Secretary of State had not been taken too seriously. But today an informed and dependable administration source permitted the information to leak out that Secretary Hughes now has reached the verge of a decision to hand his portfolio back to President Harding and return to the practice of law.

Because of the reliability of the source of this news, it was widely credited here, for it dovetailed perfectly with recent events and the recurrent bits of irritability which Hughes has displayed within his domain over the rising tide of denunciation directed at him from the country, and especially from Republicans.

Moreover, it followed close on the heels of the Republican insurgency of yesterday in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, when Johnson, Borah, Brandegee, Moses and McCormick, all Republicans, united in starting a showdown on the administration's foreign policy. The causes of Republican dissatisfaction are manifold. They embrace resentment over the mysteriousness of the Hughes methods, the secretiveness, the alleged meddling in foreign affairs under the guise of "observing," the well-known differences of opinion between the President and the Secretary of State, complicated by Secretary of Commerce Hoover, who usually seems to be pulling in a third direction.

Actually, the Republicans in Congress are wholly perplexed over what the administration is trying to do in foreign relations.

Antipathy to Aloofness.

Hughes has declined quite bluntly to take the rank and file of the party into his confidence. But, deeper than this complaint, is a widespread antipathy to the Hughes manner, methods, affiliations, allofness, and what, when he was running for President, was called coldness, even by chilly Boston.

The Post-Dispatch was told on good authority that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, or its insurgents, seeks primarily to force Hughes out of office if he does not save them the trouble by quitting; that the threats of probing into the country's foreign policy are animated more by a desire to be rid of Hughes on the best available grounds than by a curiosity as to what the administration has been up to.

As to the source of the administration "leak" today, it came from a man who sits in at the most private of party councils and who is not noted either for tact or repression. He is a man who has startled, if not shocked, the diplomatic proprieties more than once. But his word is good. Hence the "leak" was accepted here as gospel from the inner shrine.

According to the information thus divulged, Hughes has been frequently in consultation with this official of late. Hughes has said plainly, emphatically and resentfully that he is disgusted and heartily sick of the whole business of being Secretary of State, that the criticism of the Democrats would be one thing that could be laid to poltics, but the criticism of the Republicans was another and an intolerable thing; that he had had more than enough of it and that he purposed [illegible] the ship of state and turning it back to Mr. Harding with the request to find another helmsman.

There were sundry specifications in the narrative, as to the unending procession of troubles and tribula-

Thousands Crowd Church for Wallace Reid Funeral

Line of Persons Passes All Day Before Casket of Film Star Who Died After Fight Against Drug Habit

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20.—A throng numbering thousands late today filled the First Congregational Church here and the street in front of the edifice while funeral services were being held for Wallace Reid, screen star who died here Thursday as a result of illness brought on, according to relatives, by his struggle to quit the use of narcotics.

All day a line of men, women and children, drawn from the ranks of film workers and admirers of the dead actor, passed quietly before the bier where Reid's body lay, attired in one of his favorite tweed sport suits.

At 3 o'clock, a half hour before the services were to begin, the auditorium of the church was cleared at the request of Mrs. Reid, who said she wished to be alone with her husband's body. Meanwhile the line of persons waiting to pass by the casket had grown until it encircled the downtown block in which the church is located.

The services were conducted by the Rev. Neal Dodd, pastor of the St. Mary's of the Angels, and known as the "Chaplain of the Movies," and by officers of Elks Lodge No. 99, of which Reid was a member. Mrs. Reid occupied a pew in the front of the church.

With the widow were her mother, Mrs. Alice Davenport, and a few close friends of the dead actor. Her two children, William Wallace Jr., aged 5, and Betty, 4, remained at home. Their mother, wishing to spare them grief, had told them that their father was away "on location."

Shortly after 3:30 the body was taken to a cemetery at Glendale, in the foothills near Los Angeles, where it was cremated in accordance with the actor's last wish.

At the Lasky establishment a flag drooped at half mast, while employes of the studios attended the funeral in a body. Other Hollywood and Los Angeles studios were closed.

Shortly after the services Mrs. Reid, known to the moving-picture world as Dorothy Davenport, issued the following statement:

"I want the public and our friends to know how much today's tribute to Wally's memory has meant to me and to his family. And I want to express, too, my regret that many of the thousands who came to the church were unable to gain admittance. It means more to me than I can put into the proper phrases that here in our home city the publis has sown its friendship, its loyalty and its sympathy in a manner so unmistakable."

EYTINGE, FREED FROM PRISON DEC. 30, TO BE MARRIED TODAY

Noted Letter Writer, Whose Work Gained Wide Recognition, to Wed Woman Who Helped Get Parole.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The woman who did the most to obtain a parole for Louis Victor Eytinge, 44, life convict and called "the best letter writer in the world," whose story was graphically told in the Post-Dispatch last Sunday, left the Martinque Hotel today with Eytinge to become his wife. She is Miss Pauline L. Diver, a director in publishing corporations, who has lived at the Martinique for three years.

She informed her old friends behind the hotel desk that the marriage ceremony would be performed tomorrow quietly at some place outside this city and she and her husband would return Monday to live at the Martinique. Eytinge has been there for a few days. He was released from the Arizona penitentiary Dec. 30 after spending 16 years of a life sentence.

MISSOURI SLAYER OF 3 ON A TRAIN KILLED BY POSSE

Practically Without Clothes, Having Discarded Them in His Flight Across Desert.

By the Associated Press.

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 20.—A man believed to be W. M. Sprague, of Paris, Mo., who escaped from a Southern Pacific train near Lanark, N. M., early today after shooting Harry Turner, El Paso, and Herbert E. Brown, Indianola, Ok., to death and fatally wounding P. O. Cochran, Branson, Mo., was killed late today near L. A. Mesa, N. M., by a posse headed by Sheriff Doniciano Rodriguez of Las Cruces.

Believe He Was Demented.

He was practically without clothes when killed, having discarded all of his outer garments and shoes in his flight. Officers expressed the belief that he was demented.

Turner was traveling freight and passenger agent for the Southern Pacific, having an office in Tucson, Ariz., but residing in El Paso.

Cochran is survived by a mother, Mrs. J. A. Cochran, Joplin, Mo.

Flees Into Desert.

After the shooting the slayer jumped from the train and escaped in the desert.

After killing Turner, the man fired at the crowd on the train which blocked the passageway. He hit nobody, according to the train crew, except the three men he killed. They were shot through the head.

In a flour sack containing personal effects, found in the seat where the slayer had been sitting, was a package addressed to W. M. Sprague of Paris, Mo.

2 MEN KILLED BY FARMER AFRAID HE WOULD LOSE FARM

Banker, Whose Institution Held Beardstown Man's Mortgage, and Land Owner Are Victims.

SLAYER HAD BEEN INMATE OF ASYLUM

Officers Believe Worry Over Illness of Slayer's Child Caused Recurrence of Insanity.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BEARDSTOWN, Ill., Jan. 20.—Clifford C. Garm, 35 years old, cashier of the First State Bank, and Jesse Lowe Jr., 35, wealthy land owner, were shot and killed on the street here at 6 o'clock this evening by Ora E. Braden, 35, a farmer living eight miles from Beardstown.

Braden, was once an inmate of an insane asylum, had been brooding over the imminent foreclosure of a mortgage on his farm, held by the bank and had threatened the bank officials with death if the mortgage was foreclosed. He is married and has several children, one of whom has been seriously ill. One of his relatives said after the shooting that the illness of this child probably had caused a recurrence of Braden's mental derangement.

Garm Shot Leaving Bank.

The shooting occurred as Garm was leaving the bank to go home. He had just stepped into the street when Braden opened fire with a revolver, the first shot striking Garm in the mouth. Garm staggered behind a parked automobile and Braden followed him, firing two more shots, one of which took effect in Garm's back. The cashier died in the street.

Braden then started to run from the scene. Lowe, who had an office in the bank building, went in pursuit and caught Braden about a block away, throwing his arms about the murderer. Before others could come to his aid, Lowe was shot in the back of the head by Braden and died within a few moments.

Braden again started to run, but was seized by several citizens who overpowered him and held him for the Sheriff. Braden was taken to Virginia, County seat, 15 miles away for safe keeping and placed in the county jail.

Had Threatened Bankers.

The double killing recalled open threats by Braden against the bank officials a year ago, when the bank started a foreclosure proceeding against his 80-acre farm, on which a loan of $2500 was in default. Friends of the man went on the note for an extension of time, which was granted by the bank.

Braden was discharged from the State Hospital for the Insane about three years ago, and had been quietly living with his family on the farm. Of late he has been behaving moodily, which his friends attributed to the illness of his child.

Garm was a son of R. H. Garm, president of the bank and chairman of the Illinois Waterways Commission. He was married and is survived by his wife and one daughter.

Lowe owned 4000 acres of drainage land across the river from this town. He was a son of the late Jesse Lowe, a Government engineer who built several levees on the lower Mississippi River. He was unmarried and lived with his mother and brother here.

CHINA REPUDIATES JAPAN'S TWENTY-ONE DEMANDS OF 1915

Complication Expected to Follow Resultant Anger of Tokio Diplomatic Agents.

(Copyright, 1923.)

PEKIN, Jan. 20.—Both houses of the Chinese Parliament late today unanimously passed resolutions declaring null and void the famous 21 demands of Japan upon China. The resolutions call upon the Pekin Government to take immediate and necessary action for their abrogation. The resolutions already have raised the anger of Japanese diplomatic representatives here and complications are expected to follow.

In protest against these demands, in which Japan sought certain privileges in 1915, when the World War was in progress, some of which China claimed infringed upon her sovereignty, a "National Disgrace Day" was generally observed May 9, 1922. Business was suspended and various organizations united in an immense parade and demonstration.

WAVE OF INFLUENZA SAID TO BE SWEEPING NATION

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
No. 20 Wyatt Bldg.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.

REPORTS to the Public Health Service show that a wave of influenza, milder in form than that prevalent during the winter of 1918-19, is sweeping the entire country. Surgeon-General Cumming stated that the disease, commonly called the "grippe," is being followed with much less pneumonia than was the wave of influenza proper. The section of the country suffering the worst is the South.

Acting Prohibition Commissioner Jones said the Prohibition Bureau had authorized state directors to permit physicians to issue more than 100 prescriptions a quarter in the prevalence of an epidemic. He said no appeals or relief from a whisky shortage had been received, but pointed out that the present epidemic was not so severe as that at the close of the war.

Surgeon-General Cumming termed the present disease a secondary wave of the grippe, explaining that the influenza epidemic of 1893 was followed by the appearance of the same disease in a modified form the next two or three years. He said the chief symptom of the present wave is a feeling of weakness and fatigue. It was said at the Public Health Service that the general symptoms of the disease are similar to those of a severe cold, in which fever often appears, and sometimes causes a high temperature.

BELEVILLE MAN ASLEEP FOR 12 DAYS; BEING FED FORCIBLY

Sometimes Opens His Eyes Momentarily, but Recognizes Nobody—Stricken While at Work.

John Straub, 58 years old, of 628 West Lincoln street, Belleville, has been sleeping 12 days and all efforts to arouse him have failed.

Straub was found asleep Monday, Jan. 8, beside his lathe at the plant of the Kloess Brick Co. Fellow workers were unable to arouse him and he was taken home. Dr. August F. Bechtold diagnosed the condition as encephalitis, or sleeping sickness.

Under efforts to awaken him Straub sometimes opens his eyes momentarily, but recognizes nobody and gives no signs of consciousness. A few days before he was stricken he complained of seeing double and consulted a specialist.

Water and liquid food is forced down his throat at intervals in the hope that the sustenance will aid in restoring him to consciousness.

HOMELESS ANTI-SOVIET FLEET ARRIVES AT PHILIPPINE PORT

An American destroyer is leaving for Lingayen to direct the movements of the Russian ships. Governor-General Wood already has made preparations to care for them at Mariveles quarantine station, at the entrance to Manila Bay, until they are able to proceed to another port.

GERMANS CONTINUE PASSIVE RESISTANCE IN FACE OF 18 ARRESTS

BERLIN WOULD SUPPORT A GENERAL STRIKE TO PARALYZE RUHR VALLEY

Miners and Other Union Workers Informed That All Germany Will Give Moral and Financial Backing.

By ARNO DOSCH FLEUROT,
Staff Corespondent of the New York World and Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

BERLIN, Jan. 20.—Paralyze the Ruhr is the word sent out from Berlin. With the French preparing for real military occupation and work at the point of the bayonet, the national unions, with the consent of the Government, have informed the Ruhr miners and other unions that a general strike stopping all production will receive the moral and financial support of all Germany.

The Foreign Office, which has established information bureaus throughout the Ruhr, announces that strikes have already begun in several Ruhr mines, chiefly those belonging to the Thyssen and Stinnes groups.

German officials in the old occupied territory are being obliged to quit their posts, and are leaving the occupied Rhineland immediately. Their families are given four days to get out.

Aid for Strikers Pledged.

The association of German industries pledged themselves at a big meeting in Berlin this afternoon to support all Ruhr or Rhineland strikes. Furthermore they promised to suport all workers outside the occupied areas who suffer indirectly because of the strikes.

Extensive unemployment in the interior of Germany as the result of shortage of raw materials from the Ruhr is probable, so the industrials have pledged themselves to a large undertaking. They added to it, however, by announcing they would boycott all imports from France and Belgium.

The Cuno Government has become stronger since it was informed the Socialists would see it through. Both Socialists and the labor unions announced they would agree to support any action "to prevent the success of French imperialism."

Reactionaries Feared.

However, they warn against any attempt by the reactionaries in Germany to take advantage of the situation. They make this last statement because they are afraid German reactionaries working with the Russian soviet government will try to throw Europe into a war from which a German monarchy might emerge.

GERMANS FIND WAY TO RESIST EVERY MOVE OF INVADERS

Protest Strikes Quickly Follow Arrests of High Industrial Officials.

By the Associated Press.

ESSEN, Jan. 20.—A grim game is being played by the French and Germans along the valleys of the Ruhr and the Rhine. For every turn whereby the French and Belgian occupation forces register a tactical or military advantage the German residents carry out a new form of pasive resistance.

The day was hectic with a succession of arrests of high German industrial and postal officails, quickly followed with clock-like precision by protest strikes of experts, manual laborers and other employes who stuck doggedly by Berlin's instructions to aid in nowise the "invaders."

The workers' council discussed with Lord Mayor Luther the advisability of calling out some of the 5000 postal, telegraph and telephone workers in a general sympathetic strike, but the decision will not be announced until tomorrow. A large part of the forces at the various mines whose directors were arrested, responded almost immediately with protest strikes or strike ultimatums expiring early next week.

The French authorities sent additional troops to guard the mines.

The people of Essen awoke this morning to find all the private banks in the city closed because a patrol had been placed over the Reichsbank, and the personnel of this institution refused to continue at their duties. Besides a number of small concerns, there are 20 large private banks in Essen.

Business men anticipate a serious stoppage of trade in case the suspension of banking continues over the coming week. Essen's larger financial institutions have unusually secure backing, it is reliably stated, and conduct many specialized dealings in stocks and bonds, in addition to the usual bank transactions. The Reichsbank, which is a branch of the central Reichsbank in Berlin, has an extraordinary large daily turnover on account of the centralization of heavy industry in the Ruhr. It is said that it handles at least 2,200,000 marks daily for wages of the Ruhr miners alone. Furthermore, it has the issuance of the Government's legal tender and performs other functions the same as the mother bank in Berlin.

A leading official of the Essen Chamber of Commerce, conversing with the Associated Press correspondent, today pointed out that the Ruhr occupation meant a considerable loss in trade already for United States and South American exporters. He said that virtually all the lard consumed in the Ruhr cme from the United States and also most of the other fats. Frozen beef is imported largely from South America and frozen pork mainly from the United States. Since the beginning of the year, when the threats of occupation became particularly marked, the prices of these commodities, as well as others, had risen by leaps and bounds. Frozen meats had increased in price more than 100 per cent and lards and fats even more than that.

The large importers, though well backed financially, have been exceedingly cautious in undertaking big contracts in these supplies during the past three weeks, especially since the mark's latest meteoric fall.

FRENCH DEPORT GERMAN COUNT FROM RUHR AREA FOR NOT OBEYING ORDERS

By the Associated Press.

COBLENZ, Jan. 20.

COUNT VON ROEDERN, chief German representative in the Weisbaden district, has been deported to unoccupied Germany by the French. He is charged with refusing to obey the new ordinances of the inter-allied Rhineland High Commission.

Von Roedern has long been regarded by the French as an obstructionist; two years ago he succeeded in securing the arrest of Herr Dorten who, together with Joseph Smeets at Cologne, had been fathering the separatist movement in the Rhineland.

Prince von Hatzfeld, chief representative of Germany in its relations with the Rhineland commission, was called before that commission today. He insisted that he did not know if Berlin had ordered passive resistance to the ordinances, but felt certain that Berlin had issued such instructions. The trial of Fritz Thyssen and the other industrial leaders arrested with him, will open at Mayence Monday.

INVASION OF RUHR ENDANGERS EUROPE, IS BRITISH VIEW

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The 10 days' military occupation of the Ruhr for the avowed purpose of forcing Germany to pay long-delayed reparations finds Europe dangerously near a social, economic and industrial abyss, over the edge of which France and Belgium, with their burden of war trapping already may have disappeared, according to the view held in British official circles.

Stolid John Bull sits far to one side, immovable and almost unapproachable by the fourth member of the disrupted allied family, Italy, whose nervous efforts to bring about Franco-German mediation was a feature of today's developments in the European situation as viewed from London.

COAL BARONS AND STATE OFFICIALS ON WAY TO JAIL

Populace of Ruhr Following Non-Co-operation Policy, but Is Beginning to Realize French Are in Earnest About Their Reparations Program.

BIG DECREASE IN OUTPUT OF MINES

Trains Confiscated by French Are Stalled in Valley, Railroad Workers Refusing to Move Them Toward France.

By the Associated Press.

DUESSELDORF, Jan. 20.—With 18 of their leading compatriots on the way to jail at Mayence, the Germans are beginning to realize that the French are in earnest in carrying out their reparation policy in the Ruhr Valley.

Despite these arrests, however, there is no sign of an intention by the Germans to recede from their program of non-co-operation and passive resistance to the occupational authorities.

The men in custody include State officials, industrial leaders and capitalists. The conditions of their incarceration will not be severe, as they are to be treated as political prisoners.

Prospects of good treatment, however, brought them little cheer, and all appeared in a serious and determined mood when they reached Duesseldorf in motor cars from Essen today—that is, all except big, jolly Fritz Thyssen, who never lost his perpetual smile and bubbling good humor. Thyssen is the active head of the great industries founded by his father, August Thyssen, which rival the huge Stinnes industrial group.

Trains Stalled in Ruhr.

Not one representative of the workingmen has been molested by the occupational authorities thus far, but four coke and coal trains, confiscated in transit by the French today, are stalled on various sidings in the Ruhr valley, the railwaymen refusing to move them toward France.

The French claim that the railwaymen have not "refused" to work the trains, because they have not been requested to do so, but the Germans say the occupational authorities refrained from this request only because it would meet with certain refusal.

The French are rushing locomotive engineers and firemen to the Ruhr and professed to be unperturbed as to developments, but they admit there is danger of serious congestion on the Ruhr railroad system should the confiscations continue and the trains remain sidetracked.

Mining operations continue throughout the Ruhr but unofficial estimates show that the total output of the mines has decreased 20 per cent as compared with the corresponding week last year.

Economic Fight to the Finish.

The whole affair appears to be an economic fight to the finish, for both sides are too deeply engaged to withdraw without enormous loss of prestige.

"We can live six months without Ruhr coal," one of the highest officials of the French mission said today. "It remains to be seen how long Germany can dispense with it."

Meanwhile nearly everybody, in Duesseldorf, at least, appears prosperous. The cafes are filled and the various places of entertainment are doing a booming business, with

DRASTIC DRY BILL NOW READY FOR INTRODUCTION

McCawley of Jasper County Expects to Present Enforcement Measure Tomorrow or Tuesday.

PROVIDES FOR ALL POSSIBLE EVASIONS

Auto Joy Ride, Private Parties, Doctor and Druggist, and Life Sentences Are Features.

By C. A. BETTS,
Special Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 20.—A new State prohibition measure containing provisions intended to reach every possible evasion of the eighteenth amendment has been prepared for introduction in the Legislature either Monday or Tuesday by Senator McCawley of Jasper County.

It is framed to reach the automobile joy ride, the private dwelling, the prescription writing doctor and the whisky selling druggist. It goes even farther than the Volstead act in regulation, and provides life sentences in the penitentiary may be imposed for violation of some of the offenses created.

While the final draft of the measure has been submitted to the Rev. W. C. Shupp, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, for his approval, Shupp had several conferences with McCawley during the preparation of the bill and is said to have approved virtually all the ideas incorporated in it.

The main purpose of the measure is to create a State Prohibition Commissioner, who will have the power to register or license "soft drink bars" and who will have general supervisory control over the regulation of the sale of nonintoxicating beverages, as well as power to make arrests in cases of manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors. He is to have 10 deputies, each of whom will be clothed with all the power of the commissioner.

Under the proposed law no physician will be permitted to write a prescription for more than four ounces of whisky, or one quart of wine, and no druggist will be permitted to have any one month an amount of liquor in excess of five per cent of his total sales for the month.

Soft drink bars are prohibited from having screens or blinds which will prevent a free and open view from the street, and are prohibited from concealing behind any partition or in any out-of-the-way place even a nonintoxicating beverage.

The Main Features.

The main features of the measure are:

Any person using any brewing or distilling apparatus in violation of either State or Federal law is held to be guilty of a felony and subject to imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term of two years.

Any person who shall have brewing or distilling apparatus in his possession is held to be guilty of a misdemeanor, and subject to a fine of from $500 to $3000 and imprisonment in jail for from six months to one year.

Any brewer or manufacturer making a nonintoxicating beverage by the dealcoholization method, who permits any of the liquid to be removed from the apparatus before the alcohol is taken from it, is held to be guilty of a felony and subject to a fine of not less than $1000 and imprisonment not less than one year.

The definition of a soft drink bar is: Every place which before the adoption of the eighteenth amendment was known as a saloon, dramshop or bar, and every place having as a part of its equipment a bar or counter such as was the usual fixture of a saloon. The definition specifically excludes from the provisions relating to soft drink parlors bona fide drug stores, ice cream parlors, candy stores, cafes and restaurants, which were not saloons before the adoption of the eighteenth amendment.

Certain Closing Period.

No soft drink bar shall be opened between 10 p. m. and 8 a. m. or between 10 p. m. Saturday and 8 a. m. Monday. Violation of this is punishable by a fine of from $100 to $300, or imprisonment from 30 days to six months.

No partition, screen, blind or other thing shall obstruct free and open view of interior of a soft drink bar from the street.

It is unlawful to conceal any liquid behind any board, panel or partition, or in any basement or under any trap door, or in any place where same would not be kept in the lawful conduct of the business.

Nonbeer or so-called soft drink having the appearance, odor or taste of beer shall be offered for sale except in original bottles, bearing the original labels with the full name of the brewer, label to be on side of bottle and on cap or cork.

It is unlawful to have in any soft drink bar any bitters, or patent or proprietary remedy, tincture, essence or extract which contains more than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol.

It is unlawful to sell any extract of ginger, orange peel, vanilla or other extracts for flavoring or for medicine containing more than 10 per cent of alcohol.

Regarding Physicians.

Soft drink bars shall be registered by the prohibition commissioner on payment of $10 fee.

Physicians who prescribe whisky or wine must obtain permit from prohibition commissioner.

Physicians before prescribing whisky or wine must make careful physical examination, and be satisfied from examination that prescription is necessary as a medicine.

It is unlawful for a physician to write a prescription if he has reason to believe whisky or wine is to be used as a beverage.

It is unlawful for physician to write a prescription for more than four ounces of whisky or one quart of wine.

It is unlawful for physician to charge more for a whisky prescription than for other kinds, and physicians are specifically prohibited from charging more than $1 for a whisky prescription.

Druggists are prohibited from charging more than one and one-half times the cost of the whisky or wine.

ST. LOUIS' CHANCE FOR AIR MEET UP TO GEN. PATRICK

Officers of National Aeronautic Association Favor This City, but Army Chief's Recommendation Probably Will Be Followed.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
No. 22 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—B. R. Shaw, vice chairman of the Contest Committee of the National Aeronautic Association, said today that the views of Major-General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the Army Air Service, probably would determine the committee's choice of a location for next year's national air meet. The question, he said, has been put up to Gen. Patrick for an opinion, and the committee is awaiting word from him. The cities bidding for the event are St. Louis, Chicago and Detroit.

Shaw explained that it was important to choose a location approved by the military air service, inasmuch as the army and the navy would furnish, as usual, virtually all the contestants. He thought that Rear Admiral William A. Moffett of the Bureau of Aeronautics of the navy would be guided by the recommendation of Gen. Patrick.

Officers of the National Aeronautic Association are extremely friendly to St. Louis, but it is unlikely they would vote for that city should Gen. Patrick decide against it. If St. Louis does not get the meet, it will be because of inability to furnish a water course. The success of last year's meet at Detroit strengthened the opinion of army air men that a course over water lessens the chances of injury to contestants, and therefore should be preferred to a land course in speed events.

The Inspection Committee of the National Aeronautic Association, consisting of Shaw and Capt. St. Clair Streett of the army air service, inspected St. Louis' facilities for the meet in a visit they made here Jan. 5. The committee viewed Lambert Field and surrounding territory near Bridgeton, St. Louis County, and viewed the Mississippi River from the city harbor boat. They expressed the belief that the Missouri River, north of St. Louis, could form one leg of the Pulitzer speed contest, and that the clear stretch of the Mississippi without bridges, south of the Free Bridge, would serve for hydroplane contests. Level territory adjoining Lambert Field, the visitors said, would tend to make emergency landings possible.

HORNE WARNS AGAINST FORCE IN GERMANY

Former British Chancellor Predicts Fall of Civilization in Europe.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Early collapse of civilized society in Europe, unless some means not now seen can be devised for averting it, was predicted today by Sir Robert Horne, former Chancellor of the British Exchequer, at a luncheon of the English-speaking union of the United States. Viscount Burnham, president of the British Press Union, and chief owner of the London Daily Telegraph, and Dean A. V. Baillie of Windsor Chapel, were other speakers.

Discussing conditions in Germany, Sir Robert said the only way to keep capital in Germany was to make German capitalists believe Germany was a fit place for a German capitalist to live.

"You must create confidence," he said, "and you cannot create confidence if you begin to seize by force any of the material on which Germany depends to carry on her trade. We hope we are wrong, but if we are right, we are going to see very soon in Europe a collapse of the organization of civilized society of that continent, such as we have never seen.

Looks to U. S. for Solution.

"The possibility of this must fill the minds of all with anxiety. But under this cloud I have always hoped to see the situation saved by the common sense, wisdom and sagacity of this country. You are further away from the scene than we are and can take a more detached view of the matter, and your influence is overpowering. I have thought that maybe from the United States would come some fresh idea to deal with these great problems with which the afflicted world is grappling."

He said he was convinced the Washington conferences on the British debt to America had made progress and the adjournment "can only mean a temporary delay in arriving at a final settlement that will bring these two great peoples together in a matter which is disturbing to both."

Viscount Burnham urged a clear settlement of the British debt question and declared an adjournment based on facts and not figures, was needed to achieve a better agreement between the two nations.

Reasonable Agreement on Debt.

"I suppose," he said, "it is hopeless to expect Lombard street and Washington to reach a completely satisfactory understanding. But if we can reach a reasonable agreement, it is all we can expect.

"It looks to me as if destiny, in peace and war, were bent on bringing us continuously more closely together in our interests and our ideals. In spite of all disturbers of the peace we are forced to march together along the high road of civilization with all its ruts and shell holes. You are bound now and again in your own world tasks to have England as your friendly rival and helper. After all, you cannot keep your world politics in cold storage; neither can we—either of us—be caught holding up the cause of righteousness for the day of judgment."

EARLY AGREEMENT ON THE BRITISH DEBT EXPECTED

Commission Sails for Home, but Washington Officials Are Optimistic Over Situation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Although the British Debt Commission sailed for home today with the mission which brought it to America uncompleted, well informed officials in Washington are by no means pessimistic over the possibility of an early agreement for the refunding of the British war debt to the United States.

In view of facts disclosed tonight for the first time some of these familiar with the recent exchanges between the British and American commissioners would not be surprised if British assent to a settlement plan tentatively worked out here is given soon after Chancellor Baldwin and his colleagues of the British commission arrive in London.

Recall Came as Surprise.

While the greatest reserve is shown here regarding the nature of this tentative plan, it is known that it represents the well considered judgment of both commissions as embodying the maximum concessions that might reasonably be granted by the United States. In view of the advanced stage which had been reached in the discussions, the sudden decision of the British Government to recall its commissioners to London for consultation instead of authorizing them to conclude the agreement is said to have come as a complete surprise to the British themselves no less than to the American side.

As the home government has been kept fully informed of every step in the progress of the negotiations, it had been assumed that the absence of objections to the plan as it developed could be constructed only as forecasting assent to the final stages.

The conclusion has been drawn in diplomatic circles here, that the grave change in the European political situation after the two commissions began their work caused the British Government to hesitate to assume any new financial burdens at this time unless it was assured of the ability of the taxpayers to bear them.

British Apprehensive.

Among the many elements of apprehension which thus may have influenced British officials are enumerated the possibility of an expensive war with Turkey, heavy losses of trade as the result of the operations of the French in the Ruhr, followed by increasing unemployment of English workmen, unrest in India, and unsatisfactory conditions in Egypt, which might make it necessary to modify her present independent status. Tangle up the Government in such an enormous financial transaction as that contemplated by the commission under those conditions is said to have been viewed as hazardous in the extreme.

Few persons outside of the innermost circles here have had any notion of the extent of the obligation Great Britain was to assume under the plan considered. It is known that the original American plan of refunding would call for the payment by the British Government of upwards of a million dollars a day, with the last payment 60 years in the future. After a careful study of the figures presented by the British, however, the American commission is said to have been disposed to accept the view that half of that sum—or half a million a day—represented the full extent of the British ability to pay.

To meet even that charge it was held that the British Government would probably find it necessary to make extensive changes in its whole financial and economic system. That would, of course, make it incumbent upon the Cabinet to seek the aid of Parliament and secure legislative approval of its plans.

Tariff Said to Be Necessary.

One project of the greatest interest to this country which has been mentioned in Great Britain in connection with the refunding plans relates to a customs tariff. To make both ends meet it has been argued that the British markets must be preserved for British workmen and producers and that the United States cannot be permitted to maintain a heavy balance of trade at Great Britain's expense. Some British statesmen are said to believe the only feasible way to stop the drain would be to erect a tariff wall around the British Isles with special reference to American products and materials, such as cotton, copper and even foodstuffs.

It was said that these considerations might not even be brought forward at all if the terms consented to by the United States were regarded by the British Government as within the present resources of the nation.

a large majority of the patrons of German nationality.

The only real distress is among the bourgeoisie, as the workmen, drawing wages of from 500 to 600 marks hourly, manage to live fairly comfortably.

The directors of the Reichsbank branches in Gladbach, Ludwigshafen and Dortmund were arrested late this afternoon and brought to Duesseldorf.

All the banks in Duesseldorf, except the branch of the Reichsbank, have resumed operations.

On Peace Mission, Degoutte Says.

Gen. Degoutte, commander of the occupation forces, declared to the Associated Press correspondent today that he was in the Rhineland in the interests of peace.

"I have made war long enough," he said, "to aspire now to try to enforce peace. My mission here is a peaceful one. I have received instructions from my Government to protect the French engineers' economic mission and I am doing so without undue severity, but without weakness.

"We have respected all liberties of the population, the press and labor. In some cases the press has taken advantage of this liberty and has printed virulent articles against us, which may necessitate our exercising a sterner control and censorship.

"We will enforce absolute liberty of labor; we are here to see that the workers may work if they so desire. We cannot make them work if they are unwilling, but those wanting to earn a living may be assured of our protection. In conflicts between labor and the employers, when our arbitration is requested as was the case at Reicklinghausen, the workers will find a friend here.

"Industrialists Exaggerating."

"We believe the industrialists are exaggerating. They are 20,000,000 marks behind in payments of the tax on coal, and bank shares are successfully rocketing the stock market in a manner absolutely abnormal, when depreciation of the mark is taken into consideration. I believe that the workers should receive more pay in conformity with the enormous profits of the employers, and also to meet the increased cost of living due to the collapse of the mark.

"We will not resort to force unless to meet some individual resistance or refusal on the part of some official or individual to obey orders given him personally, which led to the arrests already made, and others will probably follow, if officials and employers persist in their policy of open resistance.

"Our Government has adopted a plan for the purpose of obtaining payment of our just claims. I will enforce that plan by placing at the disposal of the economic mission all weapons they need to carry on their work."

Gen. Degoutte is a mild-mannered little man, with smiling blue eyes behind thick lenses. Speaking in a soft voice he resembles more the university professor than the type which might be expected in the military Governor of the occupied territory.

GENERAL STRIKE IN RUHR EXPECTED AS RESULT OF ARRESTS

By WILLIAM J. MARGREVE,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

ESSEN, Jan. 20.—The French today arrested Fritz Thyssen, several other coal operators and two Government officials, besides threatening all who refuse to obey orders with imprisonment. As a result a general strike is expected in the Ruhr by Monday.

Representatives of all the unions and officials of the Central Labor Council have delegates in Duesseldorf today instructed to demand release of all the men arrested and the removal of military restriction in the Ruhr or to order a strike.

Meanwhile the French, continue planning for their customs barrier and have ordered the coal operators to pay the 40 per cent coal tax to the occupying authorities under penalty of fine and imprisonment. The Germans also became active, bank employes announcing they would not open the doors until troops were withdrawn. German railway employes also managed to smuggle quantities of coal past the French into unoccupied Germany.

French Continuing Arrests.

In the face of the threatened tieup of all work in the Ruhr Monday, the French are continuing their arrests. Besides Thyssen, son of August Thyssen and head of the mine owners' committee which defied the French, the occupying forces have arrested these men:

Director Tengelmann of the Essen Anthracite Mining Co., Supt. Olze of the Gelsenkirchen Anthracite Co., Director Kesten of the Dahlburg mines, Director Wuestenhoefer of the Koenig Wilhelm mine and Director Spindler of the Viktoria Mathias mine.

The French also arrested Postmaster-General Juenger and Director of Telegraphs Zehm for refusing to facilitate telephone communications between the new and old occupied areas. All the officials of the post and telegraph services have been taken and only the operators are left. These are holding meetings to decide whether to call a strike, which would isolate the Ruhr.

A carload of arrested officials and mine owners has been taken to Mainz (Mayence), where they will be courtmartialed Monday. Herr Grimm, an international lawyer who defended French and Belgian prisoners before war courtmartials, has been appointed to defend the German prisoners.

All the labor unions, miners' associations and other employe organizations are holding meetings tonight and tomorrow, out of which the strike is expected to materialize. Even the bank employes sent representatives to Duesseldorf today to inform French headquarters the banks would not open Monday unless the demands of the unions were met.

These representatives pointed out to Gen. Degoutte, the French commander, that closing of the banks will lead to complete industrial catastrophe. Industrialists hotly deny negotiations through the French business men or other mediators are out of the question.

The beginning of a new era in the occupation will come with the establishment soon of the new customs frontiers. Import and export licenses will be required.

The French are rather slow to establish complete control over coal movements, but officials say they will have done so within a few days. But today, for example, the Germans ran 15,000 coal cars through the blockade. They used an old war trick employed to deceive spies, marking coal shipments as being destined for stations inside the occupied area and then actually sending them out to the interior of Germany.

No Coal Has Left Ruhr Yet.

No coal has so far left the Ruhr for France and Belgium, the Government having ordered railway men to refuse to move trains to these countries.

CUNO SAYS FRENCH AIM IS CONQUEST

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1923.)

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The Observer today prints an interview with Chancellor Cuno obtained by its Berlin correspondent. The Chancellor believes, the writer says, that the purpose of the French is obviously military and not economic. Asked if the French did not desire reparation, Herr Cuno replied, according to the correspondent:

"I have too high an opinion of M. Poincare's intelligence to suppose he can for a moment think occupation will have that result. Besides his speech on the subject in the Chamber of Deputies shows he has no such hope. Had he wished to make payment of reparations forever impossible, he could hardly have acted otherwise."

The Chancellor then went on to point out how the French "invasion" had smashed the mark, continuing:

"It is idle to tell us to stop printing paper money. Under these conditions fall of the mark means further increase in prices, corresponding increase in all salaries and wages, which are already terribly low. Unless we print more paper money salaries and wages cannot be paid and that would mean revolution."

Herr Cuno then pointed out that since it was obvious the financial ruin of Germany would not produce reparations, there must be some other reason for the French action. He believes it is the desire of an independent Rhineland, and recalled Adrian Dariac's report after an investigation that the Rhineland and the Ruhr should be separated from the rest of the Reich.

"When we see Dariac's policy being literally followed, how can we doubt it is the policy of the French Government?" asked the Chancellor. "It is difficult to avoid the suspicion the amount of the indemnity was deliberately fixed at a sum neither Germany nor any other country could possibly pay with the intention of making her inability to pay an excuse for applying this policy.

"We consider the treaty has been violated, but we shall continue to fulfill our obligations to those signatory powers that have not taken part in the violation.

"The mine owners and workmen of the Ruhr are holding out against the threats of French and Belgian militarism and are refusing to supply coal to France and Belgium. They are resisting unjust aggression, and the German Government will support them in that attitude.

"We are defending the independence of German territory and the liberty of a German population against these designs of an aggressive imperialism. We shall stand firm and I know that the whole German people is behind us."

has returned from Rome, has approached official circles here and broached the question of mediation, which, if the British initiated it, might terminate the virtual state of war in the Rhineland, but the Mussolini emissary has received no encouragement. This move is the latest evidence that the British Government is convinced of the wisdom of the course it has taken in refusing to be associated in any way with the French determination to enforce the terms of the Versailles treaty at the point of the bayonet, without the Germans being given another chance to pay after financial reforms had been instituted by Germany.

Results Called Negative.

British officials assert that every card the Franco-Belgians have played in the Ruhr has been a losing one, pointing out that the results thus far have been entirely negative, the only benefit being to Great Britain in increased coal orders from Germany. At the same time it is admitted that there is still "A very remote possibility" that the French might be right, for it is remembered that Premier Poincare predicted that it possibly would be weeks before the profitable results of the occupation policy were evident.

JURY OF NEGROES CONVICTS NEGRO OF KILLING NEGRO

Defendant's Attorney a Negro—Murder Result of Dispute Over Poker Game—Sentence 21 Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HAZARD, Ky., Jan. 20.—Perry County's "blackest murder trial" ended today, for the first time in Kentucky's history, a negro jury, summoned by a negro bailiff, tried Ed. Oneil, negro, for the murder of William Young, a negro. The defendant was represented by the only negro attorney in Eastern Kentucky and despite the fact that he was ably represented the jury of his own race sentenced him to 21 years' imprisonment.

The murder took place on Lott's Creek and was said to have resulted from an altercation arising from a poker game, the man killed having claimed that the defendant had used marked cards.

The defendant, who has but one leg, having lost the other in an accident some time ago, claimed self-defense, alleging that Young had advanced on him with a knife threatening to "cut off his head." The jury, however, did not believe his story and brought in the verdict of "guilty." The regular white Judge presided and the white State's Attorney prosecuted.

$100-A-MONTH ENGINEER GETS $73,680 AFTER 40 YEARS

After working for more than 10 years as a stationary engineer at $100 a month, during which he saved no money, John L. Dammir of St. Genevieve, Mo., was notified yesterday that $73,680.45, left in trust for him 40 years ago, is now at his disposal.

The estate was left by his father, Lud H. Dammir, a cotton planter of Springfield, Ky., who was killed in a runaway accident when John Dammir was 4 months old. The latter's mother had died a month before. In directing that the money be left in trust for 40 years, the elder Dammir said he wanted to be sure that his son would be old enough to appreciate the value of money when he received it.

Until he became 17 years old Dammir lived with a negro "mammie," who formerly had been one of his father's slaves. Later he migrated to Missouri, and after working on farms for several years obtained a job with the St. Genevieve Light and Power Co. He says he will use part of his inheritance in the purchase of a Missouri farm and then will retire.

HYDE DECIDES TO REAPPOINT YOUNG TO POLICE BOARD

Senator Farris Said to Be Responsible for Refusal to Heed Wishes of Brockman and Koeln.

SEEN AS PLAN TO PLACATE DEMOCRATS

Belief Is That Hyde Hopes to Escape Unfriendly Legislation by Legislature Controlled by Opposition.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 20.—Gov. Hyde tonight announced that he had decided to reappoint William Young a member of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners. The decision was reached over the [illegible] formidable influence of Collector Koeln, Republican factional leader in St. Louis, and P. H. Brockman, president of the Police Board. It is known that Young refused a demand by the Governor that he submit his resignation, to be held by the Governor and accepted if the Governor so desired at any time.

While officials informed regarding the negotiations were reticent about Young's appointment, it was said by one official tonight that Senator Frank H. Farris of [illegible] Democrat was really responsible, [illegible] that Young really owed his appointment to a desire by the Governor to placate Democratic Senators [illegible] the hope of escaping unfriendly legislation by the present Democratic controlled Senate and House.

Governor Altered Decision.

According to information from responsible osurces the Governor had decided that Young should not remain on the board because of the opposition, principally, of Brockman, who was said to have objected to the apparently close alliance between Young and Victor Miller, deposed president, but still a member of the board. Brockman even is said to have at one time declared he would not remain on the board if Young were reappointed.

The Governor disliked to displease Brockman, and he also disliked [illegible] oppose Koeln's demand that Young be removed. The Koeln opposition is said here to have been due to refusal of Young, when Chief of Police and later when Commissioner, to respond to political requests by leaders of the Koeln faction in the organization of the Police Department. It also is said that Young voted for Koeln's Democratic opponent for the collectorship in the recent election. But, whatever the cause, Koeln and Brockman were not friendly to Young, and the Governor, only a few weeks ago, was ready to replace Young by sending to the Senate for confirmation the name of some other person.

Visited by Friends.

Shortly after the Legislature convened, it is known, Senator Farris, a life long friend of Young and of Young's mother and family, called on the Governor. Just what Farris said to change the Governor's mind has not been disclosed, and it is probable he had no occasion to more than express a hope for Young's appointment.

Farris, in addition to his influence [illegible] strength, has also the influence associated with being floor leader of the Senate. It is probable that Farris' opposition in the Democratic caucus to any of the appointments sent in by the Governor would prevent the confirmation of that appointee. The Governor, of course, knew that and in addition he possibly was not unmindful that Farris as a friend would be much more pleasing in the Senate than Farris as an enemy.

The basis for the action was not revealed, but it was stated officially that the divisional office would be investigated by the bureau's intelligence department.

WASHINGTON FIVE WINS FROM KANSAS AGGIES, 21 TO 19

Central Is Victor Over Soldan Five

Midcity Quintet Captures Third Straight Contest in Interscholastic League With 12-11 Victory.

McKINLEY DEFEATS YEATMAN, 32 TO 15

Schroeder's Failure to Net Free Throws Costly to Coach White's Team—Gockel Star of Battle.

The Central High School basketball team gained its third successive victory in the Interscholastic League race last night by defeating Soldan, 12 to 11, in the feature contest of the day on the Cleveland court. In the afternoon battle, McKinley moved to a tie for second place with Cleveland by defeating the Yeatman quintet, 32 to 15. About 900 persons saw the night game.

The battle between Central and Soldan was one of the best played in the local circuit this season. It was a nip and tuck affair, with first one team and then the other holding a slight margin.

After seven minutes of play, during which time the West Enders gained a 3-2 lead on their midcity rivals, Coach White of Soldan sent in an entirely new five. These men, really the regulars of the Soldan team, were unable to stand the hot pace and at the end of the period, Central held a lead of 6 to 5.

Schroeder's Misses.

The second half brought out the real battle. At the start, Gockel, running guard for Central, broke through and tossed two field baskets, which put his team ahead, 10—5. Not to be outdone, Shaw of Soldan came back with two, which put his team only a point behind. With only five minutes remaining, Schroeder of Soldan missed a free throw that would have tied the score for his team. After this Cristal was knocked out and time was taken until he recuperated.

Following a throw-in from the side line, Meyer of Soldan grabbed the ball, and tossed over his shoulder into the basket, putting the West Enders in front, 11—10.

With only a few seconds remaining, Rowden of Soldan fouled Cristal and a free throw was awarded. Gockel missed the toss, but followed up the throw toss, grabbed the ball and came through with the field goal that gave his team victory.

Schroeder's failure on free throws lost the game for Soldan. The forward was given four opportunities, but missed them all.

The McKinley victory in the afternoon game was a decisive one. The Crimson quintet displayed the form which carried it through many practice games. The inaccurate shooting which was so costly against Central last week, was not in evidence yesterday.

A new style of attack was responsible for the McKinley points. The short, speedy passing game was used as in other contests, but the McKinley forwards abandoned the attempts to bring the ball up the court to a position directly under the hoop. Instead, they shot from long distances, arching the ball prettily, and succeeded in caging a number of these shots.

Lueders, Syberg Star.

Yeatman was not up to the form shown last week. The Yetman team made the fatal mistake of constantly attempting to dribble instead of passing the ball through the tight five-man defense of the oposition. The McKinley players broke up these individual attempts with ease, but Yeatman persisted in the same style. There was also a tendency to give the ball to Hannegan on every shot and as the lanky pivot man was closely guarded, many scoring chances were lost.

The floor work of Leuders, right forward for McKinley, was very good. He caged four dificult baskets from far out on the sides of the floor. He also played a strong defensive game. [illegible], at left forward, registered two baskets from scrimmage under the hoop.

Virgil Syberg, the shifty running guard of the Crimson, was the outstanding player of the game. The little guard was in on every play and his speed enabled him to cover the entire floor. He scored 12 points for his team. Heffern and Hamm were good on defense play through the majority of the game and did some [illegible] work. Hannegan with 11 of Yeatman 15 points, was the star of the North End five.

The game was even during the early portion of the first period. For [illegible] minutes the teams were nip and tuck, with but one point difference at any time. Syberg and Luedders brought the score to 17—8 as the half ended.

McKinley prevented Yeatman from scoring a field basket during the first 12 minutes of the next period.

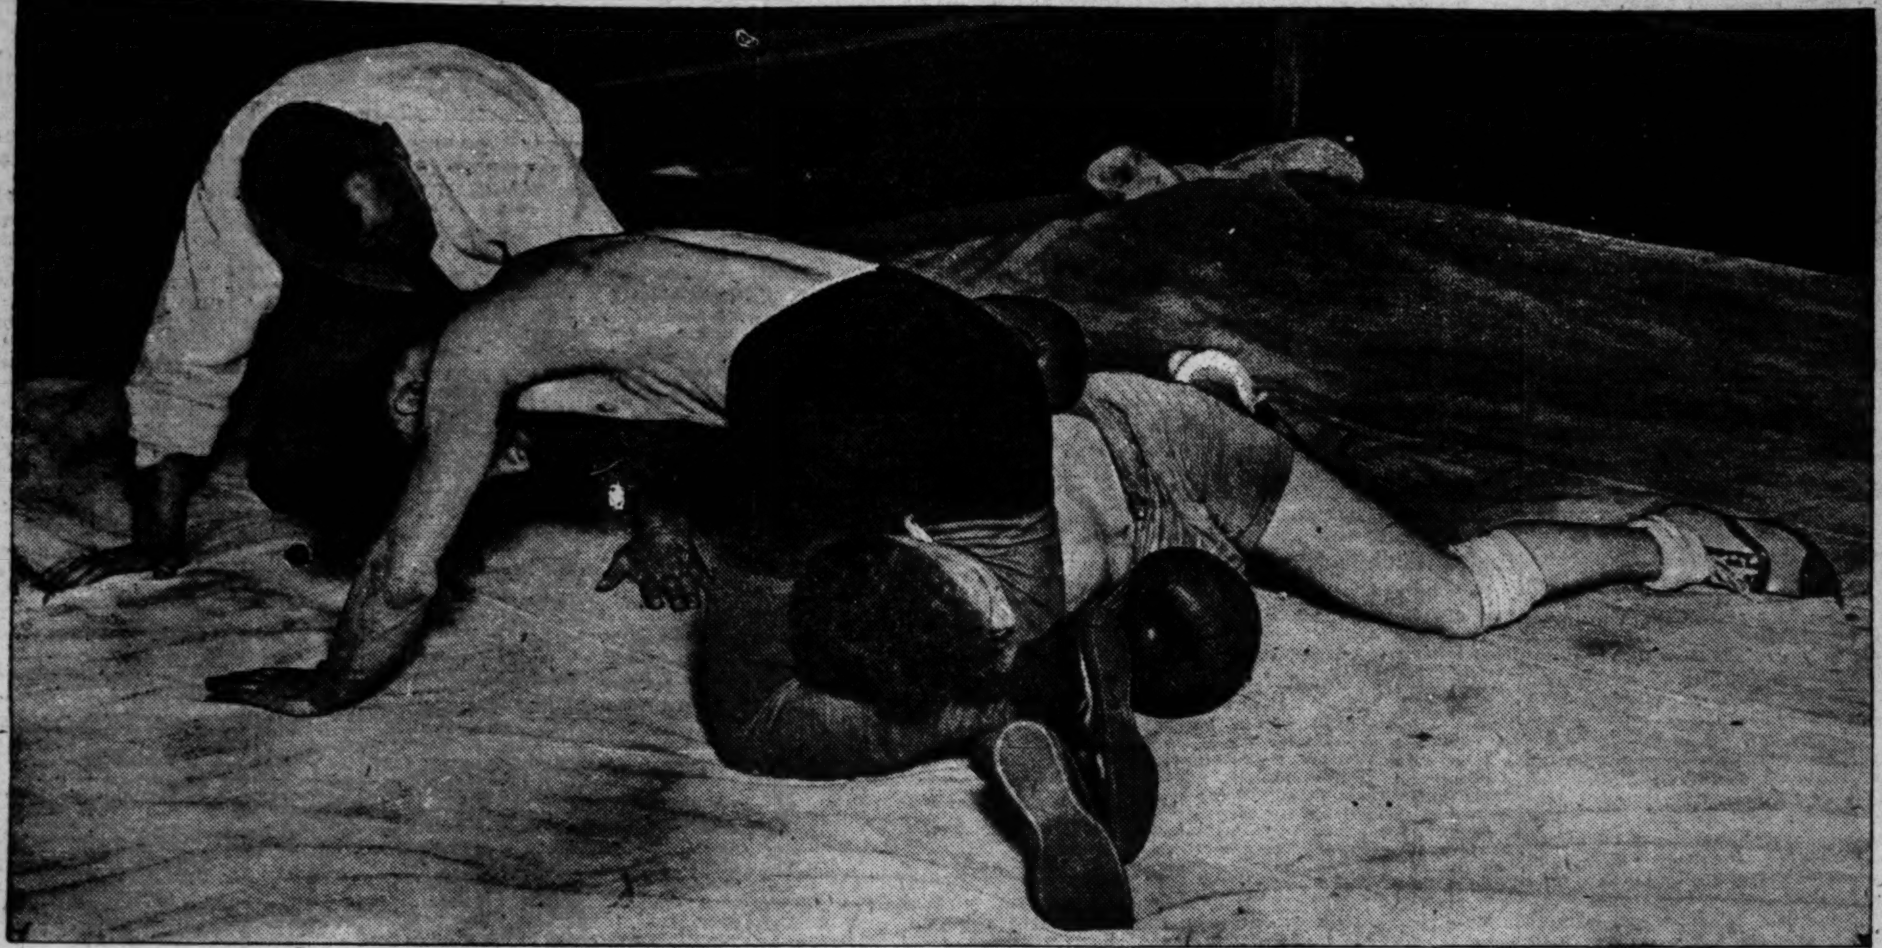
Just Before the Finish of the Mixed Match Between a Wrestler and a Boxer



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

The picture shows Wrestler Phil Evans (Washington University) about to pin Boxer Alex Stavenitz (Washington University) to the mat, two minutes after the start of their mixed contest. Evans has a scissors and bar arm lock. Referee John C. Meyers, waching Stavenitz shoulders for the fall, apparently was not in a position to see that Evans had a leg "strangle" hold on Stavenitz. However, the boxer never had a chance and landed only a few ineffectual taps, and those only after he had been borne to the mat.

Mat Champion Ed Lewis Through Here Unless He Agrees to Meet Capable Foe, Promoter Declares

Statement Follows Strangler's Refusal to Face Any One of Several Good Men—Dan Koloff Tells How He Trailed Titleholder Three Years Without Success.

By John E. Wray,
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

DAN KOLOFF, a 210-pound Bulgarian, about 28 years old, whose bullet-shaped head, 19-inch neck, twisted cauliflowered ears, tremendous torso and massive leg muscles bespeak the trained professional wrestler, yesterday voiced a complaint which is being lifted from the Atlantic to the Pacific by other members of the upper ten in mat circles.

"Lewis will not give a real wrestler a chance,' Koloff declared; "but, as you and everybody else who observes must know, he takes on 'setups' from whom he need expect no serious trouble. Take myself; for three years I have pursued him. I have begged his manager, Billy Sandow, for a match.

"'Be a real champion and take a chance,' I told Lewis. But he never did. He laughed at me and wanted to know why he should meet ME. 'No money for a champion to wrestle you,' he said. 'I'm after the easy money, like you would be in Lewis' place.'

"That is not so. I take pride in my profession and would give those a chance who were entitled to it.

"Now, I myself, and lots of other good men, are what you call in golf 'stymied.' The championship is there. But it is impossible to get to it until Lewis makes some sort of move to risk his honors. He says it is because not enough money is offered.

"I offered to post forfeit money when Lewis was here, but I again was laughed at. So was Joe Stecher, Marin Plestina, John Evko, Wladek Zbyszko and others, on previous occasions.

"Prefers the Easy Marks."

"Since he regained the title Lewis has only met one or two good men; and then there was no doubt in his mind of his ability to beat them. Londos was over 40 pounds lighter than Lewis; Zbyszko was so old that he is not able to hold off Lewis more than 30 or 40 minutes. And the remainder of his opponents have been set-ups unable or unwilling to annoy him much.

"I will do anything to make him meet me. I will post money. I will even let him get his headlock on me 10 times, by way of a handicap.

"Lewis' headlock is something of a joke. It's played up big. He hops about in a spectacular manner, in putting it on his opponents. Everyone says it is sure defeat when he "gets it right." Very well. I will GIVE him the hold, not once, but 10 times, if he will agree to meet me.

"That is because I can beat the Lewis headlock. I do not believe any man can hold me with it, after I get to the floor. And if Lewis cannot beat me with the headlock he cannot beat me at all. He is not a first-class wrestler in any other respect.

"Joe Stecher could squeeze him into pulp with his 'scissors.' If old man Zbyszko were in his old-time form he would make Lewis look like a 'sucker.'

"I do not say anything about some of the other wrestlers—they might beat me. But no big, slow man, like Lewis or Plestina can defeat me.

Koloff Wants Public to Help Force Lewis Into Defending His Mat Laurels

"There ought to be some way to force Lewis to defend his title. Even if I don't get the match, someone is entitled to a try. If the public would quit patronizing his setup exhibitions then perhaps he would be forced to come to time. As long as the public continues to pay $4.40 to see him throw some unknown, of course Lewis will continue to take the easy money.

"The public is, therefore, to blame, in a way, for all this. And you newspapers are guilty, too, for not pointing out just what this champion is doing.

"Since I can't get a match with Lewis I would like to meet Londos. I think he's more dangerous in some ways than Lewis because he is fast and very tricky. You have to watch him ALL the time. I have posted $1000 for a match with either Lewis or Londos.'"

Promoter Warns Champion.

John Contos, the Chicago Greek who has been promoting wrestling here and who has put on some half dozen or more shows in the past two seasons, was asked why he did not get a real match for Lewis. Contos said:

"I sat up until 2 a. m. talking to Lewis and his manager, after Tues-

St. Louis After Franchise in Pro Football League

Action on Application Deferred Until Next Meeting of Organization.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Joe F. Carr of Columbus was re-elected president of the National Professional Football League at its annual meeting here today. John Dunn of Minneapolis was chosen vice president and Carl Storck of Dayton was elected secretary-treasurer.

Seventeen clubs were represented at the meeting and applications for franchises were received from Cleveland, St. Louis, Davenport, Ia., St. Paul and Duluth. Action on the application was deferred until the next meeting, to be held here, probably in May.

Resolutions compelling all clubs to fix an admission for boys under 16 years old not in excess of 50 cents, were adopted. This, it was explained, is in line with the league's policy to allow as many boys as possible to witness games.

The championship pennant for the 1922 season was awarded to the Canton Bulldogs, and each player was awarded a gold football.

GOLF STARS GATHER FOR TEXAS TOURNEY

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 20.—San Antonio golfers have high hopes that the $1500 first prize in the Texas open golf championship, which will be played here Jan. 26, 27, will be won by a local player. Clarence Mangham, professional at the Municipal links where the tournament will be played, lowered the San Antonio Country Club course record to 67 Thursday afternoon and then lowered the "Muny" course mark to 66 Friday afternoon.

A score or more of professionals, early arrivals for the tournament are engaged in trying to cut Mangham's remarkable figures. The former records on both courses were established by Tom Lally, the pro at the San Antonio Country Club.

LEO BACOTT REINSTATED BY A. A. U. OFFICIALS

Leo Bacott, local 118-pound amateur boxer of the South Broadway Athletic Club, who was suspended by the Western A. A. U. last Wednesday evening for failing to keep his engagement to meet Sollie Kessler before the Business Men's Athletic Association, was reinstated at a meeting of officials of the Western Division last night.

The delegates, meeting in the office of Verne Lacy, chairman, voted to form a committee on matchmaking to regulate matches of the future. This committee will be composed of a representative from each of the six local clubs and three men not affiliated with any club. They will investigate the signing of amateur boxers and try to have shows conducted as advertised.

Fulton Offers to Bet $25,000 He Can Knock Out Big Jess Willard

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—FROM out the depths of that mysterious and fearful solitude, Oblivion, comes a loud squawk. It comes from Fredrick Fulton, who complains that he is the proper man to try out Jess Willard, not Gibbons, Johnson, Firpo or Brennan.

Fulton dropped Willard in an exhibition bout long before the name of Fulton had soared and caromed off the clouds. Now Fulton is out to pick up where he left off. He has sounded James J. Johnston out on the subject and as a lead, he comes forward with a certified check of $25,000 which he will wager, give to charity or toss to the trade winds if he fails to stop Willard!

Why not let those two have it out, fans are inquiring? In the matter of size they will be on a parity or nearly so. Jess is six feet six and one-half inches tall, and Fred something like six feet four. If Fred is willing to chance that much money on the result he ought to be allowed to have his wish.

At least they won't be able to say that you are picking on a little fellow, as they did before the affair with little Johnny Dempsey at Toledo.

Billikens Defeat Illinois College

Hurd Stars at Forward for St. Louis Five in 27-17 Victory.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., Jan. 20.—The St. Louis University basketball team, playing a wonderful passing game, defeated Illinois College in a game here tonight, 27 to 17. Accurate goal shooting by Hurd, Eggler and Sanders proved too much for the locals. Kelly and Young played well at guard, while Kelly also helped to victory with two long goal shots.

Illinois College played a good game, but the close guarding of the Billikens broke up most of the plays.

The line-ups:

St. Louis.	Position.	Illinois.
Hurd	Forward	Dale
Sanders	Forward	Hiatt
Eggler	Center	Mellon
Young	Guard	Roberts
Kelly	Guard	Butler

Field baskets—Hurd, 4; Sanders, 2; Eggler, 5; Kelly, 2.

Gibbons Too Small To Meet Dempsey Muldoon Decrees

Prohibits Bout in New York—Another Carpentier Story, He Says.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The New York match sought by Tom Gibbons, St. Paul boxer, with Jack Dempsey, has been thrown into the discard, at least for some time to come, by William Muldoon, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, it was learned today. Gibbons' challenge, which was accompanied by a $2500 certified check from his manager, Eddie Kane, has been declined, Muldoon said, because Gibbson is too small for Dempsey and he thinks he can find enough to keep him busy in the light heavyweight class.

"A match between Dempsey and Gibbons would be merely a repetiton of the affair between Dempsey and Carpentier," said Muldoon.

Kane has been notified to call for the certified check.

ROETTGER STARS, BUT PURDUE TRIMS ILLINI

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

URBANA, Ill., Jan. 20.—In one of the hardest fought basketball games seen here in years Purdue vanquished Illinois tonight, 24 to 20, and eliminated Coach Ruby's quintet from the Big Ten Conference race. The Boilermakers played a close guarding game and used long passes to good advantage.

Purdue took the lead at the start, but Illinois caught up with them at 4 all when Roettger hooped a pretty basket and added two more points on free throws. Roettger, a St. Louis boy, gave Illinois a 3-point lead shortly afterwards on a free throw and a field basket. Illinois maintained this lead during the first half, which ended 11 to 8.

At the opening of the second half, Purdue quickly overcame the Illinois lead and after the score seesawed back and forth for several minutes into the lead and kept to the fore thereafter.

Eversman and Robbins scored three field baskets each for Purdue. Holwerda two and Guillion one while Roettger and Hellstrom annexed two field baskets. Stillwell, Hansen and Popken one each.

WEBSTER QUINT WINS FROM WESTERN, 28-23

The Webster High School basketball team gained a 28-to-23 victory over Western Military Academy in a game played on the Webster floor yesterday. Two baskets in the last minute of play gave the local team the victory. Payne and Stuart starred for Webster.

Manhattan Team Is Unable to Overcome Pikers' Early Lead

Minner's Long Shots Prove Feature of Battle—Doolen and Webber Are Stars for Losing Quintet

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Jan. 20.—Washington University defeated the Kansas Aggies in a hard fought basketball game by the score of 21 to 19 here tonight. The teams were evenly matched, neither showing unusually good form. Bright spots in the contest were the long shots of Minner, who scored five field goals, four from up court and hard angles. Doolen and Webber were the stars on the Aggies team.

The difference in the goal-shooting was the deciding factor in the game. The Aggies tried 67 and scored 9, while the Pikers attempted 54 and made 9. The visitors led throughout the contest, but the Aggies were within two points of catching them twice in the last half. Loafing on the part of the Pikers almost lost them the advantage earned early in the game.

With two minutes to play and the score 19 to 17, Washington called time out for a conference. The Pikers got the advantage in the tip off which followed, and Hutton, Piker left guard, sneaked down under the basket and shot the goal which gave the visitors a four-point lead. Foval, for the Aggies, got in a final counter just before the game ended.

Pikers Get Off in Lead.

The Pikers gained a six-point lead before the Aggies started in the first, Minner hooping two long ones and Thumser scoring on a pretty formation. The score at the end of the half was 13 to 7.

The Pikers exhibited good teamwork, but were stopped under the basket by the close guarding of Webber and Foval. The Aggies were able to bring the ball down under the basket but could not hit the hoop.

The Aggies showed better form in the second half or else the Pikers loafed a bit. The Kansans tried their luck on longer shots. Foval and Webber got one each. Then the Aggies gave the Pikers a surprise and worked a formation, which took Webber under the cage and he lobbed it in without interference.

It was at this juncture that Capt. Thumser called time for a talkfest, the score standing at 19 to 17, with two minutes to play. The poise which the rest gave his team saved the game as the Aggies were fighting and hitting the basket.

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 20.—Missouri defeated Iowa State here tonight in a Missouri Valley Conference basketball game by the score of 41 to 25. The Missourians got off to a good start and led at the end of the initial period, 23 to 10.

In the second half Ames staged a great comeback and brought the score up to 28 to 22. Before the Tigers could ward off the cyclone rally in this period Ames scored 13 points to Missouri's 18. Browning and Green played the stellar roles.

For the two rivals, Green's dribbling was superior to Browning's and he frequently went through the entire Tiger team for a shot at the goal. During the contest he made six field goals, Browning made five, and his teammate, Wheat, added as many more.

Ritola Breaks 4-Mile Record

Murchison Fails to Appear; McAllister Wins Century.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—William Ritola, 27 years old, a doughty son of Finland, added to his greatness as a distance runner by shattering the world's indoor record for 4 miles at the annual indoor games of Fordham University at the old Twenty-Second Regiment in Washington Heights tonight. The Finn ran the 4 miles in the remarkable time of 19 minutes and 27 4-5 seconds.

In 1920 Bonhag established a record of 19 minutes and 39 seconds for 4 miles and over a stretch of a dozen years this mark stood up before the fleetness of the best distance runners. Even Kohlemainen in his prime was unable to beat the record.

The Finn not only beat the indoor record, but also the outdoor one of 20 minutes and 2 seconds made by Kohlemainen some time ago. He romped away with the race tonight. The new record holder gave big field liberal handicaps and at the finish was 2½ laps in front of Nick Giounakopals, who had an allowance of 150 yards. Mike Dwyer of the Paulist A. C. was third.

Stars Fail to Shine.

There was not much to the special sprint races for Loren Murchison of St. Louis, Sol Butler of the Defender Club and Victor Greb of Columbia all failed to appear. The only starters were Bob McAllister, the flying cop, and Eddie Farrell of Fordham.

Farrell won the 75-yard race by a scant margin, but in the other two sprints—the 90 and the 100 yards—he was no match for the 100-yard champion. McAllister ran away from his rivals in the 100-yard sprint, winning by a good margin of four or five yards, in 10 seconds flat. His time for the 90-yard race was 9 1-5 seconds. Farrell won the 75-yard race in 8 1-5 seconds.

Cardinals Will Play 33 Contests On Training Trip

21 of Exhibition Contests Will Be With Rival Major League Aggregations.

HORNSBY IN LIMELIGHT

Rickey's Star Will Oppose Archdeacon, Cobb, Speaker and Others.

Without a doubt the most pretentious spring exhibition game schedule ever mapped out for a major league club, has been arranged by the Cardinals. When dates with the Athletics and Syracuse are decided upon, the Rickeymen will have 33 contests. Of this total, 21 will be with major league teams and 12 with aggregations of Class AA strength.

The latest games to be arranged by Secretary Clarence Lloyd are with Rochester and the Detroit Tigers. Half a dozen battles are booked with each of these clubs. After the engagement with the Tigers, the Cardinals return home for the two-game series with the Browns at Sportsman's Park.

Branch Rickey asserts that he has good reason for booking so many battles. He must find at least three players to bolster the team for the coming National League race and he figures by playing regular clashes against strong opposition he will have a better chance of locating the athletes needed.

Plenty of Attractions.

And in connection with the Cardinals' spring battles, there will be plenty of added attractions. For instance there is the Rochester series. In this, Rogers Hornsby and Maurice Archdeacon, the St. Louis speed demon, considered the fastest men in baseball, will get together. Playing the Tigers, it will be Hornsby against Cobb. And with Cleveland it will be Hornsby vs. Speaker. The Washington battles will bring together Hornsby and Sam Rice, another flyer on the bases. The clashes also will give an idea of how the Rickeymen will fare with the Braves and Phillies in 1923 National League race.

The games in addition will send the Cardinals against some famous American League pitchers, such as Walter Johnson, Stanley Coveleskie and Edwin Americus Rommel.

The Cardinals' first game with the Phillies at Leesburg, Fla., March 14. Possibly several with Syracuse will come before this. The final game in Florida will be against the Indians, March 28. After that the Cardinals hit the road with Rochester.

Cardinals' Spring Games.

The games arranged to date by the Cardinals are as follows:

March 14—Phillies at Leesburg, Fla.
March 16—Braves at Bradentown.
March 20—Cleveland at Bradentown.
March 21—Phillies at Bradentown.
March 22—Braves at Bradentown.
March 23—Washington at Bradentown.
March 24—Washington at Tampa.
March 26—Washington at Bradentown.
March 27—Braves at St. Petersburg.
March 28—Cleveland at Lakeland.
April 1—Rochester at Pensacola.
April 2—Rochester at Selma, Ala.
April 3—Rochester at Andalusia, Ala.
April 4—Rochester at Troy, Ala.
April 5—Rochester at Dothan, Ala.
April 6—Rochester at Eufalia, Ala.

Golfers Should Take It Easy Week Before Title Tourney, Says Sarazen

Too Much Practice Has Ruined Many a Star's Chances for Victory, Asserts Titleholder.

By Gene Sarazen,
World's Champion Golfer.
(Copyright, 1923.)

After four weeks of practice at Miami Beach, Florida, and after playing steadily for two weeks on the public course at San Antonio, I felt that I was ready for the tournament there. This was the first big competition of the winter season of 1921-22 and my first tournament since the professional championship at Inwood, Long Island.

I had been playing so well in practice I felt sure I would do well in the tournament.

Instead, however, I made a sorry showing. I didn't realize my condition at the time, but I know now that I went into that meeting overgolfed. Staleness has killed the chances of more than one golfer.

There are various opinions as the proper way of conditioning one's self for a tournament. Some say you shouldn't play much golf. Others believe that the more one plays the better prepared one is for the conflict.

I believe that you cannot play too much golf; that it is a game which requires constant practice in order to retain the touch.

However, there is such a thing as overdoing practice just preceding a tournament. That is what had happened to me at San Antonio. I wasn't keen for the game when the first round started.

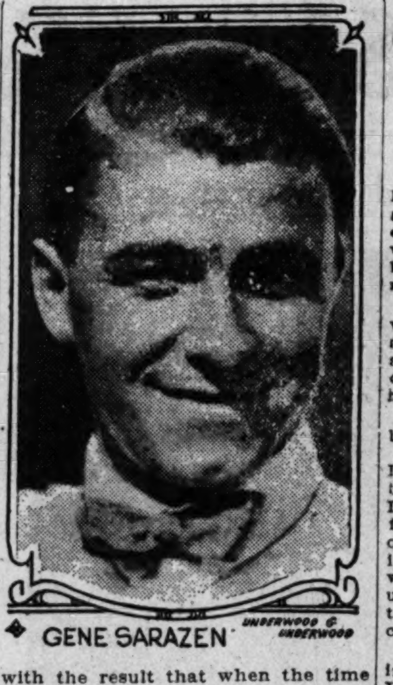
It is well enough to put in a lot of practice, say a month or even two weeks in advance of a tournament. But the week preceding a big tournament one should take things easy.

After the San Antonio competition, which Bob MacDonald won, I took a short rest. The result was noticeable at Shreveport, where I finished second to Leo Diegel, who won with the exceptionally fine score of 275.

Takes Rest, Then Wins.

The next tournament I entered was at Houston. Francis Ouimet was there, and after that competition he said to me: "I'd advise you to take a rest, Gene; you look tired and are probably overgolfed. Do not play any more between now and the New Orleans meeting and you'll do better."

I did exactly as Ouimet advised, with the result that when the time came for the New Orleans tournament I was feeling better than I had felt all winter. I was all keyed up and anxious to get started. Moreover, I was bubbling over with enthusiasm and confidence, for the day the tournament started, Feb. 27, was my birthday. I was just 21.



GENE SARAZEN
UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD

Barnes and Hutchison, who were on tour, were present, as well as most of the other stars. It was an exceptionally fine field. At the end of the first round I could not help feeling I was going to win. I was hitting the ball better than ever before. My confidence encouraged me and I played daringly, taking all kinds of chances. I pitched boldly for the pin on every green and had the pleasure of seeing my back-spin shot working effectively. When you are playing well the game is a real joy.

In the last round I had only to beat Leo Diegel. This plucky little fellow stuck like a leech through that final round, but I was hitting the ball so well I gave him few chances to break through. Several long putts at the right time also helped.

As we turned for home on this final round, the realization suddenly came to me that I was about to win my first tournament.

Confidence Half the Battle.

When it was eventually announced that I had won I was showered with congratulations. I was proud of that fight.

That victory did more for me than merely enrich my financial status.

Champion Prefers Pitch to Run-Up on All of His Shots—Confidence Is Half the Battle.

It made me realize that I had the game and the shots, and that if I could win at New Orleans, I could win elsewhere. For the first time I began to think seriously about winning the national open championship.

I knew the field at Chicago would not be much better than it was at New Orleans. The more I thought about the matter the more my confidence grew. And let me say right here that confidence is half the battle.

From New Orleans I went to Mobile where I finished second.

Here again I made a fatal mistake. Having won at New Orleans, I began to think I should win all the time. I made a few slips, but instead of forgetting them and concentrating on the shots ahead I got peevish and irritable. While in that mood I wasted several more shots and wound up by finishing two strokes back of the winner, whereas, had I not got careless, I might have won.

Jacksonville was the next stop and in the first round I was paired with Walter Hagen. That was the first time I had ever played with this noted star. We were both having our troubles. This steady competitive play in such rapid order left me tired and I played listlessly in the meeting.

Prefers Pitch to Run-Up.

Especially was I putting poorly. One generally putts badly when one is tired out. I didn't have that delicate touch and I was hitting the ball firmly. Putting depends largely on one's physical condition. If you are feeling well you will generally putt well. And the man who is putting is generally the winner.

I remember distinctly that in this Jacksonville tournament I missed three putts that weren't more than 10 inches away from the cup.

George Kerrigan, a young homebred, was the winner at Jacksonville. He played remarkable golf. Kerrigan is bound to be heard from later on. He's got power and the game.

From Jacksonville in company with several of the other professionals I went to Pinehurst. I did not do very well in the North and South Open, principally because I never cared much for the runup game. I prefer to pitch to the green, instead of running all of my shots up.

Towards the close of the winter season I received an offer from the Highland Country Club of Pittsburg which I accepted. I left for Pittsburg immediately after the Pinehurst tournament and after getting acquainted with my new job began practicing for the national open championship at Chicago.

Sally's Alley Is Choice in Winter Books on Derby

Kilmer's Trainer Insists He Will Saddle Winner in Next Kentucky Classic.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Sally's Alley is the favorite in the winter books for the Kentucky Derby.

And Eugene Wayland, Willies Sharpe and Kilmer's trainer, has gone on record as the first trainer in America to announce definitely that he will saddle the Derby winner next summer.

He insists upon two conditions—a sound horse and a sound track. As for the field he broadcasts it to the world that he hopes Messenger, Enchantment, Dunlin, Goshawk, Zev and every other colt or filly that questions Sally's superiority will be at Louisville and ready for the race.

"If Sally's Alley has no serious mishaps, and the track is dry at Churchill Downs on Derby day," says Wayland, "we'll win. That's all there is to it. The better the field the better I'll like it.

"This is the only qualification I make—it's no go if the track is muddy. The filly can't run a lick in the mud. But over fast going there's nothing that can beat her."

Place With Kilmer Secure.

Any misunderstandings which may have caused a rift between Wayland and Kilmer last fall, and which probably led to the announcement of Willie Shields as his successor, have been threshed out. The picturesque owner of Sun Briar Court and his trainer have sealed their relationships, if they ever were definitely broken off, and Wayland intends to work in good harmony with Shields, who is now handling the Kilmer winter division at New Orleans.

The Kilmer establishment has grown until the Binghamton turfman feels the need of two of the best men in the country to direct it properly.

Besides the older horses—Exterminator, Sally's Alley, Sun Quest, Sun Thistle, Sun Doll and Sunference—Nilmer has approximately 30 2-year-olds which he is planning to race in 1923. Seven of these are in Shields' care at New Orleans, and the others are at Binghamton.

Exterminator Coming Back.

Exterminator, hero of turf heroes, has felt the sting of the firing iron for the first time in his career. On his visit here Wayland verified the report that it was necessary to apply the hot iron to the old fellow after his last race at Pimlico.

Incidentally, by way of clearing up a much discussed question and giving Jockey Marinelli his just due, it seems only fair to set down that the best rider in the world could not have brought Exteminator home a winner in the Pimlico cup.

Judging from Wayland's description of Exterminator's condition before the race, he was already through for the season.

The ankles were fried; immediately he began to improve, and now Wayland seems confident that Exterminator will be ready for the bugle call in April. That he will pass Man o' War's winning mark before midsummer and thereby become the greatest winner in the history of American racing, Wayland has no doubt.

McDermott, Who Joins Cardinals As Catcher, May Be Used at First

Nebraska State League Star. Heavy Hitter, Has Had Experience in the Outfield — Youngster Who Bats Left-handed Able to Hit Southpaws.

PENNANT TIMBER—No. 6.
By Herman Wecke.

What to do with Joe McDermott, a husky young athlete, purchased from the Fairbury club of the Nebraska State League, will be one of the tasks confronting Branch Rickey when the Cardinals get to Bradentown, Fla.

This athlete is quite a hitter, figured on Nebraska League standards. He comes here primarily as a catcher, but getting a job in that department with Clemons, Ainsmith, Vick and McCurdy around will not be easy. But here's the rub——

While McDermott is listed as a catcher, the records of the Nebraska League show that he performed in the outfield in more battles than he did behind the plate. Therefore he can be considered more of an all-round baseball player. The youngster performed as a catcher in 43 battles and played in the meadows in 61.

Because of this McDermott may be given a fling at the outfield, where the Cardinals need strength. It is even hinted that he may be tried out at first base by Manager Rickey.

More about McDermott's hitting. He ranked third in the Nebraska League a year ago, with an average of .342 for 112 games. He went to the plate 424 times and rapped out 145 safeties, which were good for 201 bases. The swats included 21 doubles, seven triples and seven home runs. He scored 82 runs, stole eight bases and was credited with 22 sacrifice hits.

Manager Rickey has already seen this tosser perform. He was with a barnstorming team, of Cardinal rookies, which was taken around the "bushes" by the Cardinals' leader last fall.

While a left-handed hitter, he hits southpaws as well as right-handers. In one of the clashes last fall the Cardinal youngsters faced Fuhr, one of the star southpaws of the Mobile club, and rapped out four hits. Fuhr has had a chance in the majors. For that reason Rickey is convinced that the youngster will be able to hit southpaws.

He may not make the major league grade this year, as it is quite a jump from Class D to the big tent. But if he shows anything he will get another chance if he happens to be "farmed out."

LEWIS THROUGH UNLESS HE ACCEPTS BOUT WITH FOE OF KNOWN ABILITY

day's match here. I told them the public was through and that I was through with him, unless he agreed to matches with wrestlers who could give him a run for the money—Koloff, Londos, Stecher or some other A1 man.

"I got no satisfaction except that Sandow told me to let my candidates, Londos and Koloff, go beat somebody and perhaps he'd listen to me. I said 'How about Joe Stecher;' and they raised the money argument.

"When I got through I told Lewis that he was through in St. Louis unless he consented to oppose some wrestler who could make him extend himself.

"First of all I am going to see Joe Stecher and try to line him up for Lewis. If he consents then Lewis will have to wrestle for the title or quit exhibiting here."

"I am going to send Londos against the elder Zbyszko. If he beats the old-timer as easily as did Lewis I will ask a match for him. If I can't get Zbyszko I will send Londos against Koloff the winner to meet Lewis. Koloff wants this match, but Londos does not. I may not be able to arrange the bout. Wrestlers are like prima donnas."

Same Feeling Elsewhere.

Lewis has heard the same kind of threats in New York. In San Francisco and in Chicago. Everywhere some star or promoter is trying to induce him to take a chance. But he will not even meet strong second raters, unless it is for big money.

It is not that Lewis is afraid. The big California grizzly is just lazy and money-mad. He wants to harvest the entire crop with the least labor possible.

In the year since first he regained his title from Zbyszko he has made over $100,000.

It came easy and with little hard training and he wants to keep producing in the same old way. However, Lewis' tactics are becoming known. If he wrestled here tomorrow he would not draw flies unless he opposed some wrestler whose quality was well known. It will be so everywhere in a short time. Then Lewis may be begging matches instead of refusing them and standing off all challengers.

OLYMPICS OF ORIENT TO BE HELD NEXT MAY

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 23.—(By Mail.)—Chinese athletes of virtually all of the many educational institutions of the coutnry went into training early in the winter in preparation for the Far Eastern games of 1923 that are to be held in Japan next May.

Elimination meetings at various points are to be held in the coming months and the final rounds of the national competition will be staged in April in Shanghai when the team that will represent China at the games will be selected.

In the earlier competitions the athletic material in the south is uniting and it is announced that Hongkong and Canton will send a company of 80 odd, including two women tennis aspirants, to Shanghai next spring to compete in the final rounds here.

Firpo, Argentine Heavy, Will Box Brennan March 12

Miracle Man of South America Owns Knockouts Over Four Third Raters.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Buenos Aires dispatches say that Luis Firpo will leave the Argentine for New York on Feb. 1 to fulfill an engagement to meet Bill Brennan at the Madison Square Garden, March 12, if present plans of Tex Rickard go through.

Record of Firpo Worthless.

Were an American heavyweight to make a claim for recognition on the basis of Firpo's record, he would be laughed to scorn. What has he done? Well, in his first battle he put Sailor Maxted to sleep and received [illegible]. In his second he wafted Joe McCann into dream land and in his third he plastered Italian Jack Herman. These victories, including a soft affair with Jim Tracey, whom he beat, which netted him $100,000 comprise the South American's record. He has yet to meet even a fair second rater.

It is not much what Firpo has accomplished, but the manner of accomplishment, the splendid physique of the man and his hitting ability that have inspired confidence in him. He knows litttle about scientific sides of ring practice and to date he has been unwilling to learn, his idea being that those who could teach him would put something over on him.

Will he beat Brenan? Bill has slowed up and Firpo might trim him, but if he does he is a better man right now than a lot of critics think he is.

31 Players From Southern to Get Tryout in Majors

Circuit's Leading Sluggers, Schulte, Schleibner and Henry, Are Included.

BROWNIES OBTAIN TRIO

12 Pitchers in Organization in 1922 Will Go South With Big League Clubs.

By Herman Wecke.

Southern Association owners do not make a great deal of ballyhooing concerning the players they sell to the majors, but each year this circuit sends up its share of athletes for tryouts in the big tent. The same is true as regards 1923. Reserve lists of the various major league clubs show 31 tossers who in 1922 drew salaries in the Southern. Of this number, 17 were sold outright, 11 were recalled and three were drafted.

Not one club in the Southern escaped the loss of a player. Little Rock, managed by Norman "Kid" Elberfeld, was the leader, sending up eight players for tryout. Chattanooga lost six, Memphis four, New Orleans, Mobile and Birmingham three each and Nashville and Atlanta two.

Of the Southern Association tossers who will go to the spring training camps 12 are pitchers, with the others divided among other positions.

Of the 10 leading hitters in the Southern in 1922, seven will get chances in the majors. They are Schulte, Schleibner, Henry, Lapan, Tucker, Neun and Boone. In all, 10 athletes who swatted .300 graduated to the majors.

Browns Get Three Players.

The Browns get three of the S. A. athletes who are coming up. They are Dutch Henry, pitcher, and Schulte, catcher, from Mobile, and Dudley Lee, shortstop, recalled from Chattanooga.

The Southern Leaguers who come up for trial and the teams from which they were obtained follow:

Memphis—Fowlkes, pitcher, sold to Boston Americans; Dickerman, pitcher, sold to Brooklyn Nationals; [illegible], pitcher, sold to New York Nationals; Taylor, catcher, recalled by Brooklyn Nationals.

Little Rock—Jackson, shortstop, sold to New York Nationals; Cvengros, pitcher, sold to New York Nationals; Schleibner, first baseman, sold to Brooklyn Nationals; Connolly, outfielder, sold to Cleveland Americans; Warmouth, pitcher, sold to Washington Americans; Lapan, catcher, sold to Minneapolis and turned over to Washington Americans; Barrett, third baseman, drafted by Chicago Nationals; Boone, outfielder, recalled by New York Nationals.

Chattanooga—Boone, pitcher, sold to Cleveland Americans; Bedgood, pitcher, sold to Cleveland Americans; Lee, shortstop, recalled by St. Louis Americans; Wight, third baseman, recalled by New York Americans; Shaute, pitcher, recalled by Cleveland Americans; Doran, infielder, recalled by Cleveland Americans.

New Orleans—Tucker, outfielder, recalled by New York Americans; Smith, shortstop, drafted by Boston Nationals; Henry, first baseman, sold to Boston Nationals.

Mobile—Henry, pitcher, recalled by St. Louis Americans; Schulte, catcher, sold to St. Louis Americans; Mullen, third baseman, sold to Brooklyn Nationals.

Birmingham—Neun, first baseman, sold to Detroit Americans; Stewart, second baseman, drafted by Brooklyn Nationals; Stone, pitcher, recalled by Detroit Americans.

Nashville—Lucas, pitcher, sold to New York Nationals; Winn, pitcher, sold to Cleveland Americans.

Atlanta—Hock, outfielder, recalled by Cincinnati Reds; Klugman, infielder, recalled by Chicago Cubs.

The Brooklyn club drew several of the prizes of the Southern. The club obtained Dickerman, one of the leading pitchers; Schleibner, first sacker, who was second in hitting, and Mullen and Stewart, two other infielders, who swatted better than .300. Mullen is a St. Louis boy, who had several chances with the Browns. Henry, the New Orleans rookie, who will attempt to play third base for the Boston Braves, hit .342 and was third among the swatters of the Southern loop.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Where Do We Go From Here?

EVERY day in every way the sport world is becoming queerer and queerer. In a mad whirl to get rid of its spending money, the American sport fans are building up quick fortunes for individuals. Some of the pop-eyed, newly-rich must rub their eyes each morning, wondering if perhaps it all is not some Arabian Nights' fantasy.

Gene Sarazen, barely of age, who a year or two ago was scraping golf clubs and dreaming of a $2500 a year job as a goal, today is realizing $30,000; and all because one day he shot a Chicago golf course a stroke or two better than some others did on the same occasion.

Pancho Villa, a little mixed-breed from the Philippines, unknown and unsung a few weeks ago, now is boxing before $50,000 houses and will soon fight the world's champion, Jimmy Wilde, with fans scrambling for the privilege of paying $25 per seat.

Ralph Greenleaf, three years ago a poolroom hanger-on, now the greatest pocket billiardist of all time, gets $200 an exhibition.

Martin Fator, a little mite of a fellow whose affairs have to be handled by a guardian, makes $25,000 a season by riding for the Rancocas stable at an age when most boys are still reading fairy stories.

Luis Angel Firpo, a bovine giant from Argentine, lived on handouts in Jersey City, while beating three ham-and-egg American foes; then he went back to Argentine. He beat Australian Jim Tracey, another egg, while there; and awoke next morning a national hero, with a $100,000 bank roll.

Jack Dempsey, riding the brake-beams in 1917, became world's champion in two years, and now is a half millionaire. To see him box men have paid $60 per seat without the scalper's margin.

Cases might be multiplied, almost ad libitum.

Because of the public's willingness to spend, baseball and boxing have grown into millionaire sports.

Prices have risen to the point where $5 a seat is considered reasonable for a sporting event.

Promoters grow rich on a single show.

Even college football is getting so much of the public's coin at the gate that its beneficiaries are now asking themselves how they shall spend the receipts.

Someone please call off Doc Coue. If the sport game gets any better, day by day, the public won't have the price of a fried egg.

Some Merit to This.

JIM LINDEN, Loyola College coach and former Marquette star, offers a suggestion for college football scoring changes that has considerable merit. He advises placing different values on touchdowns, according to the manner in which these are executed.

Under conditions now, a touchdown that is made by a march down the length of the field counts no more than a "fluke" score by a weak eleven.

He would value touchdowns as follows:

From enemy's fumble, four points.

Intercepted forward pass, five points.

Earned touchdown, six points.

The idea has some merit. Perhaps it could be carried out better by limiting the gains in yardage permitted, in case of intercepted passes and fumbles, rather than by changing the scoring system.

Some recognition of the unfairness of permitting touchdowns from such causes some day will be given.

Doesn't Need Sympathy.

OFFICIAL scorers are well-meaning lads. They have been known to agree to be lenient in order that this or that player might make a certain percentage, provided no one else were injured.

Thus in the season's last game Hornsby needed two base hits to put him over the .400 percentage figure for the season. Rogers had gone hitless the day before and the scorers were prepared to make it easy for him.

Hornsby, up the first time, almost mowed down the third baseman with a safe swat. Second time up he lifted one past second that none could get. The third time he hit to left field for a safety—and his average was safe.

"Say," remarked one party to the agreement, "that's one lad you don't have to cheat for. He makes 'em when he needs 'em."

As a matter of fact, practically all of Hornsby's hits are beyond question. He's either a sure out or it's impossible to handle his drives.

Willie Hoppe, Amateur.

WILLIE HOPPE is to bring suit to have himself adjudged an amateur. No, not an amateur golfer, but an amateur billiardist. He says he is just as much an amateur as a certain professional who gave exhibitions for six years and who since has been instated as a simon pure. Willie has been playing professionally for 23 years, but a little thing like that does not seem to matter.

However, we don't see how it can be done. The man isn't living who ever saw Hoppe PLAY like an amateur.

Boy, Page the Keeper.

THE spectacle of the ant trying to crowd the elephant off the gang plank has a parallel out there in the far West, where bedlam, in convention assembled, under the name Pacific Coast League, is working up a fine frenzy over the major league draft proposition.

Some high-class froth, frenzy, vituperation and vilification were all wasted on the desert air.

When a fellow has you face down in the mud with a hammerlock and toe hold to help keep you there, he isn't apt to let you up until you say "Sufficient."

If the five dissenting minor leagues consent to the draft, they admit they'll get a raw deal. If they don't consent, they'll get a still worse one—that is, the majors will take all their stars and pay them never a cent.

It's a rare choice.

English Believe Hagen Will Again Win Open Title

Scarcity of Good British Professionals Enhances American's Chances.

By Fair Play.

(Copyright, 1923.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—When Walter Hagen played over in England last summer and won the British open championship at golf some of the critics who had passed rather adversely upon his game on the occasion of a previous effort to win the British title were kind enough to say that they had been quite wrong in the first place and had underestimated the strength of the American player.

Since then Hagen has been defeated, but not for a title or anything of that kind, nor by a British player in an open event. He lost to Sarazen in the match which they played between the Oakmont and Westchester-Biltmore courses and on which enough coin changed hands to make it worth while for some of the winners to go to Europe on a vacation.

Hagen will go to England this year to defend his title. Something of very much consequence will have to happen between then and now to prevent him from going, and the English folks are predicting this early that he may win because they can't see anything in their own country strong enough to defeat him.

Mental Picture Remains.

It is one of the tradiitons of English sport to stick to an idol. Age may slow a man up who plays any outdoor game in England, but the impression of his greatness never seems to grow dim and it is undoubtedly the splendid showing that was made by Hagen in 1922 which makes an atmosphere for him now. The English golfers have created a mental picture of Hagen that they will hold until he plays there again and either intensifies it or dissipates it by losing.

To retain any open championship in golf two years in succession is not an idle task. It is harder work than the task of a ballplayer to retain a leading batting average for two years in succession.

The golfer is swinging all of the time, both in practice and regular play. His practice is perhaps more prolonged and certainly more a work of detail than the practice of the ballplayer. The latter hits a moving ball a certain hour of the day at certain heights in a certain general direction, and usually with all the strength that he possesses. The golfer hits all hours of the day and in all directions—with the idea of straight ahead in mind of course—at varying rates of power. One moment he may be driving for all the strength in him and the next trying to move the ball with the most delicate of taps.

Almost an Englishman.

If a golfer can succeed in all this and also be superior to his fellow man one year upon another his ability is great. He deserves a silver bowl.

Therefore, if Hagen is to go back to England and win the open championship for the second time he will be almost as much admired as if he were born in England and were a native player. They are expecting something of that kind to happen over there.

But suppose that Sarazen should go over and defeat Hagen, the latter runner-up. What would the English golfers think we are possessed of over here when we can send a champion one year to defeat all England, then send another the next year to defeat the one that we had only recently mailed for the same purpose.

MELBOURNE, Jan. 20.—Bert Sparge, Australian pugilist, today for the second time defeated Freddy Jacks, featherweight champion of Europe. He won on points. There were 11,000 spectators.

3 MORE NAMES ON LIST OF ALLEGED KLAN KIDNAPERS

Smith Stevenson, Oliver Skipwith and 'Blacksmith' Smith Said to Have Been in Black Hood Band.

TRUCK IDENTIFIED AS THAT OF STEVENSON

Five Men Now Alleged to Have Been in Group That Held Daniel and Richard Prisoners.

By the Associated Press.

BASTROP, La., Jan. 20.—Efforts of the State of Louisiana through an open hearing here to fix responsibility for the kidnaping of Watt Daniel and T. F. Richard, moved forward today with unexpected rapidity. Three more names were added to the alleged roster of kidnapers and the truck in which Daniel and Richard were whisked away was identified.

Smith Stevenson and Oliver Skipwith, the latter the youngest son of Capt. J. K. Skipwith, admitted leader of the Ku Klux Klan in Morehouse Parish, and a third man identified only as "Blacksmith" Smith, were declared by witnesses today to have been members of the kidnaping band. The State put in evidence information from the State Bureau officials at Baton Rouge, giving the name of the man registered as the owner of the truck.

The name of Capt. Skipwith also was connected with the stirring events of the evening when one witness testified that he saw the klan leader at the fork of the Monroe-Collinston highway in conversation with a hooded man. The captors and their prisoners were last seen at Collinston.

H. B. Blankenship of Bastrop was the witness whose identification of young Skipwith, Stevenson and the truck created one of the greatest sensations since the hearing got under way. Blankenship testified that in the late afternoon the hooded band in several automobiles and with Daniel, Richard and three other prisoners, all blindfolded and with their hands tied behind their backs, went by his home. The caravan, he said, passed within 15 feet of him. The prisoners were aboard the truck. He did not see the license numbers of the truck or cars, but having been for some time familiar with cars of the kind he observed the truck closely in order that he might recognize it if he saw it again.

Gives License Number.

Asked if he searched for it later, he replied that he had, and that of various distinguishing marks he had recognized, he said, that it bore a 1922 Louisiana license tag, No. 74,-657. It was at this juncture that Attorney-General Coco introduced in evidence the telegram from Baton Rouge declaring that car No. 74,657 was registered in the name of Smith Stevenson.

Blankenship was then asked if he had recognized any of the hooded men. "Yes, I am positive; Oliver Skipwith and Smith Stevenson." The witness explained that he had identified Skipwith by the manner in which he was attired, and added that he was on the running board of one of the cars "close to me." Stevenson, he said, was driving the machine. "It was his car, and from his appearance, I am sure it was him."

Stevenson was on the stand early this week and testified that he was in Bastrop the night of Aug. 24, adding that he had been deputized as a Marshal during the day to assist in preserving order at the ball games. He testified that he owned a Ford truck; that it had been used during the day to haul water to the baseball park, but that it was at his home that night. He said if it was used during the night it was without his knowledge and without his permission.

Says Man Asked Her Not to Tell.

The man identified as "Blacksmith" Smith, was named as a member of the kidnaping party by Mrs. B. D. Carlisle. After Mrs. Carlisle had told of identifying T. J. Burnett, former Morehouse Deputy Sheriff, as having been the masked man who liberated her horse from a tangle of several telephone wires at the scene of the wholesale holdup, she told of having met a strange woman in Bastrop several days later. While in her company she was approached by a man who she said she was informed by her companion was "Blacksmith" Smith.

Smith, she said, asked her if she had recognized him at the scene of the holdup on Aug. 24.

"I told him I had," the witness testified. "He then offered me $1.50. I refused it and he gave it to my baby. He told me not to tell on him and I said I would not."

Capt. Skipwith's name was brought out in the testimony of Harry Prophitt of Monroe. Prophitt, his wife and several women had attended the celebration at Bastrop that day, and were driving through the country on their way to Monroe. When their automobile reached the fork of the Collinston-Monroe road, Prophitt said, he reduced speed because another car was parked half way across the road. In running around the standing car, he testified, he saw Capt. Skipwith in consultation with a black-hooded man. He at first thought the man a negro, but on reaching Monroe, where he learned of the kidnaping, he said, he became convinced that the man wore a mask. Capt. Skipwith, he added, was not masked, and he asserted that he was positive of his identity.

Statement by Capt. Skipwith.

Capt. Skipwith said late today that after a consultation with his lawyers he was "going before the American public and explain my views."

"In the meantime, however," he continued, "I am going to leave here this afternoon for my home in Vaughn, La. There is nothing to worry about, except if I have been implicated, I and the rest of the fellows would like to get an immediate trial. We are ready to meet all charges squarely.

"Granting Burnett bail today will deny us any chance for an immediate hearing. While Burnett was still being held a prisoner we had the opportunity of demanding a hearing. He has insisted, however, that he be granted bond because of his physical condition.

"When I return here Monday I think I will be in a frame of mind to issue a statement that will not only voice my sentiments, but sentiments of those residing in this parish."

Burnett, who was arrested the latter part of last month on an affidavit charging murder, became ill while in jail here and was removed to a hospital in Shreveport. He was released today on $5000 bail when he returned to Bastrop.

Identification by Witnesses.

Testimony brought out at the hearing up to the middle of this week was devoted to general activities of masked men in the parish. Attempts to identify members of the band which kidnaped Daniel and Richard began Thursday and Newt Gray was the first one named. Burnett's name was brought out next and the other three came today.

Sidney Rogers, the Mer Rouge youth who reported yesterday that he had been held up near Mer Rouge Thursday night by a masked party, but was permitted to proceed when he established his identity, was brought here today by agents of the Federal Department of Justice. It had been planned to place him on the stand, but he recited his story to Attorney-General Coco and Assistant Attorney-General George Seth Guion and was allowed to return to Mer Rouge.

Men Ordered to Leave District Tell of Experiences.

A personal experience with hooded men in Morehouse Parish was described by E. C. Osborne, 29 years old.

Osborne, now a resident of Madison Parish, testified he had an order from the vigilante committee giving him 10 days to leave Morehouse Parish. He said he received the notice in February, 1922.

"I tried to make an investigation," said Osborne, "but I was advised to leave, and leave at once."

The witness said he went to his brother-in-law, Bud McCowin, and learned he, too, had received a warning.

The letter addressed to McCowin was produced. Osborne said it was similar to the one he had received. The text was as follows:

"This committee after watching your mode of living and your utter disregard of the laws of our land against the manufacture and sale of liquor, the peaceable and unmolested possessors of property have decided your open violations of the law and your constant depredations upon the cattle, hogs, sheep, etc., of your neighborhood makes you a most undesirable citizen.

"You will, therefore, accept this as a notice and warning to you to depart from the parish at the expiration of 10 days from the time of receipt of same, never to return again.

"If you fail to obey this order you must stand the consequences.

(Signed)

"VIGILANTE COMMITTEE."

Bud McCowin, who followed Osborne on the stand, identified the letter which he said he had received from the vigilante committee. He said he owned a small farm in Morehouse Parish.

Had It "Fixed Up" and Returned.

"I don't know any reason why I should have received the note," he said. "Mr. Lem Adams fixed it up for me and I returned."

Dewey Brown, 23, the father of four children, testified he had received a note similar to that of McCowin. He is McCowin's son-in-law.

"I went to the Sheriff and he told me he would do all he could," said the witness.

Brown added he interviewed several citizens and they told him they would let him hear from them at 9 o'clock the next morning.

"Lem Adams, the next morning told me he had it all fixed. Then I met Fred Carpenter, the Sheriff, and he told me everything was all right."

Brown said he believed a debt he owed Gus Calhoun was responsible for all of the trouble.

ROW OVER KLAN HEARING LED TO FATAL SHOOTING

Former Sheriff Killed When Pistol Is Discharged in Scuffle With Cousin, a Witness in Mer Rouge Case.

By the Associated Press.

MONROE, La., Jan. 20.—Ku Klux Klan activities in Morehouse Parish caused the killing last night of John P. Parker Jr., of this town, by his cousin, Carey Calhoun, of Bastrop, according to evidence adduced at a coroner's inquest here late today. The jury's verdict holds that Parker came to his death by a gun shot wound inflicted in a scuffle with Calhoun. There were no recommendations.

Parker was a former sheriff of Ouachita Parish and a Captain in the Rainbow division in the world war.

Calhoun was released from custody tonight by Sheriff Grant of Ouachita following receipt of an order signed by the District Attorney.

"There are no charges pending against Calhoun," the Sheriff said. "However, the matter is subject to a grand jury investigation."

In a voluntary statement before his release from the county jail, Calhoun declared the killing arose out of a discussion of the Ku Klux Klan activities and particularly of the testimony given at the Bastrop hearing by Jim Norsworthy.

Says Shot Was Fired Accidentally.

Calhoun said the shot was fired accidentally when he and Parker was scuffling to gain possession of a pistol following an argument.

"We had been drinking all day. Wess Saunders, Jack and myself, and in the evening went to Bessie Jones' house for supper before going to Jack's plantation," Calhoun said.

"We took one drink after another and then commenced talking about the Mer Rouge affair. We discussed Norsworthy's testimony and one word led to another until he slapped me and I slapped him back.

"Then he hit me, and I hit him back, and both of us seeing a pistol made a grab for it. During the scuffle the gun went off."

Saunders testified he was asleep at the time the shooting occurred and never heard the pistol fired.

Bessie Jones is a negress. She has fled. Parker was killed with a .45 caliber revolver that belonged to the woman.

The body of Parker will be interred tomorrow afternoon.

Calhoun, who has admitted he was a klansman, was a witness at Bastrop at the open hearing investigating activities of black-hooded bands and he testified to having escorted William Norsworthy to the home of Capt. J. K. Skipwith, exalted cyclops of the Morehouse Klan, and to having arranged a conference between Norsworthy and Skipwith.

Conferred With Skipwith.

Norsworthy and Skipwith conferred over a report that the former had been hired by certain citizens of Mer Rouge to kill Dr. B. M. McKoin, former Mayor of Mer Rouge, for the price of $1500.

Norsworthy testified he made a satisfactory explanation as to his whereabouts on the night of the attempted assassination and Skipwith told him he would be protected.

Jim Norsworthy was the first witness at the open hearing to connect the klan with having black hoods as part of its regalias. He said that he once was captain in the Morehouse klan, but resigned when he was ordered to take several men to the Arkansas line, flog and deport them.

Calhoun is a brother of Gus and Laurie Calhoun, both of whom have been mentioned repeatedly in connection with hooded activities. Laurie was the special deputy who brought Dr. McKoin back to Louisiana from Baltimore. He also arrested T. J. Burnett, a former deputy sheriff, likewise charged with murder.

MISSOURI SLAYER OF 3 ON A TRAIN KILLED BY POSSE

and that Sprague later was killed by a posse.

Testimony of S. A. Sloan of San Francisco and Glen C. Hewson of Tucson, contained in the report, was declared by railroad officials to give a complete narrative of the murders.

Sloan, who was seated in the smoking car chair, opposite Sprague, prior to the shooting, related details of the actions of the demented man, of whom he was in fear for some time. A short time before the shooting, according to his account, Sloan went to the rear of the train to report to Conductor J. F. Waddell that he feared the man might become violently insane at any moment.

Waddell, according to his story, mentioned the matter to Turner, who was seated in the car, and requested that he go to the smoking car and watch the insane man until he completed taking of a number of tickets. Turner complied immediately and accompanied Sloan to the smoking car, where he seated himself two seats behind Sprague, while Sloan returned to a seat opposite Sprague.

The demented man, who had been addressing persons passing by in the car with the request that he be permitted to return to his home in Mobile to his wife and seven children, addressed a number of remarks to Turner. Sprague demanded that he be permitted to leave the train, and declared that Turner and others in the train were trying to kill him and had been since the night before.

Turner replied that he and the others were friends. Without further argument, Sprague drew an automatic revolver and fired at Turner. The first shot went directly through the heart, causing instant death.

Walking to the front of the car, the demented man fired point blank at Brown, killing him instantly, and walked casually to the other end of the car and fired a third shot, killing P. O. Cochran. Neither of the victims was given an opportunity for resistance or flight. Sprague walked to the vestibule and reloaded his gun.

Alighting from the train, Sprague fled across the desert. When last seen after the shooting he appeared to be staggering as if exhausted from the hard running.

Encountered by the Sheriff's posse today, he was shot and killed, no opportunity for serious resistance being permitted.

Information obtained by Southern Pacific officials was to the effect that Sprague had become suddenly insane. A passenger who conversed with him on the train Friday evening before arrival at El Paso from Missouri declared he had seemed rational at that time, and had talked logically on farming and several other subjects. Sprague was described as a man probably weighing 150 pounds, of swarthy complexion and with several days' growth of beard.

Sprague had stated that he was en route to Whittier, Cal., where he had a brother-in-law named Woodward, stating also that he was going to Los Angeles and was in the quest of employment. He was shabbily dressed, a kit of tools, apparently those of a bricklayer, being found in his possession.

Lanark, the small station at which the shooting occurred, is located 28 miles west of El Paso, on the main line of the Southern Pacific.

PASSENGERS PRAY DURING RESCUE OF 33 MEN AT SEA

610 Persons on Liner Kneel on Decks While Crew of Sinking Freighter Fight for Their Lives.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The principals in one of the most stirring rescues ever performed on the Atlantic Ocean, 33 men, stood on the deck of the steamship Giuseppe Verdi of the trans-Atlantic Italiana Line as she came up the bay today. They were the crew of the Italian freighter Montello, which foundered last Wednesday, about 400 miles north of Bermuda. Capt. Francisco Sturlesi of the Montello and the 32 members of his crew were saved by the timely arrival of the Giuseppe Verdi, in command of Capt. Giovanno Manganaro. The rescue was made during a gale amid rolling seas which swamped one boat and threw 11 men of the Montello into the water just as they came alongside the Giuseppe Verdi. Life rings were thrown to the struggling men in the water and they clambered up ropes and ladders dangling from the Giuseppe Verdi.

As the Giuseppe Verdi came up the bay Capt. Sturlesi of the Montello told the details of the rescue.

"We left Philadelphia Jan. 10," said the captain. "On the 12th and 13th we ran into a gale with tremendous seas running. It grew worse on the 14th and 15th. At 10 p. m. on the night of the 15th, a terrific quartering sea struck us on the port side and the cargo of grain shifted. After that the Montello did not answer her rudder and the vessel fell off into the trough of the sea.

Takes Water Rapidly.

"With a 12-degree list to starboard the vessel swung around in a circle. We tried to work the rudder by hand-power, but that failed. Pounding seas heeled us over more and more. The Montello was being washed constantly from stem to stern by huge waves. The pounding broke open the hatches and water poured into the hold. The wet grain swelled and started the ship's plates. She took water so rapidly that the pumps could not keep up with the intake of water.

After a consultation with his officers, Capt. Sturlesi sent out a wireless for aid. He received a reply from the Verdi, stating she was more than 100 miles away.

The Montello sent out a radio message Tuesday that she was sinking fast and asking the Verdi to hurry. The Verdi was sighted at 3 p. m. Seas were running too high to launch a boat, but the Verdi circled the sinking vessel all night.

Shortly after daylight Wednesday the crew of the Montello, desperate, put off a boat with 11 men in it under command of Second Officer Giovanni Fuzzero. It took the lifeboat nearly two hours to reach the side of the Verdi, because of the high seas. A wave smashed the boat against the hull of the Verdi, throwing out the 11 men, who were rescued by life rings and ropes.

Others Rescued.

Those remaining on the Montello tried to launch a second boat, but because of the vessel's list were unable to do so. Then Capt. Sturlesi asked that the Verdi put over a lifeboat. It put off in command of First Officer Geralamo Stagnaro. After a struggle with the smashing seas, the remaining men, including Capt. Sturlesi, were taken from the Montello. So badly was the Verdi's boat damaged that it sank shortly after the men were taken on board the Verdi.

While the two lifeboats were being tossed and wave-washed on their hazardous trips, the 610 passengers on the Verdi, mostly Italians, knelt in prayer on the Verdi's decks. Mgr. Giuseppe Verdi, the ship's chaplain, said mass of thanksgiving after the rescue.

The Verdi was not yet out of sight of the Montello when she lifted her stern in the air and went to the bottom, bow first.

HOWAT AND FIVE ASSOCIATES ARE FREE ON PAROLES

Agree to Abide by Any Court Order That May Be Issued Before Action Is Taken by Kansas Jurist.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Jan. 20.—Alexander Howat, former president of District 14, United Mine Workers of America, and five of his colleagues, who were members of the deposed district board, were released from the Crawford County Jail at Girard this morning, following a parole granted by Judge D. H. Wooley of the District Court.

August Dorchy, former vice president; John Fleming, James McIlwrath, Willard Titus and Hearl Maxwell, district board members were released with Howat. The six men had served 266 days of a year's sentence for violation of the District Court injunction prohibiting the calling of strikes.

Six applications for release of the former mine workers' officials were presented to Judge Wooley here this morning by Phil Callery, counsel for the men, and were granted without comment or demonstration. Only a few persons were in the courtroom at the time. Although the report was generally circulated that the men were to be released, few persons knew of the time set.

Judge Wooley stated tonight that the applications for release referred only to the sentences for one year, and did not mention the indefinite sentence imposed against the men requiring their imprisonment until they cosented to testify before the Kansas Industrial Court.

"Although there was no direct reference to the indefinite sentence mentioned in the applications," Judge Wooley said, "they practically purged themselves of that in stating that they agreed to abide by any court order which might be issued and to appear whenever called upon."

Judge Frank Boss, o fthe Cherokee County District Court, announced tonight at Columbus that he was not in a position to require Howat to complete a six months' jail sentence in that county for conviction of violating the industrial law, until the State makes the first most.

Howat and August Dorchy were released from the Cherokee County jail after serving about four months of their sentence, when they appealed their case to the Kansas Supreme Court. Dorchy's appeal was acted upon by the State Supreme Court several weeks ago, the action being refused. The case has since been carried to the United States Supreme Court.

Howat, on the other hand, dismissed his appeal and was in the act of returning to Columbus to complete his sentence when Crawford County officers placed him under arrest and brought him to Girard to start serving the sentence of one year imposed against him and the other five officials.

Judge Boss explained tonight that Howat was under bond to appear before the District Court at Columbus when his plans were frustrated by Crawford County officers, and that he is now under obligation to comply with that bond. If he does not appear before him as required by the bond, Judge Boss declared, the State can declare the bond forfeited and move for the issuance of a bench warrant.

11 IRISH EXECUTIONS BRING TOTAL SINCE NOV. 17 TO 45

Four Persons Put to Death at Tralee, Five at Athlone and Two at Limerick.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Jan. 20.—Eleven executions were carried out in Ireland today. Four persons were put to death at Tralee, five at Athlone and two at Limerick. These bring the total executions since last Nov. 17 to 45.

It is remarked that four men sentenced to death at Tralee before Christmas and whose execution was deferred, are still held as hostages, their names not appearing in today's lists. Irregulars today with explosives partly destroyed the fine railway viaduct spanning the sea at Malahide, near Dublin. Traffic on the Great Northern Railway is greatly impeded.

By the Associated Press.

BELFAST, Jan. 20.—Four men were executed today in the Tralee jail, County Kerry, for possessing arms and ammunition. They were James Daly of Killarney, John Clifford of Cahirsiveen, Kerry; Michael Brosnan, Ballymacelligiott, Kerry, and James Hanlon of Causeway, Kerry.

DEGOUTTE SAYS HE REGRETS TO SEE AMERICANS DEPARTING

By the Associated Press.

DUESSELDORF, Jan. 20.—"Regret and gratitude are the sentiments animating me as the Americans are about to leave Coblenz and the American flag hauled down from the staff above Ehrenbreitstein," said Gen. Degoutte, Commander-in-Chief of the allied armies on the Rhine, to the Associated Press today.

"Regret, that my comrades in arms—the brilliant soldiers whom I commanded during the war—are leaving us; gratitude, for what they have done in the cause of France during the war and on the Rhine since the armistice."

tions—the misunderstandings and the embarrassments. For instance, the trials of dealing with a President who is not noted for the profundity of his knowledge of foreign relations. The several embarrassments over Observer Boyden of the Reparations Commission and his alleged unauthorized plunging into other nations' business; the failure of the arms conference to date, also the origin of that conference with Borah, who was thereafter dropped while the administration appropriated the idea.

Added to the vexations of these and many more thing is the conviction plainly evident among the Republican bosses that Hughes has become a heavy party responsibility, a positive menace to success in 1924, and linked with this is a Republican notion that Hughes conveniently can be made the scapegoat of the administration and Mr. Harding saved from some of the odium manifest at the last election. The farmer, perhaps the most important of all politically, is now laying his troubles to lack of a foreign market and hence at the door of the Secretary of State.

It is known that President Harding has not warmly favored some of the policies laid down by Hughes. In fact, he has regarded some of them as mistakes, if not blunders. It further is known that Ambassador George Harvey frankly informed the Secretary of State that chalk and water propositions would not meet the present exigencies in Europe, where strong-arm methods are now necessary.

President's Wishes Ignored.

Shortly preceding the "plain talk" conference between Hughes and Harvey, it developed that President Harding was in a gloomy and despondent frame of mind because of Hughes' attitude on the plan of France for the invasion and coercion of Germany.

As reported in Congressional and other cirles, the President urged sending a firm protest to France against the seizure of German territory. It was argued by the President, according to these reports, that the United States was under a moral obligation to protest, because Germany had accepted the armistice terms after the 14 points were outlined by President Wilson and offered as an initial basis for peace adjustment, because Germany has followed the counsel and advice of this country. The President's argument is said to have proceeded to a firm objection to the use of force by France. The preferences of the President were disregarded and each day the situation in Europe has grown more critical.

It is said in this connection that President Harding believes a display of firmness would have counteracted much of the disrepute into which his administration has fallen.

Senators Prepare for Attack.

Among members of Congress the opinion prevails that if Hughes steps down in the near future the entire foreign policy of the Government would be repudiate. If the Secretary does not retire there will be an equal, if not greater, degree of condemnation and resentment.

For several weeks a number of Republican Senators have been preparing to desert the foreign policy of Secretary Hughes. They have bitterly criticised the Secretary and have stowed away ammunition for an open fight which now is in sight.

All this comment and flood of bitter remarks reached Secretary Hughes. He resented these observations and firmly defended his policies. At first he was irritated, then became disgusted. Eventually he told friends that he would not much longer stand this undeserved abuse but would retire from the Cabinet.

Whether the Secretary will reverse this determination later and decide to give his opponents a warm and lively fight cannot be predicted. The whole matter of retirement or fighting back may be worked out next week.

It developed today that some prominent Republican Senators have gone to Secretary Hughes for information but have come away empty-handed. While cordially received and treated with great courtesy, nothing bearing on the foreign situation was disclosed.

These Senators say they will not even make another trip to the State Department. It was admitted tonight by Republican Senators who oppose Hughes' policy that they can take no effective action regarding Boyden and his commission as unofficial observer. It is agreed that Boyden is the personal representative of the President, and Congress may neither direct his recall nor seek to prevent the payment of his salary. It is a purely executive function with which not even the Senate has anything to do.

The only real action the Senate can take is the adoption of a resolution declaring the sense of the Senate adverse to the further retention of Boyden in Europe. It would follow the phraseology used by Reed in his resolution relating to American troops on the German frontier.

POLICE ADMIT FRITZI MANN MURDER IS HARD PROBLEM

Handwriting Clew Said to Figure in Investigation of Movements of Physician.

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 20.—After working another 24 hours in an effort to explain the death of Fritzi Mann, dancer, whose body was found on a nearby beach, Monday, the police late today said they were up against what appeared to be a hard problem.

Detectives from the District Attorney's office were reported hard at work on new clews, but nothing of their nature was given out, nor would anyone confirm officially that new clews were available.

That handwriting may play an important part in solution of the problem was the declaration today of Chief of Police Patrick.

He announced that he would call an expert today to examine the writing of "William Johnstone and wife," on the register of the Lajolla cottage, to which Miss Mann went or was taken Sunday evening. Chief Patrick last night compared that entry with the writing of Dr. L. L. Jacobs, health service physician at Camp Kearney, and said that the resemblance seemed to him to be "striking."

Detectives and representatives of the District Attorney's office went last night to Camp Kearney in an effort to trace Dr. Jacobs' movements of last Sunday evening. The doctor had said that he was in the camp that evening and in that statement he was supported in part by Dr. Robinson of the Camp Hospital. The investigators on their return late last night said that nothing conclusive had been established by their inquiry.

QUARTERMASTER'S DEPOT HERE TO BE MOVED TO CHICAGO

Transfer to Take From City Agency That Has Made Purchases Totaling $1,500,000 Annually.

SECRETARY WEEKS TELLS OF PLAN

Move Is Part of Program for Economy, Secretary Says —Orders Not Received Here Yet.

The United States Quartermaster's Depot at Second and Arsenal streets is to be transferred to Chicago, Secretary of War Weeks told Representative Hawes in Washington yesterday.

Removal of the depot will take away from St. Louis a purchasing department which bought annually $1,500,000 worth of supplies from local concerns. If the distributing department also is closed, the yearly shipment of $18,000,000 of army stores will be taken over by the Chicago depot.

Official orders had not been received by Col. C. C. Jones, Depot Quartermaster, yesterday, and it is not clear whether the War Department intends to abandon the depot entirely or retain it as a storage plant. At present supplies stored here represent an investment of $18,000,000. The six-story main warehouse and other buildings cover about 20 acres.

Move for Economy.

In explaining his decision Secretary Weeks said that the move was an economy measure, to save $190,000 overhead expenses in operating the depot here. This is in line with the retrenchment policy of the department, which recently has placed depots at Boston, Charleston, Atlanta and Seattle on the inactive list. At present the active army depots are those at New York, Washington, St. Louis, San Francisco and Chicago.

The Medical Supply Depot, which occupies part of the Quartermaster's Depot building, will be enlarged and is to remain here, Secretary Weeks announced.

The Chamber of Commerce has opposed the closing of the local depot since the first intimation that such a step was contemplated. President Vesper addressed a telegram to Weeks yesterday, asking for a reconsideration before official orders are released. The chamber points out that, while an immediate saving in overhead expense might be realized, the policy is shortsighted in view of the city's position as a distributing center. The central location of St. Louis and the Mississippi River as a highway, indestructible in time of war, are advantages which should be weighed against consolidation with Chicago, the chamber believes.

200 Persons Employed at Depot.

More than 200 men and women are employed at the depot. Col. Jones said yesterday the local post has acted as distributor for army supplies to southern and central western corps areas and some times shipped to the Pacific Coast and far-western islands where this country maintains military posts. Since the retirement of the Seventh Army Corps depot at Omaha, St. Louis has acted as supply point for the area.

The Colonel declined to express an opinion as to the wisdom of the move. He seemed unwilling to believe the depot was to be abandoned, but said he thought it would be retained as a storage point.

How Buying Is Done.

The purchase of fuel, hardware and food supplies for the army as arranged for under War Department regulations is done on the sealed bid basis as far as possible, Col. Jones explained. When supplies are required the depot publishes a list and sends it to the firms who have asked to be placed on its mailing roster.

Under this system the St. Louis bidder may have as good a chance as Chicagoans after the depot has been moved. Secretary Weeks mentioned this point in his communication to Hawes and declared that at least 60 per cent of the business done by the depot would remain in St. Louis.

Other purchasing is done on the open market, he said. In an emergency where there is not time to send out published requests for quotations the Depot Quartermaster buys his goods personally from his own choice of firms.

Col. Jones said he considered St. Louis a better distributing and purchasing center than Chicago.

PRESIDENT OF BANK INDICTED

Director of Defunct Institution Also Charged With Larceny.

By the Associated Press.

MUSKOGEE, Ok., Jan. 20.—C. T. Thompson, president of the defunct Central Exchange Bank, and J. A. Dewitt, stockholder and director, were indicted here today by a special grand jury in connection with the bank's failure. They are charged jointly in one bill with grand larceny. In addition, eight indictments were returned against Dewitt, charging grand larceny, and Thompson was charged with embezzlement in another.

Both surrendered to the Sheriff and were released under bond. The bank failed last August.

Papal Envoy Whom President Obregon Expels From Mexico

MGR. ERNESTO FILIPPI.

By the Associated Press.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Jan. 20.

MGR. ERNESTO FILIPPI, apostolic delegate to Mexico, expelled from Mexico by President Obregon when, according to Filippi, Obregon objected to the founding in Mexico of the Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Daughters of America, alleging that the clergy was meddling in politics, is here today indefinitely—the guest of Father Eugene Speiss, vicar-general of the Corpus Christi diocese.

Filippi made plain that he did not wish to air his quarrel with Obregon while in this country. Through his spokesman, Father Speiss, he merely expressed his surprise at the expulsion, declaring the people of Mexico are a good people, but are "under the control of a few men like Obregon."

Filippi intends to return to Rome.

NINE MEN TO BE TRIED IN NEXT HERRIN CASE

Only Half Those Indicted on Murder Charge to Be in Dock; Attorney Duty in Ill Health.

MARION, Ill., Jan. 20.—Nine men, instead of 18 indicted, will stand trial in connection with the murder of Antonio Molkovich, killed in the "Herrin massacre." The trial, the second in connection wtih the "massacre," will begin Feb. 12.

Molkovich was a veteran of three world war engagements and went through them without wounds.

Five men, who were defendants in the first trial in which the murder of Howard Hoffman was charged, were acquitted.

The nine men who will be tried, according to Assistant Attorney-General C. W. Middlekauff, are Joe Brown, a negro, Percy Hall, Dallas McCree, Hugh Willis, Oscar Howard, Philip Fontanetta, Otis Clark, Peter Hiller and Bert Grace. The last three were among the five acquitted Friday of the murder of Hoffman.

Hugh Willis is the most prominent among the indicted men to be tried in the next case. Willis is a State Board member of the miner's union in Illinois, and is alleged to have planned the attack on the strip mine, made before the "massacre" occurred.

It had been intended to try 13, but after a consultation the attorneys for the State reduced the number to nine, leaving off two of the men acquitted Friday, Leva Mann and Joe Carnaghi, and another.

Of the five men acquitted Friday, four had been held without bond, along with four others who have not been tried. All of these were admitted to bail yesterday, 19 Herrin merchants, bankers and business men furnishing the bond. Because Marion merchants refused to furnish bail on two previous occasions, they were not asked to do so this time. The bond was $20,000 each, or a total of $160,000.

State Senator W. J. Sneed, president of the Miner's Union in this sub-district and Hal Trovillion, member of the Illinois Commerce Commission also signed it, together with Herrin bankers and the indicted men.

State's Attorney Delos Duty left for the South on a two weeks vacation trip, the first he has taken in several years, and the first actual rest he has had since the massacre last June.

Duty has been in ill health for several months and suffered two hemorrhages before he delivered his two-hour argument to the jury in the first case, and he suffered one hemorrhage after he had delivered that argument. The Attorney General and his entire force insisted that the State's attoney, who has literally worked day and night, should forget Williamson County and Herrin until the week before the next trial opens.

PRISONER ACCUSED OF KILLING BUTCHER AND SON IN HOLDUP

Information Names Drug Addict and "Party Unknown" in Connection With Sokolik Murders.

An information charging murder was issued yesterday against James McMahan, alias Roy Roberts, a drug addict, in connection with the fatal shooting of Sam Sokolik, 50 years old, and his son, Julius, 21, in their kosher meat shop at 1113 Biddle street, last Thursday night. A Coroner's verdict held McMahan and a "party unknown."

As is known, the Sokoliks were wantonly slain by two highwaymen, who deliberately shot the butchers, although no resistance had been offered when they were commanded to "stick 'em up."

McMahan, extremely nervous from having been without narcotic stimulant since his arrest a few hours after the murder, collapsed at the inquest and had to be given medical treatment before being returned to a cell.

At Police Headquarters, just before the inquest, McMahan was led into a room where Mrs. Rachel Sokolik, widow and mother of the slain men, was waiting to see if she could identify him. She glanced at the prisoner and became hysterical, falling from a chair and screaming: "Take him away, he's one of them."

Daughter Calls for Knife.

Sophie Sokolik, after trying to pacify her mother, also lost self-control. She called for a knife, exclaiming: "I'll kill him."

Abraham Sokolik, 15, who hurled a meat cleaver at the robbers when they were running from the shop, regarded McMahan critically, surveyed him from head to feet, back and front, and reiterated the statement he made Friday night, when McMahan was exhibited at the Carr Street Station with 12 other prisoners, that McMahan "looked like one of the robbers."

To test Mrs. Sokolik, Detective Chief Hoagland ordered McMahan sent from the room and brought back later attired in a tan raincoat in place of the black overcoat he had previously worn. She again collapsed, and sobbed: "I know him by his face."

Prisoner Denies Guilt.

McMahan was arrested in a police round-up. He was found in a saloon at 1106 O'Fallon street at 11 p. m., Thursday, three hours after the murder. Witnesses had seen the robbers run through an alley leading to O'Fallon street.

After the scene at Police Headquarters, McMahan broke down and cried. "I didn't do it," he said. "I was not near the meat shop."

He said he was begging on Olive street, between Twelfth boulevard and Eleventh street, from shortly after 6 until 11 o'clock the night of the murder. He collected $1.15 in dimes and nickels, he said, and then went to a house on O'Fallon street, where he purchased a package of morphine and another of cocaine, paying 50 cents for each package. The address he mentioned is being withheld pending investigation. He said he had been a baker and acquired the drug habit when serving with the army overseas. A search of his room in a Market street lodging house disclosed that his wardrobe consisted solely of the ragged garments on his back.

THANKS COUNTY FRAUD FINDERS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 20.—Attorney-General Barrett tonight made public a letter to Randolph Laughlin and Amandus Brackman, whom he appointed several months ago to assist in the prosecution of gambling investigations and election frauds in St. Louis County, accepting their resignations as assistant Attorneys-General. Commending them for their work, Barrett said:

"You brought before the grand jury detailed evidence of a most shameful fraud committed in the August primary, with the result that definite prosecutions are now under way."

EXPECTS ST. LOUIS TO BE SCOUT CENTER

Chief Executive of Organization Says 25 Pct. Membership Increase for All Cities Is Sought.

St. Louis is certain to be one of the Boy Scout centers of the country, said Chief Scout Executive James E. West, who was here yesterday on a tour of the United States in connection with annual council meetings.

"There are 2400 scouts in St. Louis when there should be 24,000," he continued. "The attainment of that number depends only on the willingness of clean-cut men to volunteer as leaders. Whatever the movement has done toward developing American citizens that America may be proud of is due to the unflagging loyalty of the scoutmasters. If more of them come forward in St. Louis, we can get as many boys as they can take care of."

General Increase Sought.

The organization is out for a 25 per cent increase in membership in every city by Feb. 15. A training course for scoutmasters is to begin here Feb. 5.

"Every year 40,000 boys leave the New York Schools at 14 to go to work, driven by economic conditions beyond their or their parents' control," West declared. "From that time on these boys, and a relative proportion all over the country, are never exposed to any influence in any way related to their responsibility as citizens. They just stumble into citizenship.

"It is this gap that those of us interested in scouting try to fill, supplementing the church and the school. One-third of the population is foreign born or under foreign influence. We mean to heat the fires of the melting pot—to make those boys feel they are a part of Uncle Sam's team."

Addressed Scoutmasters.

West spoke last night at a meeting of scoutmasters in the American Annex Hotel, and at noon at the annual council meeting in Hotel Statler. Scouts of St. Louis, Clayton, Kirkwood and Webster Groves almost filled the Central High School auditorium at a mass meeting held in his honor in the morning.

St. Louis boys presented a large mantel clock to him, and the Webster Groves delegation gave him an umbrella. West made the boys do most of the talking. He told the story of a lame boy's rise from an orphan asylum to the post of chief scout executive. "That boy stands before you," he concluded. A yell leader sprang to the platform and the scouts cheered lustily.

"Pain" Subject of Health Lecture

"Pain" will be the subject of the third lecture of the public health course, being given by the faculty of the School of Medicine of Washington University. Dr. Edwin P. Lehman, instructor in clinical surgery, will speak at 3:30 p. m. today in the medical school auditorium, Euclid avenue and King's highway.

TELEGRAPH HOLDS OUT LLOYD GEORGE ARTICLE

London Paper Considers Situation Too Delicate for Caustic Attack on French Action.

(Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Fearing Lloyd George's frank discussion of the Ruhr Valley might have disastrous effects upon the relations between England and France, the London Daily Telegraph today declined to publish the seventh article of the series being written by Lloyd George for the United Feature Syndicate on current international events.

The Telegraph's announcement says: "Today the seventh of the series of articles which Mr. Lloyd George is contributing to the Daily Telegraph on current political questions of national and international interest was due to appear in our columns. It deals with the action which the French have already taken and will take in the Ruhr, and condemns it in unsparing language.

"Mr. Lloyd George, as is well known, is taking a holiday in Spain and in the interval which has elapsed since he wrote his article the gravity of the situation in the Ruhr has manifestly deepened hour by hour. In view, therefore, of the delicacy and difficulty of the international situation and of the importance of maintaining, notwithstanding present differences, the friendship sealed by the common services of the two nations in the war, the editor of the Daily Telegraph has decided not to publish the article."

The Daily Chronicle, however, publishes Lloyd George's seventh article and in a half-column editorial says: "In writing the article we publish today, Mr. Lloyd George, we believe, has rendered a service to his countrymen and the world."

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Lord Burnham, owner of the London Telegraph, is in New York. He admitted cabling the order to the Telegraph to omit the seventh Lloyd George article, but preferred not to discuss the matter beyond the Telegraph's announcement.

The article by Lloyd George to which the cablegram printed above refers appears in this edition of the Post-Dispatch in full on page one of Part 2—the Editorial Section.

COULDN'T FIND FIRE ALARM, EIGHT LIVES LOST BY DELAY

Flames Spread in Lawrence, Mass., While Discoverer Ran Around 15 Minutes Vainly Seeking Box.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Jan. 20.—Theories of incendiarism in connection with the tenement house fire in which eight lives were lost early today were dismissed later, when the early spread of the flames was extinguished, as due to the fact that the man who discovered them ran around for 15 minutes trying to find the nearest fire alarm box. Owen Farris told State and local officials that he saw the fire in the coffee house on the first floor and tried to find a box from which to pull the alarm. He never did find it, he said, and he eventually met a patrolman and told him. When the first apparatus arrived the flames had run well through the five-story building.

The family of Angelo de Gloria—Mrs. de Gloria and four children—was wiped out by the fire, except for the father, who was on the injured list at a hospital here tonight, the result of jumping from the third floor. The other victims were Joseph Reyssa and his son Romanus, and Mrs. Mary S. Kelid.

64 BOND ISSUE MEETINGS TO BE HELD THIS WEEK

Eight Gatherings in Support of Proposed Municipal Improvement Program Are on Today's Program.

BLANKET CONTRACT FOR PRINTING LET

Carondelet Concern Gets Job After Protest From Union Labor Against Giving Any Work to Con P. Curran, Open Shop Bidder.

Sixty-four municipal bond issue meetings have been arranged for this week by the Bond Issue Campaign Committee, principally among smaller organizations. Eight meetings are planned for the week prior to the election on Feb. 9, including one of all medical and health organizations, called for Feb. 5 at Central High School by the St. Louis Medical Society.

Mayor Kiel yesterday announced the appointment of Frank Gerhart of the Tenth Ward Improvement and Taxpayers' Association, and Alvin C. Carpenter, a director of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, as members of the Citizens' Supervisory Committee. This committee will supervise the expenditure of all bond issue funds voted in the bond issue election. Gerhart succeeds Paul Bakewell Jr. of the Bureau of Municipal Research, resigned. Carpenter was appointed as an additional member, the committee created by the Mayor Jan. 11, now numbering 17.

Contract Let for All Printing.

A contract for all the printing for the special election was awarded yesterday by the Board of Election Commissioners to the Carondelet Printing Co., which with $1100.06, was the low bidder, by approximately $200, on the entire job, but was underbid $39.50 by the Con P. Curran Printing Co. on printing of 262,000 ballots.

A lump award of the work was made after Joseph J. Hauser, president of the Central Trades and Labor Union, and Percy Pepoon, president of the Typographical Union, protested to the board against any award to the Curran company, which is operated as an open shop. The Commissioners said Hauser and Pepoon declared union men would oppose the bonds if the ballots were printed by an open shop concern.

The Curran company bid only on the ballots, its bid totaling $702.16, while the Carondelet Company's bid on this item totaled $741.46.

Technic of Tin Horn Toot With Pop-Wet Whistles, Treated in Depositions

Counsel and Witnesses in Suit Over Chase Hotel Raid, Treat at Great Length the Art of Horn Blowing

The tin horn toot of a New Year's eve celebrator whose whistle had been wet with only soda pop was compared unfavorably with the shrill, penetrating blast of the free partaker of liquor, yesterday in the taking of depositions in the $20,000 damage suit brought by John Pazdera Jr., 1211 Hamilton avenue, against Rev. W. C. Shupp and City Detective Edward Sullivan.

Pazdera was shot in the left knee when dancing at Hotel Chase New Year's eve during the progress of a raid by prohibition agents and city detectives. Sullivan subsequently admitted firing the shot. The Rev. Mr. Shupp, who is superintendent of the Missouri Anti-Saloon League, is included as a defendant on the ground that he conspired with Sullivan and others to "assault and batter" Pazdera.

The depositions are being taken in the Central National Bank Building before Commissioner Hugh K. Wagner.

Testimony About Toots.

The testimony as to "toots" was given by Herbert H. Piou, 720 Interdrive, University City, while being cross-examined by Charles M. Hay, counsel for Superintendent Shupp. Piou has been on the stand at intervals for three days. He previously had testified that he had attended the celebration at Hotel Chase and had been struck by an officer after he had remonstrated with a second one for having grasped Mrs. Piou's arm.

He also testified that he debated whether to attend the celebration because he recently had been confined to a hospital suffering from a stomach ailment. He finally decided to go, he said, and "spent a dull, dead, dismal evening."

After a series of preliminary questions Hay asked Piou what he had to drink at the Chase. "Oh, ginger ale, soda pop and things like that," Piou answered.

"Ginger ale, pop and kindred uninvigorating beverages," Hay echoed. "Did you take anything else?" "Well, coffee."

"Any tea?" "No, that was all. On the whole it was a very dead and uninteresting evening. But then I would not say that all the drinks were uninvigorating."

"Ah, then you were pepped up and inspired to some extent. And when you became sufficiently invigorated you got up and danced?" The witness nodded.

"What did you do at 12 o'clock?" "Well, I attempted to show some slight evidence of enthusiasm, but couldn't quite make it. I believe I finally did succeed in standing up and giving one toot on a tin horn."

Just a Soda Pop Toot.

"Oh," exclaimed Hay, "one toot and only one. I'll venture that it was not a good toot at that. It was probably only a soda pop toot. Certainly not the same lusty toots that would have been possible in the era wherein John Barleycorn, Budweiser and Griesedieck held sway. "A correct surmise. A soda pop toot and nothing more."

"I dare say the young gentleman accompanying you and your wife tooted, too?" The witness deliberated, raised his eyes and then answered:

"Perhaps two toots."

"Well if he tooted two toots, were the two toots too pepless, or would you say that they were stronger than your own single toot?" "A bit stronger, I should say. You see I had just got out of the hospital. I debated whether I should go to the Chase, but I did. My recent illness, coupled with the dullness of the evening, considerably affected my ability to toot. I should say that my friend tooted somewhat stronger than I."

"What was the name of the young lady who accompanied your friend? Perhaps she tooted, too?" "I don't believe I recall her name."

"Then we may call her Mme. X."

"Perhaps," interposed George T. Priest, attorney for Pazdera, "she is unmarried."

"In which case," Hay rejoined blandly, "I shall henceforth designate her as Mlle. X. Now, Mr. Piou, did either your wife or Mlle. X toot?" "I do not recall whether they tooted or failed to toot."

Toots Not Inspired.

"But if they did toot, you would say that the toots were uninspired, dull, soda pop toots?" "You have explained it. It was a sort of a dull, dead, dismal evening all around. It reminded me of a dry banquet I attended two years ago. On that occasion we all sat around with paper caps on and felt like fools."

"Well, now," said Hay, "did the entrance of the officers perturb or interfere with your spirits?" "My spirit was pretty well flagged."

"You misunderstand me, Mr. Piou, I said your spirits, if any." "I had none."

Hay then desired a resume of the evening. Piou puffed a cigar and reiterated his previous conception of it. He would say it was dead and dismal. It was very dead and dismal to the point of boredom, that is, of course, until the disturbance.

"Disturbance," interjected Hay. "What a word to conjure with. What possibilities it holds, what a wealth of meaning and enlightenment it may contain. Mr. Piou, during this disturbance, tell me truly, if you saw any such deadly implements of war, as soda pop, soup and gravy, buns or cakes, flying through the air?" "I don't believe I did."

"You were not personally armed with soup or gravy, or either of them?" "Well, hardly."

"You say this was a very tame evening?" "Very tame until the fight began."

"Then but for the fight the entire evening would have been utterly and completely ruined. But after that, it was somethnig of an evening." "Prohibition Director Haynes thought it was," interposed Priest. "He appeared to show some concern about it."

The discussion conitnued at great length and little weight.

Hearing to Be Resumed Thursday.

Hay then turned to Mrs. Mary E. Chenier, official stenographer, and said: "Mrs. Chenier I trust that you are faithfully transcribing these historical and solemn proceedings. I disilke to even think that they should ever be lost to a deserving posterity."

"I am more interested in preserving my right arm for myself than in posterity," she answered.

"Two o'clock Thursday afternoon we shall resume," said Commissioner Wagner.

"I am sure Mr. Piou will be happy to return Thursday for further questioning," Hay remarked genially. "I don't know about the happiness, but he'll be here." Vest replied.

Since the opening of the hearing Thursday, attorneys for each side have constantly accused each other of attempting to make a "vaudeville show" or a "moot court proceeding" out of the case. The Chase raid itself has been referred to by counsel as the "Battle of the Chase," the "Feast of Belshazzar" and other names. Each has charged the other with attempting to obscure the real issues at hand.

The suit charges that Pazdera was shot as a result of a conspiracy formed by the Rev. Mr. Shupp, Sullivan and others "to assault and batter plaintiff." The defense contends that inasmuch as no general conspiracy to assault all guests is alleged that such testimony as that given by Piou is inadmissible. Associate City Counselor Bartlett, attorney for Sullivan, said that the suit did not permit of a general inquiry into the raid and its purposes. He said that it should be confined to the one charge of conspiracy to assault Pazdera.

Only three witnesses have been heard in three days.

ALIENATION OF AFFECTION IS CHARGED IN WOMAN'S SUIT

Mrs. Emma Westenhoff Seeks $30,000 Damages in Action Naming Mrs. Mary Louise Wadely.

Mrs. Emma Westenhoff, of 827 De Soto avenue, yesterday filed suit against Mrs. Mary Louise Wadely of 1104 College avenue, for $30,000 damages, alleging alienation of the affections of the plaintiff's husband, Gustav J. Westenhoff, a grocer at 4068 St. Louis avenue. The petition states the Westenhoffs were married in 1896 and separated Oct. 8, last, and that they lived together happily until Westenhoff became acquainted with Mrs. Wadely.

Mrs. Wadely declared last night that there was no foundation for the suit. She said she and her husband, J. W. Wadely, had been married for 28 years, without a serious quarrel. They came to live in the neighborhood in which they now reside eight years ago, she said, and bought their groceries from a nearby store of which Westenhoff was manager. A year ago he leased his present store, but they continued to buy groceries from him, and Wadely obtained a financial interest in the store. Westenhoff delivered groceries at her home several days a week and stayed for supper sometimes when her husband was home, she said.

Mrs. Wadely added that she worked in Westenhoff's store on Saturdays.

Last month Westenhoff filed suit for divorce, but abandoned it after his wife obtained a court order for $12.50 a week temporary alimony. At the alimony hearing he was unable to state the name of the person from whom he said he had borrowed $4500, a debt which he listed among his liabilities.

IRISH LABORER'S SON, MASKED, SLAIN AS HE ROBS THEIR HOME

Youngest Kills Second in Family as Four Robbers Are Leaving With Loot.

By the Associated Press.

BELFAST, Jan. 20.—The history of the civil strife in Ireland has brought forth no tragedy which for its bitter irony surpasses an incident reported from Galway today.

A laborer sold a litter of pigs at the market in Portumna, receiving £40. The same night his house was raided by four masked men, who demanded £40 or his life. Trembling he delivered the money and the raiders departed.

As the last man was leaving the young son of the house seized an axe and struck him, killing him instantly, whereupon his companions fled. Removing the mask, the members of the family discovered that the dead bandit was the laborer's second son.

HOUSING TRUST ADVISED TO SELL ST. LOUIS BUILDING

Former President of United Home Builders Testifies at Receivership Hearing in Texas.

CHARGE LOTTERY LAW VIOLATION

Some Holders of Contracts Bring Action, Who Question Legality of Company's Operation.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 20.—The United Home Builders of America, a housing trust with St. Louis headquarters, has been advised by the Missouri Commissioner of Finance to sell its office building at 211 North Seventh street, St. Louis, W. M. Webb, former president, testified today in the hearing on a receivership sought by Texas contract holders.

Webb said the building was purchased from William Sacks of St. Louis for $500,000, at the time Sacks bought a half interest in the company, then located in Dallas, and was elected a trustee. This was in December, 1921, and the company moved to St. Louis last May.

Plans Being Made.

Plans are being made to sell the building within 90 days to the Hawkins Home Mortgage Co. of Portland, Ind., Webb said. Sacks and Webb recently announced sale of their holdings in the company to the Hawkins company.

He testified the company deposited $100,000 in bonds with the State Treasurer of Missouri, at the request of the State Commissioner of Finance, and furnished a surety bond of $50,000 when the company moved to St. Louis.

A receivership is sought by a number of contract holders who charge the company is operated in violation of the lottery laws.

Efforts to show discrepancies in the acounts were made by the complainants in testimony introduced on the financial condition of the company. B. S. Mothershead, an accountant, testified an examination of the books, made by him in January, 1922, at the request of the Texas State Department of Insurance and Banking, showed a balance of $201,246.03 in the loan fund, as of Dec. 31, 1921, "which should have been available for loans." However, he asserted, only $162,854.49 in cash was on deposit at that time.

During 1921 the company transferred $114,802, representing payments on contracts which had been suspended by the holders, Mothershead said, from the loan fund to the expense fund.

Attorneys for the plaintiffs contended this money should have been left in the loan fund.

8065 Contracts Lapsed.

Mothershead stated that the company, up to Dec. 31, 1921, had issued 23,950 contracts, with a total face value of $22,754,900, of which 8065 had been allowed to lapse. He said the company in that time matured less than 1600 contracts. During 1921 the company received $1,546,060.50 as installments on contracts and membership fees, he said.

The witness asserted officers and employes of the company profited by the purchase and subsequent resale of matured and lapsed contracts. The company made a profit of $28,000 on the sale of matured contracts to "bonus" loan makers during 1921, he stated. It was explained these contracts usually were bought up at maturity for about $150 and sold later to a borrower at a profit of about $50.

Other witnesses stated Sacks resigned as a trustee Nov. 15, last, and no longer was with the company. Webb, it was said, resigned in December. While Webb was on the stand he testified Morton S. Hawkins had been elected trustee of the company at a meeting in Dallas, held since the receivership hearing opened this week.

Company Advised to Sell Its St. Louis Building.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFERSON CITY, Jan. 20.—The United Home Builders of America was advised by the State Commissioner of Finance to sell its St. Louis building and restore the money to the fund from which it was drawn for the original purchase of the building from William Sacks of St. Louis, it became known here today. This was done, it was said, in the course of a recent conference while examiners were making a routine examination of the company accounts.

It is understood Sacks received $300,000 in cash for the building on Dec. 2, 1921, the day he became a trustee. The remaining $200,000 is said to be in the form of liens held by various persons.

Interests of Missouri contract holders are not affected by the receivership action in Dallas, it was said, as they are covered by the bonds placed with the State Treasurer when the company entered Missouri.

OPERATORS REJECT ALL DEMANDS MADE BY MINE WORKERS

Mutual Unacceptability of Concessions Sought by Both Sides May Result in Compromise in New York.

JOINT BODY NAMED TO DRAFT PLATFORM

Employers Say Labor Developments May Justify Them in Seeking Wage Reduction in 1924.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Operators of bituminous mines in the tri-state competitive field today turned down in its entirety a list of demands submitted by the United Mine Workers of America as the basis for a 1923 working agreement.

Among the rejected demands was one for the six-hour-day-five-day-week, advanced by the union in 1920, but it was said the union did not attach any great importance to that demand at this time.

The fact that the operators were prepared to ask concessions equally unacceptable to the miners was all that saved the conference from abrupt collapse, for it was believed their very divergence offered a path to compromise."

A subcommittee of employers and miners was named to consider the demands of both sides, and draw, if possible, a platform which would make possible further negotiations when conferences are resumed next Monday. This subcommittee went into session at once.

Membership of Body.

Its membership included: Michael Gallagher, Ohio operator and president of the joint conference, William Green, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America and conference secretary, Walter Robinson, operator and assistant secretary of the conference; John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America; Philip Murray, vice president, and two miner and two operator representatives from each State in the new central competitive field, Ohio, Illinois and Indiana.

The six-hour-five-day week issue was one of many demands, virtually a repetition of those of 1920, including time and a half for overtime and double time for Sundays and holidays, a two-year instead of a one-year contract and so on.

"Labor Issues Progressing."

In rejecting the list, the operators stressed their refusal to consider signing for two years. The labor situation was progressing, they declared, to a point where they might be justified in seeking wage reductions in 1924. To this the labor delegation replied, in substance:

"We'll sign for one year if the operators will guarantee us the six-hour-five-day week, with double time for Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. They were willing to take equal chances with the employers, they said, on the likelihood of a successful campaign for wage reductions in a presidential election year.

William J. Brennan, of Scranton, Pa., president of District No. 1 (Anthracite), of the United Mine Workers of America, was an outside observer at the conference today. His arrival was looked on in some quarters as supporting assertions of bituminous delegates that an attempt would be made at the end of the present session to begin negotiations with anthracite operators toward shaping a contract to replace the one expiring in August.

SWITCHMAN SUES FOR $40,000, ALLEGING HE WAS BLACKLISTED

Ezra Roberts Charges Conspiracy Existed to Prevent Him From Obtaining Work.

Ezra Roberts, 45, a switchman, of 1706 Chouteau avenue, yesterday, filed suit for $40,000 damages against the Missouri Pacific Railroad and five terminal associations, allegeing a conspiracy to prevent him from obtaining employment. The other defendants are Wiggins Ferry Co., East St. Louis Connecting Railway Co., St. Louis Transfer Railway Co., Terminal Railroad Association and St. Louis Merchants Bridge Terminal Co.

Roberts says he has worked for all the defendants and that on Jan. 17 he was discharged by the Missouri Pacific without cause. His efforts to find work have failed, he says, because a blacklist agreement is in effect.

The General Superintendent of the Missouri Pacific Railroad said that Roberts' contention was absurd. He has not heard of the case, he said, but will investigate.

$2000 REWARD FOR SLAYER OF EDNA ELLIS IS UNPAID

Acquitted Former Fiance of Girl Has Gone to Farm "Somewhere in Illinois."

As a result of the acquittal of Albert Ellis Friday of the charge of murdering his former fiancee, Edna Ellis, a reward of $2000 offered by the girl's employers, the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., for the arrest and conviction of her murderer, stands unpaid, and with no prospect of payment. After Ellis was convicted, in a former trial, and sentenced to life imprisonment, the company obtained assignments of interest in the reward to Mrs. Marie Ellis, the girl's mother, from a number of those considered to have interests in it, but others declined to make such assignments.

Ellis appealed his sentence and the reward was held up. The Supreme Court of Missouri reversed and remanded the first case and acquittal resulted in the second trial.

Two hours after this verdict was brought in, Ellis, now 22 years old, was on his way to a farm "somewhere in Illinois," to regain his health. He had been in the city jail more than 26 months. He was arrested Nov. 6, 1920, two days after the murder. His mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kalthaler, reside at 4605 Sacramento avenue. Edna Ellis' mother lives at 2617A North Fourteenth street.

LAYS DRUG TRAFFIC IN PRISON TO GUARDS

Representative Job Believes Some Make More by This Means Than in Salaries.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 20.—Representative Job, of Nodaway County, appearing today before a House Committee in behalf of his bill directed against the traffic in narcotics in the State penitentiary, said he believed that some under officers of the prison were principally responsible for the smuggling of drugs into the institution.

The proposed measure by Job would deprive convicts guilty of buying or selling narcotics of their release under the three-fourths rule. It also provides that convicts who give information leading to the discovery of narcotics shall be given the full benefit of the pardoning system.

The Committee on Penitentiary and Reform, which heard Job, took no action on the bill, but will make personal investigations at the penitentiary next week.

"The drug habit is growing among the convicts to an alarming extent," said Job, "and some drastic action should be taken to wipe it out. I believe that some guards and officials may be receiving more through the handling of narcotics than they get in salaries. The convicts pay enormous prices for morphine and cocaine and they are able to get [illegible] despite the strict rules [illegible] the members of the Prison [illegible]

Representative Smith, of [illegible] County, suggested that the [illegible] law be amended so as to [illegible] trusties from leaving the prison [illegible] without a guard.

"It is common knowledge that trusties are permitted to be on the streets and go about the city at all times of the day unaccompanied by guards," declared Smith. "If this practice were stopped I believe that the biggest source of drugs would be cut off."

BARTENDER IS FINED $500

They did not have the money and were sentenced to serve out the penalties in jail at $1 a day. They began the sentences at once. Rischer sold a policeman a small bottle of whisky for $1, the bill being marked to obtain evidence against him.

LLOYD GEORGE Declares Ruin for Germany Will Mean INSOLVENT FRANCE

BONDS ONLY HOPE OF CITY FOR IMPROVEMENTS, BECAUSE OF TAX LIMIT, ALOE STATES

President of Aldermen Points Out Only $800,000 Could Be Raised in Addition to Present Current Municipal Revenue.

PUBLIC improvements proposed through the municipal bond issue, cannot be provided out of current municipal revenue, as advocated by bond issue opponents, because the current revenues will not be adequate to pay for them, Louis P. Aloe, president of the Board of Aldermen, declared in a statement issued yesterday.

Should the bond issue items not be approved in the special election Feb. 9, it would cost the city an average of $3,475,000 annually for the next 10 years to build out of current revenues those improvements considered vitally necessary, he said.

"It is manifestly impossible for the city to provide funds for these improvements out of current municipal revenue," Aloe asserted. "The present tax rate for municipal purposes is $1.27 on the $100 assessed valuation and the State Constitution limits the St. Louis tax rate for municipal purposes to a maximum of $1.35. This gives the city only a margin of eight cents, which would produce a maximum of $800,000 to $900,000 additional revenue annually for the next 10 years."

"It is obvious," he said, "that the city could not levy a tax for municipal purposes sufficient to produce the amount that would be required annually to pay for these improvements out of current municipal revenue. The bond issue, therefore, seems to be the only solution of the financial problem which the city faces."

List of Vital Necessities.

Improvements listed by Aloe in the class of vital necessities include street widening and opening, $8,650,000; reconstruction of streets, $6,000,000; sewers, $8,000,000; hospitals and institutions, $4,500,000; parks, playgrounds and recreation, $3,800,000; elimination of grade crossings, $1,[illegible]00,000; rebuilding of fire engine houses, $700,000; lighting of 122 miles of streets now unlighted, and lighting new subdivisions, $1,500,000.

These total $34,750,000 and if built, Aloe estimated, they would be constructed in a 10-year program at an average cost of $3,475,000 annually.

"If the bond issue fails," Aloe said, "several problems must be considered—what improvements are urgently necessary, and whether it would be possible to provide such improvements by the only methods remaining, namely, to pay for them out of the current revenue, or by special assessments, the two methods advocated by Albert Bond Lambert, an opponent of the bond issue.

"There are approximately 180 miles of sewers which must be reconstructed.

"There are approximately 150 miles of street which will have to be reconstructed from the foundation up.

"Nine old fire engine houses must be rebuilt, and one new house and grounds provided for Southampton.

Dangerous Grade Crossings.

"Elimination of dangerous grade crossings is imperative as a matter of safety to human life.

"The need of supplanting the ancient system of gas street lights with modern electric illumination is apparent, but to those who argue this is not a necessity, let me point out there are 122 miles of public city streets with no lighting whatsoever, and lights for these streets, and for new subdivisions, at least, must be provided.

"We cannot escape providing hospital and institutional facilities for the sick, tubercular, feeble-minded, insane and the unfortunate.

"Playgrounds, swimimng pools and recreational facilities, especially for the congested districts where the poorer people live, together with properly developed parks for all citizens, is a charge upon the city's honor which must be met.

"Unless the funds are provided for the 36 street-widening projects, this program will have to be abandoned and all ordinances for those widenings repealed, for it would be the grossest kind of an injustice to property owners to tie up their property indefinitely."

The $12,000,000 bond issue proposal for an auxiliary waterworks is gravely needed, Aloe added. This improvement would be financed from Water Department revenues, and does not affect municipal revenue.

If Street Widening Item Failed.

The city would find itself in an unfortunate situation, Aloe said, if the condemnation ordinances for street widenings are repealed, as the charter (section 10, article 21) provides that if the city dismisses any condemnation action, for any reason other than a defect in the action, it cannot be reinstituted for 10 years, except upon petition from owners of three-fifths of the property to be taken, or the city paying all damages assessed.

Cost of large improvements by special assessments is approximately 20 per cent higher than on a cash basis, he stated. The contractor receives special tax bills, when the work is completed, and assumes the cost and risk of collection. The discount rate on these bills, at banks, frequently is 15 to 20 per cent, he said, and provision for this is made in the bids on the improvement work.

Only the street, sewer and river items, now in the bond issue, could be built by special assessment, he declared. It has been estimated, he added, that cost of the street and sewer work would fall on approximately 50 per cent of the property in the city, and in some instances, where assessments overlapped, the cost would exceed the value of the property.

"One-half the city would pay for the improvements," he said, "while the other half would derive a great benefit, but pay nothing."

River des Peres Project.

He pointed out that the full cost of the River des Peres project could not be placed on property in the immediate vicinity of the stream. Only 22 per cent of the drainage area is in the city. The charter provides in such improvements that the city at large shall be assessed for the share of the cost represented by that proportion of the drainage area outside the city.

"The impossibility of financing these vital necessities out of current municipal revenue and the injustice and impracticability of the special assessment plan are apparent," he said. "St. Louis no longer can continue its financing along the same line as in the past. New problems confront us. We must readjust the basic principles of city financing to meet modern conditions, as we no longer can apply small-town methods to a city of 800,000.

"The bond issue, therefore, seems the only solution. It will give to St. Louis, in addition to the vital necessities, many other desirable features perhaps not vitally necessary, but necessary nevertheless to any great and self-respecting metropolitan city."

ALGECIRAS (via London), Jan. 20.

FRANCE has once more jumped on the prostrate form of Germany, and the sabots have come down with a thud that will sicken the heart of multitudes on both sides of the Atlantic whose friendship for France stood the losses and griefs of a four years' war.

Germany having been overthrown and disarmed after a prodigious effort involving a strain upon the combined strength of America, Italy and the whole British Empire, as well as France, and her arms bound with the thongs of a stern treaty, the process of dancing upon her while she is down can at any time now be performed with complete immunity by any one of the Powers alone.

The spectacle, every time it is repeated, provides much satisfaction to those who indulge in the barren delight of revenging the memory of past wrongs. There is, no doubt, some joy for the unsportsmanlike mind in kicking a helpless giant who once maltreated you, and who, but for the assistance of powerful neighbors, would have done so a second time.

But what good will it bring devastated France or her overtaxed allies? The additional coal that will be wrung out of Germany will barely cover the direct cost of collection. Although Germany bears the extra cost, the expense of these punitive measures must all in the end diminish the means of reparations and therefore fall on the victor.

How many students of the problem of reparations have ever taken the trouble to ascertain the extent whereto the maintenance of the allied armies of occupation have already drained the resources of Germany? Between direct cash payments and the cost of supplies, with outlay in labor and material for building huge barracks, these armies have already cost Germany six milliard gold marks—roughly a milliard and a half dollars.

How much better it would have been if most of this money had gone to the rebuilding of the devastated area!

What Germany Has Paid.

It is not without significance, now that Germany is being trampled upon for what the American representative in Paris termed her technical default, to recollect that between the expense of army occupation and contributions already made toward reparations, Germany has already paid the allies three times the amount of the total exacted by Bismarck in 1870.

This is without making any allowance for the vast and highly developed colonies which she surrendered. Let, therefore, no one approach this problem as if they were dealing with a recalcitrant country that was deliberately refusing to acknowledge any of her obligations under the treaty which she has signed.

So far I have referred only to the direct outlay upon these aggressive measures. The indirect cost to the victor and vanquished alike will be crushing.

It is already accumulating. The mere threat has depreciated the value of the franc and thus reduced its purchasing capacity abroad. This loss must be borne by the French consumer. There may be a rally; but I shall be surprised if the improvement is more than temporary.

All that is obvious for the moment to the untrained eye is the way wherein the mark is dragging the French and Belgian franc slowly along its own downward course. As the distance between them lengthens and the invisible cord which ties them together becomes more and more attenuated, it may ultimately snap and the franc will be released from the dangerous association. That I doubt, for a bankrupt Germany means a country which even the most hopeful cannot look to as a means of redeeming French deficits.

Once that is clear to the French peasant he won't so readily part with his savings, and the real difficulties of French finance will begin at that stage. A policy, therefore, which demoralizes the German currency is one which is also fatal to the solvency of French finance.

Let us follow the probable sequence of events. The terrified German mark is rushing headlong to the bottom of the pit where the Austrian krone is already lost beyond rescue.

As long as reparation coal is dug out with bayonets and reparation timber is cut down by swords it is idle to talk of restoring the mark by putting German finance in order.

No tariff, however nimble, can keep pace with the runaway mark. It would baffle the most resourceful Minister of Finance to adapt his budget to a currency which, while he is sitting down to pen his proposals, has disappeared beyond the horizon before he has risen from his desk.

Probable Effect on the Mark.

If the mere threat of force has produced such a panic, what will be the effect of the actual measures? It is safe to predict that the advance of French troops into Germany won't restore the composure of the frightened mark and arrest its flight.

What, then, becomes of the hope of renewed payments of the annuity? At best Germany could only be expected to pay when her foreign trade was so improved that she could provide a margin out of her exports to pay her annuities. Her foreign trade is largely dependent on her foreign exchanges. These are now destroyed beyond prospect of recovery for years.

Britain proposed a voluntary moratorium for a short term of years in order to place Germany in a position where she could at the end of that term pay a reasonable annuity. The French Government has in effect substituted a compulsory moratorium for an indefinite period, with no prospect of payment in sight.

The only chance of securing an early installment of reparation payments was by pressing Germany to put her finances in order and giving her fair time in which to do so. The only chance of negotiating a loan on German security to assist France to pay for the repair of her devastated provinces and enable her to put her finances in order was by restoring the stability of German currency.

French statesmen have deliberately thrown both these chances away. The effect on the value of their own currency must be grave, and Frenchmen will have to pay an increased cost of living for the venture dictated by short-sighted and short-tempered statesmanship.

When one thinks of the consequences one is driven to ask whether French politicians are really seeking reparations or are pursuing another purpose quite incompatible with the recovery of money payments under the treaty.

This is the wrong road toward reparations. It leads in exactly the opposite direction.

Whither, then, does it lead? There is no doubt its effect will be ruinous so far as German industry is concerned. I have already dealt with its disastrous influence on German currency and with the indirect effect of a rapidly depreciating currency upon German foreign trade. Seizure of the Ruhr mines will have another serious effect.

Productiveness Decreased.

Even now the result of the compulsory alienation of so much of Germany's coal supply in the Ruhr, in Silesia and the Saar from German industry is diminished German productiveness. The fuel deficiency thereby created inside Germany has been partly supplied by purchases of coal from outside sources. The necessity for providing gold to pay for foreign coal has added considerably to Germany's financial difficulties.

A still larger foreign purchase will be the inevitable result of forcible diversion of large quantities of Ruhr coal to France and Italy, with further financial embarrassments as a consequence.

That is bad enough. But I fear worse. Will the German miner work with the same regularity and efficiency for a foreign master as he does for a German employer? Is there the least possibility of the production being maintained at its present level?

The influence of this added muddle on world trade is incalculable. Nobody gains; everybody is a loser by the move. How is a Germany whose embarrassed finances are made still more involved—how is a Germany whose industry becomes more and more difficult—how is a Germany reduced to despair to be of the slightest use to France, Belgium, Italy or anybody else?

The feather-headed scribes who have advocated this rash policy assume France will be helped because Germany will thus be reduced to impotence. For how long? Disintegration of Germany is not an unlikely consequence of this move.

I know that is the expectation. Frenchman still hanker after the days when the Saxons and Bavarians and Wurtemburgers were allies and almost vassals of France against Prussia. That was the lure that led the third Napoleon to his ruin. It is the attraction which is now drawing France once more toward a sure doom.

The policy will bring no security to France in the future. It deprives her of all hope of reparations in the immediate present. There will be no longer a Germany to pay. It would be too hopeless a task to attempt recovery from each of the severed states.

But what of the increased security? Nothing can keep Germans permanently apart. They will at the suitable moment reunite under more favorable conditions, freed from external as well as internal debt. France will have lost her reparations and only retained the hatred of an implacable foe who has become more redoubtable than ever.

How would Europe have fared in the interval whilst France was learning from events what every other country can see now? There is no knowing what will happen when a brave people of 60,000,000 finds themselves faced with utter ruin. Whether they turn to the left or to the right will depend on questions of personal leadership which are not yet determined. All we can be sure of is that they can hardly go on as they are, maintaining an honest struggle for ordered freedom and democratic self-government.

French Proclamation Ominous.

The French proclamation, with its threat of "severest measures in case of recalcitrance," is ominous of much that may happen. No people accustomed to national independence have ever been able long to tolerate a foreign yoke.

Chancellor Cuno's action is the first manifestation of the spirit of revolt. It will certainly grow in intensity. The lash will then fall sooner or later and Germany will inevitably be driven to desperate courses. A communist Germany would infect Europe. European vitality is so lowered and exhausted that it is in no condition to resist the plague. Would a reactionary Germany be much better—brooding and scheming vengeance?

Russia, with her incalculable resources of men and material, is at hand, needing all that Germany can best give and best spare. The bolshevik leaders only require what Germany is so well fitted to supply in order to reorganize their country and convert it into the most formidable state in Europe or Asia.

Nations hard pressed on the east have in the past moved forward irresistibly to the west. In obedience to the same law a people hard pressed on the west will look to the east.

When French troops marched on Essen they began a movement the most far reaching and probably most sinister in its consequences that has been witnessed for many centuries in Europe. And these are the people who, after 50 years of patient and laborious waiting, have demonstrated to the world in 1918 the stupidity of abusing victory in 1871.

If the teacher so soon forgets his own special lesson, the pupil is not likely to remember when fury overcomes terror.

Childish for France to Hope to Hasten Reparations by Seizing the Ruhr, Maximilian Harden Says

German Publicist Asserts Ambassador Harvey Is Right in Saying Devil Alone Knows What Will Happen From This Madness.

By Maximilian Harden,

The Noted German Publicist.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World. (Copyright, 1923.)

BERLIN, Jan. 20.

"WE are damned glad America is out of this European mess. The devil only knows what the end of it all will be."

These words of Ambassador Harvey have a new emphasis today. They will be echoed by most of his compatriots. This is what Europe's renowned political wisdom has come to. This is the way she is preparing the atmosphere between the Atlantic and the Pacific for a dollar loan reconstruction of the old continent.

If a child behaved so ill and stupidly it would be sent to a reform school. An impartial observer might really wonder whether the fate of Europe is not in the hands of naughty capricious children.

Economic Enterprises Needed.

The most important economic enterprises need to be undertaken everywhere at once. Russia must have the means of transport for her agricultural and industrial properties. France needs electrification of her canals to cope with her coalless situation. Italy's railroads need the same. Germany's industrial equipment is only a badly patched up makeshift. All need and demand the utilization of Europe's hydraulic power and the world's oil resources.

These and similar enterprises gradually would restore normal conditions. But instead of making efforts in this direction the European states are wasting their time and strength in miserable quarrels about blood-stained memories and obligations.

France's Government, convinced that the German states are bankrupt—with a deficit of billions it may well be called that—and that tremendous fortunes have been sent abroad; and that payment in full of the reparations has been hindered only by the resistance of the big capitalists who are hiding their fortunes, acts to take by force all she can.

German Idea of France.

Germany's Government spreads the idea that France's real object is the separation of the Rhineland from the German republic which she desires to dismember, subdue and enslave.

The victor imagines himself systematically misled and deceived while the conquered is more and more convinced that the whole peace treaty was the outgrowth of brutal malice and abominable lies. These wrong ideas strangle all desires for mutual understandings.

It is childish for France to hope to hasten reparations by seizing the Ruhr, Germany's industrial center, and it is even more childish of Germany to imagine that by mourning, street parades and angry words she can prevent this, especially when Poincare simply is moving in the footprints of his predecessors.

It is all a dangerous move even though the invaders behave most prudently and appeal to the military power only when necessary. The price of coal in Germany must rise. It makes no difference whether the Government imports more coal from England or blames the French for the coal famine in these, the coldest of the winter months, an advance in all articles will follow the rise in coal prices. Thus inflation would be made even worse.

Germany's capacity to pay is not helped by the invasion while the popular passing will rise to fever temperature and increase in bitterness. Allegation that the French on the Ruhr are drinking milk intended for children has angered the German people. Rumors of an impending alliance with the Russian Red army, which has collected munitions and equipment for a new war, have been cheered everywhere. The humor of the masses resembles that of 1914.

Is France unaware what hatred she is sowing? The treasures she is hunting are paper only. Excited imagination has exaggerated the amount of capital sent abroad. German industry could not exist without some credit in foreign countries. Forty per cent dividends seem enormous, but they are paper marks, not gold marks. These 40 marks once bought a pair of good shoes which now cost 4300 marks to resole.

Condition of Children.

The fact is that today the children of the middle class and proletariat rarely have undershirts or stockings, are two or three years behind in weight, and many are scrofulous and full of lice. Under such circumstances the universal popular desire for simplification makes all believe that foreigners and the enemy are responsible for this misery. It is these ideas that may lead any day to bloody excesses whereof the consequences will be terrible.

A public offer of American mediation would seem to be the only remedy. No one could refuse it and Germany could offer France limited control of the Ruhr with American and British experts aiding in directing production. Lacking this Harvey is right in saying the devil alone knows what will arise from this confusion and madness.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Where Moral Censorship Leads.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE Morehouse Parish tortures and murder, which resulted in the deaths of Daniel and Richard at the hands of masked men last August, are the talk of the country, and we are receiving some bad advertising—which we deserve. The facts in the case are nasty—nastier the deeper one digs into them. For example, the real motive for this crime has not yet been revealed, but from my knowledge of the facts, and from the talk of those who know the inside, I may say that hard-boiled, religious fanaticism—of the kind which is found in all small communities—is the foundation of the affair. Examination of the men who are now known to be klan members in Morehouse will show that 90 per cent of them are either Baptists or Methodists, many deacons, and it is well known that in this part of the South these Protestant sects are militant and active.

At the bottom of the Morehouse outrage there was a set of self-appointed moral censors and dictators, who, even if they are disowned by the Baptists and Methodists, cannot be disowned by the community; even if denied by the klan, cannot be denied by Bastrop and Mer Rouge; for they were prominent in those towns and their affiliations are well known, denials to the contrary notwithstanding.

These censors who set themselves up in a free American State above the law and the regular authorities, who determined to enforce their bigoted "moral" rules and regulations on their fellow men, brought about a condition of lawlessness and misery unknown to civilized men until this thing came to light. It all goes to show that religious bigotry is the greatest menace to Amercanism in existence.

Religious intolerance and moral censorship breed bolshevism, violence, night hawking, masking, torture and murder. In order to "cure" a misdemeanor such as bootlegging or roistering, the bigots resort to felonies such as kidnaping, felonious assault, mayhem and murder. Our free American communities were peaceful and quiet until this masked "morality" stalked threateningly among us armed to the teeth and ready for any crime in the night.

Compelling Us to Be Good.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

PROHIBITION is an extreme law; and extreme laws demand extreme measures for their enforcement. Never, perhaps, was the folly of prohibition more convincingly proved than when it employed its forceful methods in the cases of the Cafferata and Hotel Chase raids. Have we, after all our attempts at government, learned so little of the art that we must feel ashamed of ourselves when we are given the following age-old advice about the employment of force in governing human beings by so wise an author as Guizot in his celebrated History of Civilization?

"Civil governments will always be obliged to have recourse, in a certain degree, to compulsion. Still it is evident they are not made up of compulsion, because, whenever they can, they are glad to do without it, to the great blessing of all; and their highest point of perfection is to be able to discard it, and to trust to means purely moral, to their influence upon the understanding; so that, in proportion as government can dispense with compulsion and force, the more faithful it is to its true nature, and the better it fulfills the purpose for which it is sent. This is not to shrink, this is not to give way, as people commonly cry out; it is merely acting in a different manner, in a manner much more general and powerful. Those governments which employ the most compulsion perform much less than those which scarcely ever have recourse to it. Government, by addressing itself to the understanding, by engaging the free will of its subjects, by acting by means purely intellectual, instead of contracting, expands, and elevates itself; it is then that it accomplishes most, and attains to the grandest objects. On the contrary, it is when government is obliged to be constantly employing its physical arm that it becomes weak and restrained, that it does little, and does that little badly."

The advocates of prohibition told us that it would reduce crime and therefore our police forces would be reduced. Now our dry Governor recommends the creation of a State police.

Movie Censorship.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I HAVE been reading all these knocks that the people of St. Louis, and the surrounding territories are saying against Fatty Arbuckle. Arbuckle deserves the right to appear upon the screen again, because he never was guilty of the crime that was committed in San Francisco. A lot of other dumb-bells are never satisfied unless they can stir up troubles upon troubles.

What would censorship of the movies turn out to be? Nothing but worthless photoplays that wouldn't even deserve a wink of the eye. Go to a nearby theater and look at a fully censored picture and you would see everybody asleep.

A MOVIE FAN.

MOB RULE AT HARRISON.

Following the invasion of the town of Harrison, Ark., by a mob, a committee of 12 men, chosen from the mob, took over all civil authority, conducted an inquisition, executed public floggings, and deported entire families in a manner that finds its most striking parallel in the conduct of the Turks in Armenia. All guarantees of civil liberty were suspended. Lawfully chosen officials were deprived of their functions, and some were ordered to leave town. What amounted to a "white terror" was established.

Perhaps the most discouraging aspect of the situation is the apparent conviction of these men that their actions were righteous. They seem totally oblivious of the fact that their course was a high-handed outrage, not only upon their victims but upon the laws of the State and nation. The fact that lawless acts had been committed by the strikers did not in the slightest degree mitigate the guilt of this revolutionary tribunal that overturned all law. There were statutes under which to deal with the offenses of the strikers, and officials to enforce those statutes.

Two incidents of the affair illustrate the hideous injustice which is the inevitable outcome of such procedure. It now appears that C. E. Gregor, the man who was hanged for the alleged offense of firing on the mob, was unarmed, and that the shots were inadvertently fired by another section of the same mob. Two strikers who pleaded guilty to burning a bridge under threat of being lynched if they didn't, now say that they never saw the bridge, and didn't learn of its location until on their way to serve prison terms of from seven to 10 years for burning it.

Gov. McRae's attitude has been remarkable, to say the least. Requested to send troops, he replied that they were unnecessary, as order had been restored—apparently accepting the committee's reign of terror as a restoration of order! The connection of the railroad officials, if any, with these events, will also bear investigation. The railroad seems to have been the only beneficiary of the later phase of lawlessness, and the company's general manager, Murray, as observed by the Post-Dispatch correspondent on the scene, seemed to enjoy a singular influence with the committee. The mob actually was brought into Harrison on a special train furnished by the road.

"Committee rule" at Harrison is Ku Kluxism without the mask. The character of such procedure is judged, not by the provocation nor by the motives of those who engage in it, but by its relation to the laws of the land. The only difference between Herrin and Harrison is the extent of the damage. When anarchy challenged the sovereignty of Illinois and Louisiana, the officials of those states responded promptly and decisively. The eyes of the nation are on Arkansas.

FACTS, NOT PHILIPPICS.

What about the railroads? Are they overcapitalized? Are rates based on the actual value of the roads or on the actual value plus the water? Is it true that, in the case of certain farm products, the cost of transportation to market exceeds the price the farmer receives for the shipment? Why are rates so high? What is the explanation for the mounting operating costs? Is there any prospect for a reduction in rates?

What are the facts? The facts are what the public should have. It is the facts that will finally determine what we shall pay for transportation.

In his maiden speech in the United States Senate last month Senator Brookhart of Iowa said that "the valuation of $19,000,000,000, in round numbers, as the basis of rates is unjust." This valuation, he declared, had been made under rules prescribed by the Transportation Act, the repeal of which was one of the planks in his platform as a candidate both in the primary and election.

Replying to Senator Brookhart the railroad managers state that the actual value of the roads has not yet been determined; it has, however, been tentatively fixed at $18,900,000,000 by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which began the inventory in 1914, or some six years before the Transportation Act was passed. Senator Brookhart's mistake as to the conditions under which this work was done may be dismissed, but his fiat that this "valuation as the basis of rates is unjust" seems to be an ill-considered impression which is refuted by the laborious years of research and accounting of a Government tribunal.

Another severe critic of the railroads is Senator-elect Shipstead of Minnesota, who, like Senator Brookhart, is pledged to the repeal of the Transportation Act. Addressing the City Club at Washington recently, Mr. Shipstead said this: "Farmers ship sheep to market and then get bills for the balance of freight charges due. What they get for the sheep will not even cover the cost of shipping."

That statement has been challenged—or, rather, riddled—by President Felton of the Chicago Great Western Railway, who quoted the price of sheep at the St. Paul and Chicago markets on the date of Mr. Shipstead's speech, quoted the freight rates from different Minnesota points and proved that, so far from exceeding the value of the sheep, as the Senator-elect asserted, the freight on a carlot shipment was, in some instances, less than 2 1-2 per cent of the selling price at St. Paul and, from distant Minnesota points, was 10 1-2 per cent of the Chicago price. Mr. Felton's figures, obviously, could easily be disproved were they incorrect. Since no rejoinder has been forthcoming the inference is that Mr. Shipstead's confiscatory freight rates are purely imaginary.

The unfortunate part of all this is that men who have reached the eminence of the Senate should make such reckless assertions. Senators are supposed to be informed. Their statements carry weight in every community. Yet in the instances here discussed the facts and figures fairly overwhelm these senatorial critics.

Now, as to why rates are so high and why operating costs are mounting, let us consult another Senator, one without corporation predilection or entangling alliances of any kind with Big Business. Senator Borah of Idaho, discussing the Government's budget some time ago and confessing apprehension as to the probable industrial breakdown, brought up the question of freight rates, the reduction of which he unreservedly described as "an indispensable step in the recovery of our producing classes." But he held out little hope for such reduction. Why? One word—taxes. He, too, gave figures—not impressions. He pointed out that, in Idaho, taxes on railroads had increased from $540 per mile in 1916 to $1458 in 1920; in Oregon from $530 to $1061, and in Washington from $772 to $1709.

So much for railroad taxes in the Northwest. The [illegible] has been national. Carrying on the sectional figures presented by Mr. Borah the railroad managers recite that, throughout the country, the per mile taxation of Class I roads has advanced from $680.12 in 1916 to $1179.05 in 1921; that the total burden of taxation of those roads in this period has increased from $157,113,372 to $275,882,150. The estimate for 1922 places the tax at $300,000,000. Wages, too, have been increased. An award by the Railroad Labor Board in July, 1920, added $618,000,000 to operating costs.

If emotional rhetoric could solve economic problems many arduous difficulties would fade away. But rhetoric is not a solvent. The transportation situation is serious. It is not isolated, however. Its genesis is the centralization of power and the expansion of bureaucracy at Washington, with Gargantuan budgets and insatiable lust for more revenue as inevitable consequences. The prospect is dubious. The facts are forbidding. But the facts must be faced. If there is to be a solution it will be found, not in philippics, but in facts.

SIX PROPOSITIONS.

Full information on six propositions of the proposed bond issue was given in the Post-Dispatch last week. Not all of these have the same appeal to the voters, although each has its advantages. Proposition No. 6, for example, must be listed as an imperative necessity. It would provide $8,000,000 for the construction and reconstruction of sewers. This work has to be done. If the money is not forthcoming through the bond issue, it must be obtained elsewhere. The sewer system is in a sad state, and will not wait much longer for assistance. Its repair and extension are necessary to public health.

The conversion of the River des Peres into a public sewer, for which Proposition No. 7 would supply $11,000,000, is very desirable. The present condition is an uncommon nuisance. The improvements sought through Propositions 8 and 9 may also be classed as highly desirable. An investment in the health and morale of our children is always a good investment. No. 8 would make available $2,500,000 for the acquisition of land for additional parks, playgrounds, recreation fields and pools with proper equipment, and No. 9 would supply $1,300,000 with which to purchase equipment for those already in existence.

An aquarium for Forest Park would be attractive and would have an educational value. Proposition No 10 would provide $400,000 for that purpose. Here the voters' problem is simple. The Zoo Board will be able, in several years, to construct an aquarium from its ordinary revenue. All the voters have to decide is whether they want it now or are willing to wait. An aquarium would be an excellent and useful attraction.

The municipal plant, to supply heat, light and power to municipal buildings, and to contain also a laundry garage and machine shop, for the construction of which Proposition No. 11 would furnish $1,000,000, is desirable. A city the size of St. Louis should have such a plant, and its economies would eventually justify the cost.

FORD'S RECIPE FOR PROSPERITY.

As a rule large employers of labor do not take kindly to the employment policy of Henry Ford, yet in this simple New Year suggestion from him they might find instruction:

> We have got to get rid of the old attitude of—"My good man, here's a shilling for you." We have got to pay wages—the highest wages. That is what makes prosperity. People can buy only with what they earn. It is not the moneyed men who make business, but the wage earners. We need more wages during the year, and less of this turkey-at-Christmas system. Less of this degrading "welfare" system that makes a lord of the boss and a pensioner of the workman.

If the only test applied to this formula consisted in the question: Does it work out? a favorable verdict could hardly be withheld. No man in history has made a bigger business success than Ford. But, more than that, the logic and morality of his recipe are undeniably sound. It is true, as we know from experience, that general prosperity and good wages and steady work are inseparable. How much better the world would be for all of us if everybody had Henry Ford's view on this particular subject!

CORRECTING OUR ROAD LAW.

Two objections have been raised to Missouri's good roads legislation by Secretary Wallace of the Agricultural Department. One is that the State Highway Commission has not been given sufficient power in the matter of locating the roads and, second, that an adequate maintenance fund has not been provided.

The second objection has already been met. The people of Missouri at the November election adopted a constitutional amendment providing that money collected from automobile licenses could be applied to paying the interest and principal of the road bonds and to maintaining the State roads and bridges.

The first objection, however, must be considered. A board charged with the responsibility of constructing a State system of roads undoubtedly should have commensurate power. At the same time the Legislature should reserve sufficient authority to overrule or appeal from the judgment of a possibly incompetent commission. It might be practicable, perhaps, for the Federal Government to draft a standard provision governing this point which would preserve a sound balance of authority as between the commission and the State.

There is nothing critical in the Missouri situation. The text of Mr. Wallace's letter has not been published, but, as reported, it seems to be perfunctory. Certainly it is not hostile. The Federal Government, it is explained, will not withhold its quota of aid pending amendments to our road laws. On the contrary, the Legislature is given ample opportunity to bring the law into conformity with the Federal statute's requirements before such action will be taken. Under the circumstances the Legislature should receive the Washington communication in the spirit in which it has been sent and comply with the regulations.

MOPPING UP.

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH
By Clark McAdams

MR. ANTWINE'S OPINION.

"A MISSOURI legislator wants craps shooting made a crime instead of a don't, which indicates how seriously we have suddenly set out to correct one another," Mr. Antwine said. "He wants to make it a misdemeanor to sell dice or to have them.

"Imagine someone in jail for selling or having dice, as if craps were not their own punishment, like eating green apples, and did not belong to the purely mischievous in life as opposed to crimes of maturity! We are sure this legislator could not have been in any of our wars, or craps would be to him rather a prized memory than something that should be put down. Are we really going to try to do something about what has always belonged to the realm of mischief, or is mischief itself to become crime? Let us hope not. Craps have never suffered from anything worse at the hands of society than the frown which is quite enough for craps. To put them under a worse penalty would be to exaggerate their importance.

"It is this exaggeration of the importance of the trivial that renders it impossible for us to take murder as seriously as we should. We have just seen how seriously murder is taken in England, where a man and woman who committed a murder last October were hanged this month. We have also been shown how comparatively rare murder is in the British Isles because it is taken seriously, whereas the opposite is true in the United States.

"In making the mischievous a crime we make murder a don't. The chance of getting arrested upon some score is greater in the United States than it is in any other country in the world, but the chance that the person who murders you will be hanged for it is less in the United States than in any other country in the world. There is in almost every State of the union an outstanding murder case about which something should but cannot be done because murder has become, with us largely a political offense. The Hall murder in New Jersey illustrates the point. There is a murder fixed somewhere in the United States every day.

"This, oddly enough, is related to our national humor. One of the funny stories Col. Roosevelt used to tell was about the Rough Rider who wanted the Colonel to get him off for shooting a man in Arizona. The Colonel did not think he ought to interfere with the course of justice in Arizona, and did nothing about it. Some months later he received a wire from his former comrade in arms. It said: 'Never mind. We have elected the District Attorney.'

"Now that there is a new administration in New York, some people think the State should act in the matter of the Ward murder. It is unlikely that anything will be done about it. But if we make it a felony to carry a bottle of beer in an automobile there will be a great scurrying about to convict people of this heinous crime. The trouble with us is that we are getting so-called crimes against law and order confused with crimes against the person and against society.

"We cannot help wondering where the author of this Missouri bill heard such evil reports of craps. It certainly could not have been from anyone who still has his shirt on," Mr. Antwine said.

In one of the decorations by Richard E. Miller in the Senate Chamber of the Missouri Capitol we see Daniel Boone holding court under the historic tree at Femme Osage. It exhales the primitive charm of a time when it could not have been easy to break the law. The prisoner at the bar is no moonshiner. He is too hard for a pacifist, too unpoetic for a conscientious objector. It is very likely that this picture will persist to plague us before we get done, and it may help us at length to a distinction between crimes against society and those fancied offenses for which men are today crowding the Federal courts. It does one good to stand there and speculate as to Daniel himself. He is a tall man of fine and thoughtful countenance who probably fled from worse perils that lay before him. That was the case, we imagine, with most of our pioneers. Boone sits not so much resting as ready to jump. He is hearing the evidence, but he is listening for the terrors from which the pioneers fled. He knew they were coming. It is not necessary for someone to write for us an outline of the history of Missouri. This picture is a good one.

The New York Times thinks Senator Reed has taken over our foreign policy, and there is no doubt that he has a mandate from Missouri to do this very thing. We had not thought that the Senator believes in mandates, but he believes in this one.

GOD'S DARLINGS.

GOD'S Darlings! How rare! How rare!
They are those precious spirits that take flesh and dwell among us.
When we meet them, it seems that this is already a better world.
When they speak to us, their very language sounds like the euphonies of heaven.
Their companionship gives a certain charm to our better selves.
They almost seem to live in a revelry of Love—a Love that enchants us.
They give to us the greater meaning of Him who said, "Ye are the salt of the earth."
They are the masterpieces of the highest handicraft.
They are the "pure in heart," and they "see God."
They are the unfaltering friends of those rare virtues, Compassion and Forgiveness.
They love Truth and Justice; and they love these most when the days are stormy.
They stand unmoved in untoward hours, and when the world's clamor is distracting.
Their ears, always delicately attuned, catch that finer strain, "Be still, and know that I am God."
Their fingers play upon life's finer harpstrings, and we stand bewitched by the melodies that are pitched to the higher keys.
God's Darlings! They are like the oases in the deserts, in which, when reached by the weary traveler, he forgets the heat of the burning sands; he refreshes himself at the sparkling springs, and the scene of vernal beauty makes him to feel that the Door of Hope is a door that can never be closed.
God's Darlings! Fate and Destiny give to us the kindliest touches of their hands when these high-born souls are brought within the circle of our life's attachments.
God's Darlings! Oh, it must be that the very sun was made to shine upon them!
When they are with us, then it is that we feel that this cannot be quite a lost world.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

AMERICAN AID FOR RUSSIA.

From the World's Work for January.

THOSE Americans who are tempted at [illegible] to despair of their country should focus [illegible] attention upon a work which has for a year [illegible] become such a commonplace in newspaper [illegible] lines that its significance is in danger of [illegible] lost. The annals of history contain no [illegible] thropy comparable to the performance of [illegible] American Relief Administration in Russia. At [illegible] present time Americans are daily feeding 10,[illegible] 000 Russians, which means that only their [illegible] ance is protecting that number of people [illegible] starvation. It is hardly necessary to describe [illegible] difficulties, especially those of transportation, [illegible] der which this work is done; they would [illegible] been sufficient to daunt any except the [illegible] courageous Americans who have it in [illegible] But the mere business of supplying food is [illegible] part of its work; the operations of the [illegible] division, in distributing medicines, bed [illegible] bandages and cotton, rubber goods and laboratory equipment, and its vast campaigns of [illegible] against communicable disease, makes its [illegible] unparalleled in the history of preventive [illegible] cine.

MEDICAL RECIPROCITY.

From the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Its members propose to "do" [illegible] various South American countries in a [illegible] manner, but not to the South American's [illegible] vantage. In addition to studying conditions [illegible] which the profession is interested and [illegible] ideas with medical scholars they intend to [illegible] clinics and broadcast good health [illegible] The tour very likely will result in practical [illegible] fits for both North and South America, as [illegible] ress in eradicating disease necessarily [illegible] largely on the breadth of professional [illegible] and experience. There is a chance for it to [illegible] to highly beneficial gains all around. [illegible] humanity's common foe, and this hemisphere should wage war against it as one people. [illegible] we hope all nations will be united in this [illegible] sive. South America is a continent having [illegible] strange ailments and epidemics which the [illegible] American medical profession desires to [illegible] eradicate.

LOVE AND SELFISHNESS.

Tagore Letter in Modern Review (Calcutta).

THE other day, when I was resting [illegible] my room in the hotel at Hamburg, [illegible] there entered two shy and sweet German [illegible] with a bunch of roses as an offering for [illegible] of them, who spoke broken English, said to [illegible] "I love India." I asked her, "Why do you [illegible] India?" She answered, "Because you love [illegible] The praise was too great for me to accept [illegible] any degree of complaisance. But I [illegible] meaning was in the expectation from me [illegible] it carried, and therefore was a blessing [illegible] possibly she meant that my country [illegible] and therefore she loved India. That [illegible] an expectation whose meaning we should [illegible] appreciate and understand. The nations [illegible] their own countries; and that national [illegible] only given rise to hatred and suspicion [illegible] another. The world is waiting for a [illegible] that loves God and not herself, only that [illegible] will have the claim to be loved by [illegible] countries. Love of self, whether [illegible] individual, can have no other destination [illegible] suicide. Love of God is our only [illegible] has in it the ultimate solution of all [illegible] difficulties.

GIFTS OF SEIZED PROPERTY BY DRY AGENTS UNLAWFUL

Acting Prohibition Commissioner Jones Adds That Property Is Subject to Court's Order.

DESTRUCTION ALSO HELD UNAUTHORIZED

Agent Must Report All Seizures to Federal Court, Official Says, in Response to Inquiry.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—It is manifestly unlawful for a prohibition enforcement agent to give away confiscated property, Acting Prohibition Commissioner James F. Jones said yesterday in response to an inquiry by the Post-Dispatch as to whether Chief Prohibition Enforcement Agent Gus O. Nations of St. Louis had acted within his rights in giving away 16 huge mash vats seized in dry raids last month. Ten vats were given to the F. A. Kauffmann Vinegar Mfg. Co. of St. Louis and three each to the Fire and Police Departments of St. Louis.

Strictly speaking, Jones said, an agent had no right to destroy any property, even confiscated liquor, but must report all seizures to the Federal Court, through the Government Attorney in charge of Federal prohibition cases.

Subject to Court's Order.

Property reported to the court as having been seized, he said, was subject to destruction, sale or return to the owner, as the court might direct. Under no circumstances, he said, did an agent have the right to appropriate it for his own use or for somebody else. "If it should be established that Nations gave away property," he said, answering a question, "the department of course could not condone the offense."

Jones said there was no present intention on the part of the department to remove Nations. He said complaints against Nations which had reached the department were far outnumbered by the letters praising his work. "It looks," said Jones, "as if the people of St. Louis who believe in law enforcement are virtually 100 per cent behind Nations."

Judge James A. Britt, head of the legal division of the prohibition unit, while declining to make any statement regarding the specific case of the St. Louis vats, said that property used in the illegal manufacture of liquor either might be destroyed or disposed of under forfeiture sale, but, he added, enforcement agents had no right to give away confiscated goods. The authority given agents, Britt said, was fully set out in section 25 of the Federal prohibition act. This states that property seized by agents "shall be subject to such disposition as the court may make thereof."

Nations Seized Vats on "Tips" Furnished by Shupp.

As has been told, Nations and his volunteer deputy, the Rev. W. C. Shupp, superintendent of the Missouri Anti-Saloon League, seized the 16 vats in raids on Dec. 17 at 11 South Third street and on Dec. 11 at 200 South Main street, on "tips" furnished by Shupp.

Erwin Kauffmann, president-treasurer of the F. A. Kauffmann Vinegar Mfg. Co., 106 South Second street, observing a flow of mash in the gutter, traced the stream to its head and found Shupp, in overalls, attempting to dismantle one of the vats on Third street. He asked Nations if he might have the vats for use in the manufacture of vinegar and Nations asked Shupp if he had any objection. With Shupp's consent Nations permitted Kauffman to have 10 vats.

The vats were 30 feet high and 18 feet across, each having a capacity of 80 barrels. They were made of California red wood staves hooped with steel. Kauffmann estimated their cost at about $275 each, or $2750 in all. It cost him less than $100 to have them dismantled, hauled to his factory and there reassembled. He said he had declined an offer of $50 from a secondhand dealer for one of the vats.

Nations said he regarded the gift as equivalent to destroying the vats, because in turning them over to a firm that could make legitimate use of them he was diverting them from moonshining channels. He added that there were no property rights in the vats as they were contraband and that as he was unable to establish their ownership he considered he had nothing to present to the court.

Shupp, at the time of the raid, said he was going to use seven of the seized vats to build a garage behind his home in the event that he should at some time acquire a "flivver." The vats were never sent to his home. They were among the 16 which were given away.

This selection is on next Saturday's program. The other selections are standard and familiar ones, and most of them have been a part of school study courses. In this concert, the children will hear them played in the most artistic manner, by one of the foremost orchestras of the country.

The coming concert is for pupils of the white children. A concert for children of the negro schools will be announced later.

IT WILL TAKE A LONG TIME TO TEST EINSTEIN THEORY

Too Early to Predict Result of Photographic Experiments, Astronomer Says.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 20.—It is too early to predict the results of experiment made in Australia during a total eclipse of the sun on Sept. 21, to determine the correctness of the Einstein theory of relativity, according to Dr. W. W. Campbell, noted astronomer and president-elect of the University of California.

It will take a long time yet to work out computations and complete photographic measurements obtained during the observations of the sun by the astronomical expedition to Australia, Dr. Campbell said in a lecture here last night.

"We are looking for the truth only," the astronomer said, "and are not trying either to confirm or disprove the theory that light bends on its way to the earth past the sun from distant stars."

COVERING OF RIVER DES PERES DISCUSSED

C. of C. Industrial Commissioner Views It as Most Urgent Bond Proposal.

All bonds issue items will aid St. Louis in obtaining the new industries which her commercial position justifies but the one most urgently needed is the River des Peres covering, in the opinion of R. D. Sangster, industrial commissioner of the Chamber of Commerce.

Sangster, who reckons that 2,000,000 square feet of floor space, if available, would be snatched up at once, points out that many industries now are considering East Side locations because of the paucity of proper cheap sites in St. Louis. In this connection, he declares that hundreds of acres amounting to 40 per cent of the city's area are now impossible of settlement because of the threat of Rives des Peres depredations. This area comprises the most desirable industrial sites now obtainable, he said, but unless the covering project in the bond issue is carried, it must continue to lie idle.

The lack of desirable floor space and sites is reflected, Sangster recites, in comparison of the city's 1922 building record with those of cities adjacent to her and rivaling her in her own commercial territory. Chicago's building record was $229,000,000, while St. Louis had only $25,000,000. Kansas City, half as large as St. Louis, expended $23,000,000. The comparison becomes even more distressing when it is recalled that the city's record was largely made up of large hotels and apartment and residential construction.

"Other items of equal importance," Sangster said, "embrace direct trafficways leading to outer factory locations, paved and properly-lighted streets and adequate water and sewer services. The lack of these hurts St. Louis' chances for new industries in competition with cities where they can be had."

$9000 FOR THE LOSS OF LEG

Big Four Settles With Girl Run Over at Grade Crossing.

A $9000 compromise judgment by agreement of counsel in favor of Helen Dorris Shock, 14 years old, of Anderson, Ind., in her suit for $65,000 damages for the loss of a leg in a grade crossing railroad accident, was effected yesterday before Circuit Judge Hall.

The suit was against the Big Four Railroad. Miss Shock was run over by a Big Four freight train at a grade crossing in Anderson last July, suffering the loss of the left leg below the knee. Her parents removed to St. Louis temporarily, which explains the filing of the suit here.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, D. G. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

A HOME-MADE GRAY HAIR REMEDY

You Can Make a Better Gray Hair Remedy Than You Can Buy.

Gray, streaked or faded hair is not only unbecoming, but unnecessary.

Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, to small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is easy to use, does not color the scalp, is not sticky and greasy and does not rub off.

JEWISH ORATOR TO SPEAK ON CONDITIONS IN ORIENT

Dr. Schmaryu Levin of Palestine, one of the foremost Jewish orators, will speak on conditions in the Orient at a banquet to be given in his honor by the United Synagogues of St. Louis tonight at the Jewish Orthodox Old Folks' Home, Grand boulevard and Blair avenue. Dr. Levin has traversed the world in behalf of the movement to restore the Jewish homeland in Palestine.

At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon he will address a Hebrew conference at the Jewish Community Center, 3636 Page boulevard, on modern development of the Hebrew language.

For centuries Hebrew was regarded as a dead language, but due to the efforts of great Jewish scholars, including Dr. Levin, it has become the vernacular of the Jewish language in Palestine and is gradually becoming popular in all the centers of Europe.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets.

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes are sold annually at 15c and 30c.

Use this to Stop Neuritis Pain

No matter where your pain is located—in the back, shoulders, arms, legs or loins—you can get relief without taking anything to deaden the nerves.

Most people do not know that sciatica, rheumatism, neuralgia, bad teeth, colds and other ailments often end up in neuritis or nerve inflammation.

The quickest way to reach the diseased nerves is by absorption. That's where Tysmol gets in its work. Tysmol is applied over the spot where you feel the pain, and is taken up through the pores of the skin. It soothes and heals the inflamed nerves, helping to restore them to healthy condition.

Tysmol contains no dope—no poison. Absolutely harmless.

Get a good supply of Tysmol from Judge & Dolph Drug Co., as well as Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., or any reliable druggist. Price $1. The Tysmol Company, Mfg. Chemist, 400 Sutter St., San Francisco.

SCULPTRESS BACK HOME FAVORS BOND ISSUE

Mrs. Nancy Coonsman Hall Supervised Erection of Missouri Monument at Cheppy.

Mrs. Nancy Coonsman Hahn, sculptress, who returned to her home here Friday night after nine months in Europe, during which she supervised erection of the Missouri State Memorial Monument at Cheppy, in the Department of the Meuse, France, which she designed, brings an artistic view of the necessity for passage of the proposed municipal bond issue.

"St. Louis must develop along modern lines of beautification if she is to retain her proper place among cities," Mrs. Hahn said. "Bond issue items which provide for plazas, parkways, street widening and such progressive steps certainly should be adopted and I intend to do whatever I can to assist."

During her stay in Paris, Mrs. Hahn, who was accompanied by her husband, Emanuel Hahn, and their small son, resided in the student quarter. "The students are a set of serious, hardworking men and women," she said. "Once or twice a year they have fete days, and do enjoy themselves then."

She said that the general impression of the wickedness of France, especially Paris, resulted from an assumed wickedness staged for benefit of tourists. "The French seldom go to the tourist quarters," she said. "It isn't France. The real French people are industrious, home-loving persons whose chief ambition is to save money and get ahead."

Mrs. Hahn returned by way of London, stopping off for a few days in New York and Chicago. She resides at 6171 Delmar boulevard.

PLAYS BY WASHINGTON U. STUDENTS TO BE PRODUCED

One of Three Selected From 13 Manuscripts Will Win a Prize of $50.

Three one-act plays written by students of English 6, a course in playwriting at Washington University, will be produced at the Artists' Guild Theater on the evening of Feb. 14. They are "Absolom," by Jessie Chamberlain; "The Woods Colt," by Emmet Glore, and "Otro Dia" ("Another Day"), by Marguerite Stringfellow Pyle. "An Alternative," by Florence Walters, received honorable mention.

Thirteen manuscripts, all by students of the class, were submitted in the competition, the judges of which were Mrs. Robert A. Kissack, Prof. R. F. Jones of Washington University, and Richard L. Stokes. After the performance the judges will select one of the three plays as winner of a $50 prize offered by Mrs. Newton Wilson. Rehearsals are under the direction of the authors, with supervision by William Carson, director of the course. Students are also making the settings.

The locale of "Absolom" is a small town in the Ozarks, and in the cast are Florence Walters, Delmar Gray, John C. Heinberg, Adele Eames, Shirley Capps and Emmet Glore. "The Woods Colt" is placed on a farm in Southern Illinois, and will be acted by Florence Walters, Marguerite Pyle, Lola Fuchs, Adolph Pessel, Arthur Krause and Gilbert Hyatt. "Otra Dia" occurs in a studio on the East Side of New York. It will be played by Julien Shield, Adolph Pessel and John Becker. This will mark the initial production of the new playwriting course.

MAN WHO ADVERTISED JOB FOR LADY CASHIER ARRESTED

Girl Gives $17 Check as Premium on Bond and Makes Complaint After Thinking It Over.

An advertisement last week in newspapers for "a lady cashier, good salary, great future with a large corporation," brought 135 replies to a man registered at the American Hotel as Albert E. Williams, who, since his arrest on suspicion that he has obtained money under false pretenses, declares that he is Albert E. Wilson, 47, of Lexington, Ky.

One of the respondents to the advertisement, Miss Fredericka Fitch, 18, of 3507 Lafayette avenue, obtained the position and gave Wilson a check for $17 as premium on a bond which, he said, she would be required to furnish. On her way home, she recalled that Wilson had insisted that the check be made to him personally, not to the Preferred Life Insurance Co. of Topeka, Kan., for which he was to open a branch agency here.

She called her bank to stop payment on the check, but found that it had been cashed. She telegraphed the Preferred Company at Topeka and received an answer from the secretary of its successor who stated that the Preferred was defunct. Then she sent the police for Wilson. They have not yet determined whether he interviewed any others of the 135 respondents and whether he obtained any more money. He declares that he did not. He had $16 when arrested.

Edward T. Ustick Sued for Divorce.

Suit for divorce was filed yesterday by Mrs. Helen Stimson Ustick of 5512 McPherson avenue against Edward T. Ustick Jr., vice president and treasurer of the Farm Light and Power Co. of St. Louis. They separated Jan. 12. Mrs. Ustick alleges lack of affection, that her husband was cold and indifferent and that he told her he has ceased to love her. She asks custody of their daughter, Helen, 9. They were married March 7, 1912.

STATE REFORESTATION BILL IN LEGISLATURE

Measure Has Backing of Officers of Missouri Forestry Association.

A bill, designed to restore, in some measure, the timber resources of the State which largely have disappeared before the ax of industry, has been introduced to the Legislature and its passage is being urged by the Missouri Forestry Association. Officers of that association state that the last of the State's yellow pine fell years ago, and few tracts of first-class hardwood are standing and that even the supply of railroad ties, once regarded as inexhaustible, is approaching its final stage.

The legislative bill, introduced by Senator Farris of Rolla and Representative Stivers of Piedmont, provides for a State Board of Forestry of six members, to serve without compensation, but whose expenses shall be paid while upon the business of their office. The board is authorized to conduct a campaign of education concerning the benefits of scientific reforestation. It is empowered, also, to determine the trees best suited for cultivation in Missouri. It also can ascertain the requirements of the wood-using industries and evolve measures for fire control. The board is empowered to acquire by purchase or condemnation lands suitable for the practice of reforestation and convert them into State forests.

Dr. Herman von Schrenk of the staff of the Missouri Botanical Garden, is president of the Missouri Forestry Association. Frederick Dunlop, secretary, has issued a statement showing the need of some sort of forestry program, of which the following is part: "We must remember that ther are 8,000,000 or more acres of land in Missouri of little use except for timber, but by careful forestation this land could produce, under methods employed in other states, from $3 to $4 an acre in timber products each year, while methods employed in Europe would yield $8 to $10 an acre. This means that it would be possible to add from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 to the cash wealth of poor Ozark counties."

NEARLY TWO-THIRDS OF A BILLION DOLLARS IN NEW SECURITIES SINCE JAN. 1

LARGE VOLUME OF SECURITIES TAKEN DURING THE WEEK

Steady Markets, Easy Money and the Successful Flotation of New Capital Issues Feature Events of Recent Period.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly financial review says:

"Steady markets, easy money, and successful flotations of new capital issues of a large scale are interesting and significant features of the past week or so in finance. These conditions have prevailed, furthermore, despite the crisis in the Ruhr and the crises in the negotiations for funding the British debt. The volume of new offerings and the comparative ease with which they have been absorbed are remarkable. During the past week alone new securities to the value of approximately $250,000,000 have been placed on the market, while the total since the first of the year amounts to nearly two-thirds of a billion dollars. By far the greater proportion of this huge amount represents bonds, yet the market for existing securities has remained firm except in the case of foreign bonds, which are, of course, subject to special movements on account of the foreign situation. With large and successful flotations also a feature at London, it would appear that the volume of funds available for investment has been greater than generally had been supposed.

Matters of Encouragement.

"Various indicators of the trend of domestic business, meanwhile, continue to furnish encouragement. The steel companies are practically booked up for the first quarter and are working at the highest rate of capacity attained on the present recovery. Prices have firmed and present operations are considered to be profitable. The users of steel also report favorable prospects and according to report are expanding their production schedules. Railroad equipment makers appear to be finding a satisfactory volume of business, and even the manufacturers of farm implements, it is said, see a definite turn for the better. In the automobile industry great confidence is expressed. Building construction is going on apace, and the oil industry continues to make demands on the steel companies. These signs of industrial activity are quite consistent, furthermore, with the statistics of railroad car loadings. The latter still demonstrate an unprecedented movement of traffic for this season of the year.

"With regard to the French experiment in the Ruhr valley, the markets have shown the same remarkable indifference which has characterized them during recent weeks. It must be admitted that the occupation has proceeded with little social disturbance. The reverse is true of the economic aspects of the matter. The French assuredly are finding out that the taking over of a whole district and population and the operation of its industrial machinery are matters of no small difficulty. Both sides are likely to find the occupation unpleasant and expensive. After a certain amount of experience along these lines, the chances of a settlement obviously may be improved.

British Debt Funding.

"Departure of the British debt funding mission without having reached an agreement with the American Commission also has been taken calmly. A mild reaction in sterling followed the publication of the news, but the recovery was quick and generous. It must be remembered that the operation is unprecedented in size and that its character will affect both this country and British for many years to come. It is hardly surprising, therefore, that the British Government should wish to discuss details at first hand with its mission. As matters stand, substantial progress has been made in the negotiations, while the greatest respect and good feeling evidently exist as between the two commissions. Ample time remains for the British mission to discuss proposals with its Cabinet and for the negotiations to be completed by cable so that a settlement can be submitted to the present Congress by the President. There are, accordingly, no grounds for pessimism in this important matter, and there are, on the other hand, a number of important reasons for optimism."

"Dullness was the main characteristic of trading on the Stock Exchange this morning. Following a fairly firm opening a part of the professional element seized upon rumors of unfavorable developments in Germany as an excuse for attacking the list. Under this pressure stocks sold off fractionally, but rallied before the end of the first hour. The market, meanwhile, became stagnant and, with the exception of one or two stocks, moved but slightly in either direction. An attack on Pressed Steel Car carried the preferred down six points and the common off 4¼ points with a subsequent rally. Bonds were moderately active and firm.

French Exchange Falls.

"Disquieting news from Germany had an adverse effect on continental currencies. Heavy offerings of French francs at declining prices was the feature of an active foreign exchange market. The franc closed yesterday at 6.65 cents and sank rapidly this morning to 6.48, a new low on the movement. Belgian francs and Italian lire were also greatly depressed, while German marks again dropped to .0050 of a cent. Sterling, meanwhile, was in good demand and held steady around the previous closing level of $4.64⅝.

"Commodity markets were barely able to hold their own. Cotton on the one hand was under the stimulus of a favorable statistical position, but on the other hand the market was called upon to absorb extensive profit-taking, part of it of the usual week-end character and part probably inspired by unfavorable rumors from abroad. Still high records were established. At a late price of 28.66 May was 7 points higher.

"An increase of $12,043,000 in surplus is shown by the weekly statement of the New York Clearing House, the total standing at $17,136,000. This was accomplished by a sharp decrease in demand deposits, the loss amounting to $138,479,000 and a small decline, only $953,000 in loans. Circulation was up $100,000 and cash in own vaults of member banks of the Federal Reserve decreased $5,852,000 to a total of $53,160,000.

Dry Goods Market Review

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The market for cotton cloths continued active today. Converters took fair quantities of gray goods and drills; sheetings, twills and fine combed goods were active. Wide print cloths were in excellent demand with recent fractional advances fully maintained. Bag manufacturers were well represented in the market.

The raw silk market continued strong and unchanged here today. The activity at Yokohama, which involved the sale of over 1000 bales, was a sustaining factor.

DEBT SETTLEMENT DELAY IS CALLED DISAPPOINTMENT

Financial London Roughly Indorses the Desirability of Accepting the American Terms Subject to Minor Modifications, Says Review.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of the Bankers' Magazine and general editor of the London Morning Post, in financial review today, says:

"The market still give only scant heed to the reparation crisis, but there's keen disappointment at the delay in the American debt settlement, even though the delay is regarded merely as a temporary adjournment. The financial district roughly indorses the desirability of accepting the American terms subject to minor modifications. This is due to the district's disposition to take a common sense business view of the situation, with clear perception of the character of the original bond entered into by Great Britain. Nevertheless, our Government's view deserves careful comprehension because while it does not make America wrong, it explains the British Government's apparent curious hesitation.

"The Ruhr crisis is still at a stage where opinions vary as to the result, some asserting that French positive measures shortly will end the crisis through Germany's yielding, while others, and these are in the majority, believe that an impasse will be reached with Britain and America having to help find a solution. Unless a solution of the crisis is reached, it is believed that the franc will go much lower, though it is upheld temporarily by French support and possibly a record Riviera season. Big orders for goods are reported now from France and Austria.

"As the budget making time approaches there is an increasing outcry against the pressing burden of our taxation through the income tax and the death duties. The increase during the past 20 years are unprecedented, and there are increasing signs that these taxes are tending to encroach on our capital resources and dry up the streams which should be fertilizing industrial activities.

"The present outlook is now most obscure."

Wall Street News and Comment
—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Excepting for the bidding up of a few specialties there was an unusually small change in the general list on the Stock Exchange today. The bulk of transactions in standard issues occurred within a fraction of the final prices of Friday. Pool operations, apparently, continued today in Timken Roller Bearings, carrying the stock to a new high level. Marland Oil was the feature of the oil group on rise. Baldwin did little in the market today, holding around the closing price of Friday.

There was special weakness in Pressed Steel Car stocks. The preferred and common stock broke 2 and 4 points respectively and their drop attracted considerable attention.

The Bond Market.

The improved tone noted in yesterday's bond market continued today, although activity was not on a very large scale during the two hours of trading. There was a gain of over 4 points in Marland Oil 8s with warrants. Each of these bonds carries a detachable warrant entitling the holder to subscribe to 25 shares of Marland Oil at 40. The stock has been very active around 40 recently. It sold above 34 today. Another point of interest was furnished by the new Anaconda security, particularly the debenture 7s which sold on a "when issued" basis a fraction above the offering price. Aside from these special features speculative rails as a class were firmer than in some time. In the foreign list the feature was the recovery in the issues generally regarded as the most highly speculative and which have sustained the largest losses. French bonds held around yesterday's prices. Liberties were very dull and practically unchanged.

SLIGHT PRICE CHANGES IN GRAIN AT WEEK-END

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Although wheat made a decided upturn in price at one time this week when reports were current that German troops were being mobilized, the majority of traders appeared to be acting later on the view that it was an open question whether warlike developments would at present enhance grain values.

Reports touching chances of peace or war attracted much more notice than any other subject discussed among wheat traders, but the most prevalent opinion was that European countries were in no financial position for military clashes on a large scale, and that hostilities of a subordinate character would chiefly result in further curtailing power to buy. On the other hand, reports of dry weather adversely affecting great areas of domestic winter wheat territory made would-be sellers more cautious than would otherwise be the case at this season.

With the export business only fitful at best and with competition from the Southern Hemisphere increasing, optimists regarding higher prices for wheat had to contend with such factors as an apprehension of a hitch in British debt-funding arrangements and a continuance of liberal receipts at the principal Western market centers. The passage of the Capper rural credit extension bill in the Senate, however, helped somewhat as a stimulus to the buying side as the week drew to a close.

Drouth in Argentina, together with dwindling of domestic receipts, put firmness into prices of corn and oats.

Good-sized expert clearances strengthened the provision market.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 20.—There was little interest exhibited in wheat after the early activity at the start today. There was a left-over bearish feeling from Friday and as soon as the market opened many of the longs were disposed to liquidate their holdings. Resting orders, profit taking by shorts and back spreading between Chicago and Winnipeg, buying the wheat in the local pit halted the decline and caused a fair recovery. The export demand for wheat was lifeless and millers took little interest in the market for cash wheat. Premiums were unchanged; in fact, the basis was a little firmer as compared with the close of yesterday. Liverpool cable said that market was affected by reports that shippers are diverting cargoes of wheat originally intended for Germany to United Kingdom. Millers are holding off on this account expecting heavy shipments next week. The Capper bill passing the Senate failed to influence the market because it fails to stimulate a demand, one trader said. There were reports of rain in Newton and Hutchinson, Kansas. The market closed unchanged to ¼c lower. May $1.18@⅛. July $1.12⅞@1.13. September $1.09⅝.

Corn was easy in tone. There was some selling by local longs at the start and cash houses sold. After a moderate dip the bull crowd, it was said, gave the market support. Cash corn basis was firmer, sales being made at ¼@½c narrower discount for yesterday. Country sold no corn to arrive on the break. Shipping demand was poor. Market unchanged to ¼c lower. May 72⅞c to ⅝@⅞c; July, 72⅞c; September, 72⅞c.

Oats were easy. Liquidation of long oats featured the opening. Western interests bought on the decline. Market closed ⅛c lower to ¼c higher. May 44⅝c. July 42⅝c. September 40⅝c@40¾c.

Provisions were lower in sympathy with grain. Lard closed 7½c@10c lower and ribs 10c@12½c lower.

Wheat closed fractionally lower and corn steady at the week-end session on the Merchants' Exchange. The slow export situation and report of continued dry weather in part of domestic wheat belt were conflicting influences in wheat. Corn was influenced to extent by wheat.

In the local cash grain market Saturday, No. 2 red wheat and good to choice No. 3 red sold 1c higher, but demand limited to good soft wheat. Local mills were fair buyers, and a few cars were placed on orders. Thin No. 3 and No. 4 wheat was not wanted. Hard wheat was dull. No. 2 yellow hard being offered 1c lower at $1.19. No. 3 yellow was offered at $1.16, low grades dragging and lower to sell. Cash corn was steady to 1½c lower, most transactions showing 1c decline from previous day. The market was weak all day, and a good part of the receipts carried over. Mills, local trade and shippers took about 15 cars, the balance going to elevators. Cash oats were steady to ½c down on No. 3 and No. 4 white, and ½@1c off on the better grades. Not much demand was evident, shippers buying less than 10 cars and local trade also was light.

The early range of prices was moderate, but an easier tone prevailed for the most part. Liverpool opened ¼d higher and closed unchanged.

Local wheat receipts were 59 cars local and 52 through, while there were 99 cars of corn local and 41 through.

May wheat opened at $1.17; July wheat, $1.10⅝; September wheat, $1.08⅛; May corn, 72⅞ bid, and July corn, 72⅝c.

The three Northwestern markets combined today had 589 cars of wheat, compared with 723 a week ago and 691 last year, Minneapolis today receiving 369 cars, Duluth 51 and Minneapolis 169.

Local wheat receipts, which were 133,200 bushels, compared with 103,200 a week ago and 94,800 last year, included 59 cars local and 52 through. Corn receipts, which were 148,200 bushels, compared with 87,100 a week ago and 146,900 last year, included 99 cars local and 15 through. Oats receipts, which were 176,000 bushels, compared with 124,00 a week ago and 64,000 last year, included 47 cars local and 41 through. Hay receipts were 500 tons local and 162 through.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange review today, says:

"The past week was an eventful one in the foreign exchange market movements of exchanges in all parts of the world being connected closely with the menace that seemed to exist over the German reparations dissentions and also in connection with the financial conditions and position taken by institutions here. There were many indications early in the week of a withdrawal of banking institutions as either buyers or as financing bankers in connection with exchange transactions, and while this attitude prevailed sales of continental exchanges were hard to effect even wide stages on a declining market. The developments on the continent reached a condition approaching an acute crisis and caused or were taken as a reason for larger offerings of severe losses in exchange values.

"Although the range of sterling continued narrow, the greatest importance was attached to the movement in exchange on London. For a time sterling maintained its remarkable firm tone, but around the middle of the week yielded to $4.63½ a new low for the year, against $4.67½ of last Saturday. After sales at this level early on Thursday the movement suddenly turned upward. German attracted as high degree of interest because of the practical collapse in the position of exchange on Berlin, thousands of millions of mark exchange being traded in at prices changing from .0084 to .0042 or $42 to the million marks, equal to about 24,000 marks to the dollar. This decline was followed by a break in exchange on Poland, Polish marks breaking from .005¼ to .003¼—or equal to over 30,000 Polish marks to the dollar. Jugo-Slavia dinars dropped from 1.06¼ to .75.

"Exchange rates on France and affiliated nations moved sharply downward during the first four days of the week. Checks on Paris, which closed on last Saturday at 6.92 ranged in that period from 6.85 to 6.56. Italian ranged from 4.94 to 4.70 during the interval of pronounced weakness. Swiss was under special pressure on Thursday, when it sold on a new low for recent trading. Holland alone held strong on that day.

"Disquieting news from Germany had an adverse effect on continental currencies. Heavy offerings of French francs at declining prices was the feature of an active foreign exchange market. The franc closed yesterday at 6.65 cents and sank rapidly this morning to 6.48, a new low on the movement. Belgian francs and Italian lire were also greatly depressed, while German marks again dropped to .0050 of a cent. Sterling, meanwhile, was in good demand and held steady around the previous closing level of $4.66½.

ONLY SLIGHT CHANGES IN LIVESTOCK MARKET

Cattle and Sheep Receipts Comparatively Light—Hog Supply Average for Period.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	22,600	19,796	20,012
Hogs	90,923	116,646	76,921
Sheep	6,855	5,828	10,150
Horses and mules	3,606	5,849	3,242
Totals	123,984	148,119	110,325

Cattle and sheep receipts were of comparatively light volume at the St. Louis National Stockyards last week, and the hog supply about an average. Only slight changes are shown in the various markets for the period. The average day's cattle run was slightly under 4000 head. The market showed a stronger trend the fore part of the week, but weakness was a characteristic of the late trade, leaving closing prices about steady to 25c lower than a week ago. Stocker and feeder steers, an exception, retained their 25c advance. Quality of the offering, with few exceptions, was common to demium. One drove of beef steers made $10.50 per cwt. The top, while the majority of sales were included in a range of $7 to $9. Unsatisfactory markets for dressed beef in the East was held responsible for the narrow demand for killer steers during the week. Lightweight yearlings sold mainly from $5 to $8, with good finished droves registering in the $9 column. Butcher cows were most evident at $4 to $6, followed by cutters at $3 to $3.50 and canners at $2.50 to $2.75, a few plain down to $2.35 or under. The bull market, unlike other cattle, reflect slight improvement for the period, beef animals selling largely at $4.50 to $5.50, and bolognas $4 to $5. Canner bulls graduated down to $3. Light receipts, together with a reasonably good demand, influenced the continued upward trend in stocker and feeder steers. The practical range was from $4 to $7, with top feeders selling up to $7.50. The best veal calves sold through a spread of $11 to $11.75 for the week. The top Friday was $11.50, or 25c under the high point of the period. Southern canner yearlings were full steady, ranging from $3 for a plain kind up to $4.50 for light with color.

Wide Spread to Prices.

Hog receipts for the week just closed total 90,900 head, an average supply for this time of year. Compared with the record run of the previous week there is a decrease of 26,000 head but contrasted with the same period a year ago a gain of 14,000 is noted. Receipts were relatively lighter during one first half than during the later days of the week but the most unsatisfactory markets occurred during the former session. Offerings generally good in quality with an abundance of heavy finished butcher and packing hogs. This class was not in as good favor as the light shipping grades and the widest spread in prices of the season between heavy and choice lights hogs was noted. At one time early in the week choice 160 to 175-pound hogs were outselling 250 to 300-pound swine by a margin of 50c to 90c per cwt. Towards the close of the week the market improved all around and the discrimination against weighty hogs was not so apparent although the lights still continued favorites and brought a premium over heavies. For the week desirable lights finish 15c to 25c higher, pigs steady to a shade lower, butcher and heavy finished hogs practically unchanged, these having put back just about all the early declines. Packing sows dropped 10c to 15c and stock pigs 25c. The St. Louis market has held relatively in a strong position for several weeks past as compared with other western centers. At the close of the week the price range for choice hogs is: Heavy finished swine 275 lbs and up $8.25 to $8.35, butchers 220 to 260 lbs. $8.35 to $8.55, light butchers 190 to 210 lbs. $8.50 to $8.75, shipping hogs 150 to 180 lbs. $8.75 to $9, strong weight pigs 120 to 130 lbs. $8 to $8.50, light and pee wee pigs $6 to $7.75, packer sows $7 to $7.25, stags $5.50 to $6.35, immune stock pigs 60 to 100 lbs. $9 to $9.50, feeding sows, immune, $7 to $7.50.

Sheep Trade Active.

Receipts were light each day last week and the total for the week is not any more than should have been received the first two days. Trading was active all week and prices steady at all times, and they are about as high now as they have been for several months. Most of the offerings the past week were Westerns, fed in Missouri or Illinois. Best lambs are quotable at $14.50@15; medium grades, $13.50@14.25; plain ones, $12.50@13.25, and culls, $10@11. Some clipped lambs were received and they sold at $12.50@13. Fat offerings were ready sale at all times and others slow. Sheep were also good sale if fat, best grades bringing $7@7.50; heavy and plain ewes, $5; choppers and bucks, $2.50@4, and canners, $1@2.

Horses and Mules.

The horse and mule market retained the healthy tone of the preceding week's trade and a fairly liberal run changed hands in active order at steady to strong prices. About 700 horses comprised the commission offering and the major portion of the supply cleared at auction under active bidding from Southern and Eastern operators. Southern horses of all kinds commanded strong prices, and satisfactory results were also received on chunks and big horses. Plain Pennsylvania chunks and farm mares did not move as readily as some other classes.

Receipts of mules on commission exceeded the 3000 mark, a large offering. The market, nevertheless, held up well, prices ruling steady, strong in some cases. Good-haired, fat cotton mules of all sizes, as usual, attracted the most attention from buyers. Plain common mules did not sell as readily as other classes, although sellers have been able to accomplish a good clearance.

The crop of 1921 and carry over on plantation Aug. 1 of that year amounted to 12,088,000. Of this there had appeared in sight a year ago to date 7,266,000 leaving 822,000 to come forward. Port and interior stocks then amounted to 2,815,000 giving a total supply of 7,637,000 out of which exports and domestic takings could be furnished. Estimating the current crop at 10,300,000 including linters, with a carry over on plantations of 964,000 and this season's supply reaches 11,234,000. Of this 8,893,000 has already appeared in sight, leaving 2,271,000 to come forward. This, with 2,207,000 in port and interior stocks gives a total of 4,578,000 to compare with 7,637,000 a year ago at this date.

COTTON PRICES MIXED AFTER HIGH SCORED

New Crop Months Are Lower in Week-End Trade at New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Heavy realizing sales were absorbed on an early decline in the cotton market today and prices later made new high records for the season, with May contracts selling at 28.60c. That delivery closed at 28.54c, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 7 to 14 points on the old crop deliveries. New crop months were relatively easy owing to reports of better weather in the southwest, and closed at net declines of 5 to 20 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of two points to a decline of 10 points and soon showed net losses of 10 to 19 points under realizing for over the week-end, and liquidation of new crop positions due to reports of better prospects for a break in the southwestern drouth. A great many contracts were absorbed on this decline with trade interests among the buyers and as soon as the selling slackened prices turned upward. Some of the early sellers on the southwestern weather news covered on the advance while there was a good scattering commission house demand which appeared to be inspired by the continuance of the Lancashire trade improvement, bullish reports from the domestic cotton goods market and the indication of reviving activity in the Russian textile industry. The latter were found in reports that Liverpool firms had recently sold 5000 bales of cotton for shipment to Russia and that the same firms were making inquiries for additional supplies in the American markets. There were also reports in the ocean freight market here that inquiries were being made for ocean freight room for about 3000 bales from New York to Liverpool, which brokers bought might be connected in some way with Russian activities. Active months sold 10 to 20 points net higher with January touching 28.15c and March 28.37c and the close was within five or six points of the best on these positions. The maximum decline of 20 points was shown by September, an inactive month, while October was only 5 points net lower.

First Mortgage 6½% Serial Coupon Bonds
[SAFEGUARDED UNDER THE STRAUS PLAN]

SERIAL MATURITIES: 2 TO 17 YEARS

SECURITY: These bonds are secured by a direct closed first mortgage on the new Forest Park Hotel and the land on which it will be built, at the corner of Euclid Avenue and West Pine Boulevard, St. Louis. The building will be an extensive 6-story residential hotel structure, designed to be the finest property of its kind in the city.

EARNINGS: A conservative estimate of the net annual earnings of the property, based upon the actual return from similar properties, is placed at $230,000, or more than two and one-half times the greatest annual interest charge.

MANAGEMENT: The Forest Park Hotel will be under the same management and control as the Melbourne Hotel of St. Louis and the Bellerive Hotel of Kansas City. Both of these properties have been remarkably successful and the management is well qualified to make a success of this enterprise.

Completion of the building is unconditionally guaranteed to the bond-holders by S. W. Straus & Co. We have purchased this issue after careful investigation and offer it with our full recommendation. The bonds are surrounded with all the customary safeguards of the Straus Plan, including monthly deposits of principal and interest. Denominations, $1,000, $500 and $100.

586 MID-WINTER HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES

Five More Than Last Year—Commencement Exercises to Be Held This Week.

The public high schools of the city will graduate [illegible] boys and [illegible] girls, a total of 586, in the mid-winter class this week. The number again sets a record for January graduation, although it exceeds the number of a year ago by only five.

There are always more graduates in the June class, there having been [illegible] last June, the record for all classes. This is the first occasion for several years that the number of graduates has not exceeded greatly that of a year previous. The former increases were attributed to increased public interest in education, brought about by the war, and increasing population.

Two New Buildings Planned.

Congestion in the high schools has caused the necessity of adding two to the present group. The new Roosevelt High School has been started at Louisiana avenue and Hartford street, and another one is to be built at Euclid and Natural Bridge avenues. When these are completed it is possible that two of the present high schools may be turned into intermediate high schools, corresponding to Blewett Junior High.

Commencement exercises will be held this week [illegible] Harris Teachers' College and Sumner Teachers' College, the latter being for negro girls, both of which are ranked as junior colleges and at the elementary schools. As is customary, a scholarship for a full course at Washington University will be awarded to that graduate of each white high school who has attained the highest general average of scholarship in the class for the four-year course. Announcement of the names of scholarship winners will be made later.

Number at Each School.

The number of graduates at the high and normal schools follows: Soldan, [illegible]; McKinley, [illegible]; Cleveland, [illegible]; Central, [illegible]; Yeatman, [illegible]; Sumner, [illegible]; Harris Teachers' College, [illegible]; Sumner Teachers' College, [illegible].

The commencement programs have been set for the following dates: Wednesday, Harris Teachers' College, 10 a. m.; Sumner Teachers' College, 8 p. m.; Thursday, Soldan, 10 a. m.; Central, Cleveland, McKinley and Sumner, 8 p. m.; Friday, Yeatman, 10 a. m.

SARG'S STRING ARTISTS GIVE A VAUDEVILLE BILL

Puppet vaudeville was furnished by Tony Sarg's Marionettes at gatherings Friday afternoon and evening at Sheldon Auditorium. Seven puppeteers manipulated the figures and spoke their lines. A juggler, tossing a ball, was followed by a little girl's dialogue with her trick dog. A music lesson, in which the professor seated himself at the piano and instructed a pupil in the art of singing, was perhaps the best entertainment of the performance, and the professor's butler was an amusing marionette. Hindoo snake-charmers, and their trained serpent, were another group.

An animal play in three short acts, entitled "Uncle Wiggily's Adventures," was the other part of the program. At the performance yesterday afternoon and last night, a version of "Don Quixote" was the bill, and especial attention was given to costuming.

Poster Contest to Close Jan. 31.

The contest for the best poster expressing the spirit of the electrical industry conducted by the St. Louis Electrical Board of Trade will close Jan. 31. A prize of [illegible] has been offered.

(4) Ribbed or Plain Work.

Mrs. Kiernan, of Broadway, says she can make $5 to $6 a day with a TRY-ON KNITTER.

"When I first noticed one of you machines I never thought I could run it; in fact, the stockings I first made discouraged me, but after persistency and determination to make good, I am now able to make stockings that have a ready market in even the best stores.

"I can make men's, women's and children's stockings without much difficulty at all, and I do not hesitate in recommending your machine. I always feel that I have the knitter when I have spare time away from my household duties to make extra money in the comfort of my home, and if I felt I could not get another TRY-ON machine I would not dispose of it for many times what I paid for it. I have started now to make mittens. These are, of course, all-wool mittens, and I can dispose of them at a handsome price outside of the TRY-ON COMPANY.

"Very truly yours,
MRS. J. KIERNAN."

Nine Debutantes Honored at Gay Imperial Ball

American Beauty Roses, Southern Smilax and Elaborately Gowned Women Make Brilliant Scene at St. Louis Club.

THE Imperial ball, anticipated from one season to the next as the climax in formal entertainments, took place at the St. Louis Club Friday evening, in a setting equally as beautiful, if not more so, than those of former years. The history of this function dates back to the time of our grandfathers, when a nucleus of social leaders organized what was then known as the Home Circle. The Imperial, an outgrowth of that organization, always patronized by the same exclusive set, has come to form the central pillar upon which the social world in St. Louis is founded.

Into this circle were introduced Friday night nine of this season's debutantes, it being a custom of the Imperial to confer this honor upon certain of each season's buds.

Hundreds of American Beauty roses and garlands of Southern smilax, shipped to St. Louis for the purpose from Alabama, combined with the Imperial colors—rose and gold—decorated the entertainment rooms of the club. Here 400 guests assembled for an 8 o'clock dinner, followed by dancing until after midnight.

Entering the main dining room of the club, a view was afforded of tables seating from eight to 12 guests, the women in gorgeous evening gowns, many of them imported, contrasting with the severe black and white worn by the men. A long table seating the 28 patrons and patronesses had for its centerpiece a mammoth decoration of American Beauties and ferns, graduating to either end, where it was lighted by stately candelabra, each holding six lighted rose-colored tapers. Reed arches entwined with smilax spanned the ceiling, aiding the effect of a summer pergola in a rose garden. A soft pink glow was shed with indirect effect from great globes of American Beauty rose petals.

Dozens of the smaller tables, overflowing into the library, each bore a single rose candle in a silver holder embedded in roses. Great armfuls of pussy willows in wrought-iron standards were used near the foot of the grand staircase in lieu of the usual roses, and the balustrades were covered by quantities of smilax. The landing at the ballroom entrance, canopied with rose silk, supported by golden spears, held rose and gilt covered seats for the convenience of the guests.

The great ballroom mirror, facing the wide doorway, hung with the Imperial crown, the insignia of the organization, and festooned with gold-dipped smilax, formed the background for the receiving party. The decorative scheme was further enhanced by a rose silk ceiling covering, from which were suspended gold balls, stretching from the west end of the ballroom to the east, diffusing the light, and ending in a drapery caught to the wall by gold leaves. Tall Imperial golden vases, filled with American Beauties, were placed at either side of the mirror and appeared at intervals about the room, formed, as usual, an important part of the decorations. An orchestra, seated on a raised dias at one end of the room, was concealed by a wealth of palms and ferns.

The following is a list of the debutantes who received invitations to membership this year, and the patronesses who were included in the receiving line, with a brief description of some of their gowns:

Miss Helen Gratz, daughter of Benjamin Gratz, wore pink taffeta, made in the long-waisted basque effect. A basket was embroidered in green silk on the front of the full skirt, and the close-fitting bodice was partly veiled in thin gold tissue.

Miss Eleanor Richards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Richards, was gowned in pink lace veiling silver cloth. The bodice was high necked and sleeveless, and a narrow twisted girdle of silver cloth girdle encircled the waistline, with a cluster of French blue flowers falling over the full lace skirt which hung in points to the floor.

Miss Christine Vieth's gown was a Paris model brought from Europe last summer of old-fashioned heavy brocaded yellow silk. It is fashioned quaintly with a bouffant skirt over which hung lace shot with silver, and a close-fitting bodice with a low round neck line drooping over the shoulders. Miss Vieths is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar H. Vieths.

Miss Helen Mills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. H. Mills, wore orchid velvet, confined at the waist with a pearl girdle. A pearl and rhinestone bandeau was worn in her hair.

Miss Margaret Turner, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Hunt Turner Jr., was gowned in rose, a draped model of brocaded chiffon. Its only adornment was a rhinestone girdle.

White georgette formed the foundation for Miss Claire Garneau's gown. Its trimming was an all-over design of silver beads, and Miss Elizabeth Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Ray Carter, wore white satin, made with a bertha of silver lace, which was draped low on the tight-fitting bodice. The skirt was of the bouffant variety.

Miss Rebecca Chase, the daughter of Mrs. Henry Leverett Chase, wore orchid taffeta trimmed with roses of the material. It, as were some of the others, was created with the old-fashioned basque and drooping shoulders, and a bouffant skirt.

Mrs. John Laurence Mauran chose a metallic gown of pale blue and silver embroidered with pearls and rhinestones. A girdle of the material lined with cloth of gold formed a train at the back. Her flowers were pink roses.

Mrs. Henry Clarkson's Scott's gown was of black velvet, heavily embroidered with pearl and rhinestone passementrie in a wheat design. It was made with a short train. Mrs. Scott carried

MISS ELIZABETH BEMIS BECOMES BRIDE OF SAMUEL D. CONANT IN BRILLIANT CEREMONY

RIVALING the Imperial ball in social importance was the wedding yesterday of Miss Elizabeth Thompson Bemis and Samuel Dozier Conant. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Judson W. Bemis and the bridegroom the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Conant of 4479 Washington boulevard. The ceremony was performed in Christ Church Cathedral, by the Rev. George E. Norton of St. Michael's and All Angels' Church, assisted in the chancel by Dean Scarlett, rector of the cathedral. An antiphonal choir of male voices sang the processional and recessional music. The stately edifice, lighted only at the altar by cathedral tapers, was decorated with greenery and Easter lilies in tall standards.

A large bridal party, headed by the groomsmen and ushers—Harry Gordon of New York, Whitelaw Terry, Winston Jones, John Shepley, Edwin Slocum, Andrew McCreery, Oliver Anderson and William McCandless—preceded the bride and her father to the altar. George Conant served his brother as best man. Following the men came the bridesmaids, in gowns of Canton crepe shading from flesh-colored, worn by Miss Dorothy Simmons, who walked alone, to Christmas red. They were made alike, with close-fitting bodices and full skirts, seven inches from the floor in front, graduating to slipper-heel length at the back. Poke bonnet shaped of brown lace, with side bows of brown ribbon, shot with silver, completed their costumes, and they carried Easter lilies tied with bands of red satin ribbon. Misses Winifred and Eleanor Croft of Pittsburg wore a shade next to flesh, almost a pink, followed by Miss Audrey Faust and Miss Margaret Chandler, in a still deeper color. The latter pair in turn were followed by Miss Helen Isham of Chicago, a debutante of this season, and Miss Jane Spader of Morristown, N. J. Mrs. Oliver Anderson and Miss Louise Bemis, sisters of the bride, immediately preceded her and served as matron and maid of honor respectively. Mrs. Anderson's gown was of deep red crepe, made with a bertha of brown lace.

The bride's gown was of white velvet. Pearls, embroidered about the bodice, and an apronlike drapery which fell from the waist in front formed the trimming, and an appliqued design of pearls was used in lieu of a girdle. The neck line was high, after the prevailing mode, and there were no sleeves. An unusual feature was the velvet train, with motifs of rose point and duchesse lace, from beneath which the material had been removed, displaying the exquisite pattern of the lace to better advantage, and which was lined with cloth of silver. The bridal veil was of tulle, held to her coiffure with rose point lace, and her flowers were white orchids and valley lilies.

After the ceremony about 200 of the guests motored to the Bemis home in Brentmoor for the reception. The bridal table, decorated with white roses and baby's breath, seated several additional guests, including Misses Margaret Turner, Rebecca Chase, Frances West, Catherine Louise Crunden, Elizabeth Terry, Eleanor Simmons and Mary Denman Clark and Messrs. Arthur Crunden, Charles Mulliken, Kimball Battle, Boyle Rodes, dark red roses. Her daughter, Miss Alice Scott, was one of the nine debutantes.

Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer's gown was of red and gold brocade. She carried red roses to match, combined with valley lilies.

Velvet in the peachblow shade was used in fashioning Mrs. Sidney Walker's gown. Her necklace was of pearls and she carried sunburst roses.

Mrs. George D. Markham was beautifully gowned in cloth of silver.

Miss Mary Lionberger wore dark green velvet. The drapery was caught with a rhinestone buckle, and her jewels were emeralds and diamonds. She carried roses and gardenias.

Mrs. Charles Parsons Pettus selected a white velvet gown for the occasion. It was draped and embroidered in an all-over design of pearls, with pearl shoulder straps.

Mrs. Samuel C. Davis was gowned in a Parisian model of blue taffeta, made simply in the draped style, and with it she carried pink roses.

Mrs. John T. Davis Jr. wore a gorgeous creation of crystals and coral sequins, made with a train, and her flowers were premier roses.

Mrs. Samuel W. Fordyce's gown was of a peculiar shade of yellow velvet shading into silver. A band of fur encircled the waistline, with rhinestones also used as trimming. She wore a pearl necklace.

Mrs. Harry Langenberg's gown was blue satin and her flowers yellow roses. She also wore pearls.

Mrs. Daniel Kayser Catlin and Mrs. Robert McKittrick Jones complete the list of patronesses.

Mrs. Charles H. Morrill was unable to accept because of mourning in the family.

William Crapo of Detroit; Marion Niedringhaus and John Curlee.

Mr. and Mrs. Conant have departed on their honeymoon, to be gone four weeks, and upon their return will make their home temporarily with Mr. and Mrs. Bemis. Later they will build a home in Wydown terrace.

Mrs. Conant gave her attendants French enamel powder containers for their dresses, and Mr. Conant presented his best man and groomsmen with brown leather bill cases, finished with silver monograms.

The bride was educated at Mary Institute and Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn. She was presented to society last season and is a member of the Imperial and the Junior League.

Mr. Conant attended Smith Academy and is a graduate of Princeton University, class of 1918. He served overseas with the army during the war.

Miss Helen Mills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. H. Mills, who have taken a suite in the Gatesworth Hotel for the remainder of the winter, is giving a house party at her parents' country home, "Mulberry Mill," at Sulphur Springs, Mo., over the week-end. Mrs. Mills went to Sulphur Springs yesterday morning and will chaperon the party. The guests, who included about three or four of the debutantes and their escorts, motored to Sulphur Springs later in the day.

Mrs. L. Ray Carter of 8 Portland place and her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Carter, will leave St. Louis Thursday for a tour through the East. They will go directly to New York and Miss Carter will visit various other points as the guest of former classmates at Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn. Mrs. Carter and Miss Carter also are planning a trip to Bermuda.

Misses Eunice and Betty Hodgman, daughters of Mrs. Marshall Hodgman of 5379 Waterman avenue, will entertain a party of friends at the St. Louis Country Club dinner-dance Feb. 3. The affair is to honor Miss Margaret Chandler, daughter of Warren M. Chandler.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

To Relieve Callouses Permanently

Callouses are caused by bones, which dig into the flesh. Nature forms these callouses to protect both the bones and nerves from injury. Correction can come only through supporting the lowered bones in their normal position.

Wizard Lightfoot Callous Relievers permit building up at the exact point support is needed. Instantly the pain of callouses is relieved and the callouses soon disappear.

LOOK To Your Feet!

If you understand what causes callouses you will appreciate how quickly and effectively Wizard Lightfoot Arch Builders and Callous Relievers get rid of them. Callouses are formed by pressure from the lowered bone in the ball of the foot which has been forced out of normal position. Remove this pressure and the callous instantly ceases to hurt and soon disappears.

CORONA

Come and See the New Corona

An Office Typewriter

All Corona needed to make it a complete typewriter for business use—with the ability of $100.00 machines—was these four new features:

1st. Automatic Ribbon Reverse.

2d. 10-inch Carriage—wider than any other portable typewriter.

3d. Standard Portable keyboard. Simplest of all typewriter keyboards and the easiest to memorize and use.

4th. Improved Line Spacer. One motion returns carriage and spaces for the next line.

Corona weighs less than seven pounds. The frame is aluminum, instead of the usual heavy cast iron.

Free Service for One Year.

Mail the Coupon. Let Corona do its own talking. It will sell itself.

Whatever your writing needs may be—personal or business—you'll be amazed and delighted with the new Corona. You'll want one at once.

The success of Corona has astounded the typewriter industry. The secret of it is Corona's folding carriage—long type bars—light touch and speedy action—strong construction and light weight.

These standard features have been popular for over 16 years. A half million users—more than of all other portables combined—prefer it to any other writing machine.

And now the new model Corona is all that any standard typewriter should be—and the price, complete with carrying case, is only $50.

You can buy Corona for a small cash payment and only $5.00 per month, with privilege of one week's trial. Come and see it or mail coupon.

Credit Men Will Meet Tomorrow.

A special meeting of the St. Louis Association of Credit Men will be held at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow at the City Club in honor of J. Harry Tregoe, secretary-treasurer of the National Association of Credit Men, who will speak.

Mrs. Selden P. Spencer and Mrs. James A. Reed, wives of the Missouri Senators, were at home Thursday to many friends.

SOCIAL ITEMS ABOUT MISSOURIANS IN WASHINGTON

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Senator and Mrs. Selden P. Spencer were among the members of the Missouri delegation who occupied boxes during the lecture Wednesday by Emile Coue at Memorial Continental Hall. The Senator and his wife took part in the informal reception which followed the demonstrations by M. Coue, instructor in auto-suggestion.

M. Coue received an enthusiastic reception here and during his visit to the Senate was surrounded by Senators eager to test his powers or to watch him exercise them on others. Vice President Coolidge, even, unbent from his usual laconic manner and grasped the little Frenchman's hand warmly.

It happened that while M. Coue was in Washington President Harding was confined to his apartments with a slight attack of the grip, which once more has the national capital in its grip. Mrs. Harding was eager to see M. Coue and it is said she was hopeful that he might be able to cure her of her lingering ailment. Whether M. Coue called on Mrs. Harding is not known. It was understood that any visit by him was to be unannounced, so that public interest and judgment might not be aroused over the results in her particular case.

Secretaries Wallace and Davis and Postmaster-General Work have the "flu" and in every branch of the Government the victims are numbered by scores. Naturally, this has affected the week socially. Rear Admiral Robert E. Coontz has a slight case.

However, the presence of influenza did not prevent Mrs. Joseph W. Folk, wife of the former Governor of Missouri, from holding Thursday one of the most largely attended of her winter receptions. The beautiful Folk home on Woodland drive was crowded for hours, not only with the Missouri colony, but with official Washington and diplomatic folk as well.

Mrs. Sumner Welles and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman poured tea for Mrs. Folk.

Speaking of Missouri folk, it is interesting to note the changes which have taken place in the Missouri colony since last season. Among the interesting new members are Mr. and Mrs. John H. Carroll, who have taken a house in upper Connecticut avenue and are accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John H. Carroll Jr. In the family of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, two sub-debs, Miss Alice and Miss Cynthia Davis, have been much in evidence during the holiday affairs for the youngsters. Others in the St. Louis group are Mrs. Charles Hoyle and her charming daughters, Misses Mary and Ella Hoyle. The acknowledged social leaders of the Missouri colony are Mr. and Mrs. Breckinridge Long.

St. Louis will hear with great interest of the latest exploit of Mrs. Clarence Crittenden Calhoun, who is remembered there as the dashing Daisy Breaux, daughter of Mrs. Gustav Breaux of New Orleans, who visited frequently in St. Louis a decade or so ago. Mrs. Calhoun, who is quite the leader socially of the married set in unofficial Washington, is likewise president of the Women's Universal Alliance. This organization, which has for its object the unification of the women of the world, is very, very dear to her heart. Society sat up with a gasp last week when the announcement was made through the press that "Daisy" Calhoun would appear twice daily on the stage at one of the local vaudeville houses. The news then filtered out that it was in no song or dance or vaudeville skit, but simply in a 10-minute speech and recital of an original poem dealing with the purposes of the alliance. Society packed the house at every performance. Mrs. Calhoun had a precedent in the fact that Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt of New York appeared on the vaudeville stage in New York on behalf of the Episcopal Alliance.

Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant was one of the guests invited by Secretary of the Treasury and Miss Mellon to meet Secretary of State and Mrs. Hughes. The other guests included Col. George Harvey, American Ambassador to Great Britain, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Henry White and Mary Roberts Rinehart.

A SURE WAY TO END DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

"Mother Why Not Try The Newer Form Of Iron

And Be Strong and Well and Have Nice Rosy Cheeks Instead of Being Nervous and Irritable All the Time and Looking So Haggard and Old?"

"The doctor gave some to Susie Smith's mother and she was worse off than you are and now she looks just fine." There can be no healthy, beautiful rosy-cheeked women without iron. Good physicians have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more of the newer form of iron—Nuxated Iron—for their nervous, run-down, weak, haggard-looking patients. When the iron goes from the blood of women the roses go from their cheeks, and strength and vitality from their bodies. This newer form of iron, like the iron in your blood and like the iron in certain green vegetables, is highly recommended to thousands who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance. It is surprising how many people suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you the proper amount of good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale, and sickly-looking, just like a plant trying to grow in soil deficient in iron.

You can tell the women with plenty of iron in their blood—beautiful, healthy, rosy-cheeked women, full of life, vim and vitality. You can get Nuxated Iron from any druggist under an absolute guarantee that it will do the same for you or your money back.

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED WITH SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied, the itching stops, and after two or three applications the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

A small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store.

Hair Often Ruined by Careless Washing

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub the Mulsified in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it is very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

ESTATE VALUED AT $3,500,000; ONLY $330,000 FOUND

Attorneys at a Loss to Know Where to Search for Assets Left by William R. Prickett.

PERMISSION TO OPEN DEPOSIT BOX DENIED

Brother of Widow Believes Husband Was Worth $1,500,000 — Bankers' Estimate Is $3,500,000.

An exhaustive search for undiscovered stocks and bonds held by William R. Prickett, who died in Edwardsville, Ill., Dec. 23, was being planned yesterday by attorneys representing the widow, Mrs. Mary Josephine Prickett.

Assets of the estate, discovered since Prickett's death, aggregate $330,000. They include $250,000 in cash and bonds found in a safety deposit box in an Edwardsville bank and real estate valued at $80,000 situated in Edwardsville and vicinity.

Charles S. Gillespie, banker and brother of Mrs. Prickett, testified in the St. Louis Circuit Court Friday that he believed the total value of the estate was $1,500,000. Edwardsville bankers who were more or less intimately acquainted with Prickett's business affairs yesterday said they believed the total value of the estate was at least $3,500,000.

Edwardsville associates of Prickett say he was rated as being worth $1,000,000 30 years ago. They say he invested only in gilt-edged securities and that his living expenses were low. They believe in the natural process of compounding interest, Prickett's fortune has practically doubled twice in those 30 years.

Estimates of the Estate.

The attorneys for the widow, cognizant of Prickett's affairs from their personal acquaintance with him, believe the estate's total value far exceeds the $330,000 thus far discovered. But they frankly admit they are at a loss to know where to search for additional assets. They announced yesterday that records of Prickett's business transactions for the last five years were missing from the safe in his office on Purcell street in Edwardsville, and that the safe was opened the day after the funeral without knowledge of the widow.

The first and only step thus far taken in the search for additional securities, was blocked by the St. Louis Circuit Court Friday when the widow's petition for permission to open a safety deposit box at the First National Bank was denied.

Records of the bank showed that the box was held in the name of Edward I. Prickett of New York, a son by a former marriage. The bank contended that the widow had no right to examine the contents. The court upheld the bank, in the absence of proof that Prickett had ever placed anything in the box.

Mrs. Prickett testified that she had on several occasions accompanied her husband to the First National Bank and had waited for him outside the door of the safety deposit vault while he went in. But she had not actually seen him place anything in the box.

Conversations Are Barred.

Under the rule of law excluding as testimony conversations between husband and wife, which are regarded as "privileged" she was not permitted to state what her husband had told her about the contents of the box. In her petition for an order of court she said she believed $100,000 worth of securities were in the box.

Frank Sanders, cashier of the Bank of Edwardsville, testified that he accompanied Prickett to St. Louis, at the latter's invittain, some years ago, when the box was rented and placed in the son's name.

Records of the bank, pres[illegible] at the hearing, show that Pri[illegible] last visited the box in October. The same records show that the son visited the box Dec. 23, the day that Prickett died.

A hearing on the admission to probate of Prickett's will is set for Jan. 28 at Edwardsville. The will consists of a single sheet, directing that the estate be divided into four equal parts, one for the widow and one for each of the three children by the former marriage—Mrs. H. Clay Pierce of St. Louis and Chicago, wife of the chairman of the board of the Pierce Oil Corporation; Mrs. Macie Drummond of Santa Barbara, Cal., divorced wife of Harrison I. Drummond of St. Louis, and Edward I. Prickett of New York.

Mrs. Prickett and Edward I. Prickett are named executors. Attorneys for Mrs. Prickett indicated today that she would oppose the appointment of the son as co-executor on the ground that he was a nonresident of Illinois, having been in New York for 12 years. Prickett claims Edwardsville as his legal residence.

Mrs. Prickett also is considering renunciation of the will to accept widow's dower, which under Illinois law is one-third of the estate. If the total of the estate remains at $330,000 the widow's share would be increased about $25,000 by such renunciation.

PLACES U. S. SEEKS TO CLOSE SOLD TO INNOCENT PARTIES

About 15 Buildings in Which Repeated Violation of Dry Law Is Charged Have Changed Hands.

Efforts of the Government to close for a year, under the nuisance provisions of the Volstead law, approximately 15 buildings in which repeated violation of liquor laws is charged, have been complicated by sale of the buildings to innocent parties since prosecutions have been instituted, Special Assistant Attorney-General Dyott said yesterday.

The situation became known yesterday when Walter Kelly, an attorney, appeared before Federal Judge Faris seeking information concerning the Government's petition to "padlock" for a year the roadhouse on the Olive Street road known as Roth's Grove. The Government charges repeated violation of liquor laws in the bar at the grove operated by a son of Mrs. Madeline Roth, former owner.

$100,000 Paid for Tract.

Kelly said the 29-acre tract on which the buildings are situated has been purchased for $100,000 by interests who desire to subdivide the property, but are uncertain as to their rights, in view of the injunction proceeding. Kelly said the purchasers were unaware of the case when the deal was closed.

Judge Faris said he had not examined the law on this point, but that common sense impelled him to the opinion that an order of court closing the buildings would not affect the entire tract of property on which they were situated.

Dyott's Attitude.

He advised Kelly to consult with Dyott with a view of getting the matter speedily before the court for adjudication. Dyott said he is not disposed to permit the former owners to pocket the $100,000 without some penalty for their alleged law violations.

Dyott said that in the 30 such cases now pending about half of the buildings in question have been sold since proceedings were instituted and that the present owners are asking for advice as to their rights in the property.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really Better Than Ready-Made Cough Syrup, and Saves About $2. Easily and Quickly Prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple homemade cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Coffee, one of the best known specialists in the United States and authority on the treatment of deafness, head noises, ear diseases, catarrh of the nose, head and throat, diseased tonsils and turbinated bones, has established permanent offices in St. Louis. He is in his St. Louis office every Wednesday and Thursday. He says 50 per cent of the cases of deafness and head noises can be helped or completely relieved, any case where the tissues are not injured and all cases of catarrh of the nose, head, throat, turbinated bones, diseased tonsils and system can be relieved, especially cases of deafness where one ear is bad and the other just getting started with crackling or other noises that get better and worse with each cold. He says catarrh is a constitutional condition, it may affect the system, stomach, blood, nerves, causing rheumatism and neuralgia. He originated the treatment that cured himself of deafness and catarrh. He has published many booklets and pamphlets on these subjects. He wants every reader of this paper to have one of these booklets. Treated thousands of cases; 39 years' experience; is absolutely reliable. J. R. Meyer, East St. Louis, had catarrh, deafness and head noises for 20 years; was completely relieved by this treatment. Alexander Glenn suffered with catarrh for 35 years, deafness and head noises three years, 70 years old; was completely cured with this treatment. P. V. Krone had catarrh, asthma and terrible smothering spells, constant cough; was completely relieved. J. C. Patterson had catarrh, deafness, head noises for eight years; was 88 years old; was completely relieved. Before submitting to an operation on the ears, nose, throat or tonsils, see him; he will examine you free this month. He is treating thousands of cases like the above. If you need glasses fitted he will make a special discount this month. If you cannot come to St. Louis to consult him personally, write for booklets on catarrh, deafness, head noises and cross-eyes and eye diseases; he will send them free. His St. Louis offices are crowded every week. He is there Wednesday and Thursday, room 409 Odd Fellows' Bldg., 816 Olive st. Phone Olive 8413. Hours from 8:30 to 4:30. He will see patients no other hours.

CAMPAIGN NEXT MONTH FOR COMMUNITY FUND

Charities for 40 Organizations in City and County Will Be Collected at One Time.

The Community Fund of St. Louis, an organization recently formed to collect charities for 40 organizations in St. Louis and St. Louis County, at one time and through one centralized office, will conduct its first campaign during the week of Feb. 25. The amount to be obtained has not been decided, but will be announced later. Campaign headquarters will be in the Central National Bank Building, Seventh and Olive streets.

This system of organized collecting is used in many of the large cities of America, all of which report it to be successful, and meeting with the approval of both the societies and the donors. It eliminates the many different campaigns conducted at various times during each year, but does not prohibit the giver from designating where his individual subscription should be used. In this way the individual associations do not lose their identity.

Investigation has shown the cost of collection to be materially less under the community system. Individual campaigns average about 15 per cent expenses, which must be taken out of the collections, it is said, while the local organization hopes to decrease the cost of their campaign to 5 per cent or less. As low an average as 2.8 per cent has been reached. Investigation proves that more givers and greater collections result from one yearly appeal.

Among the organizations participating in the coming campaign are: Barnes Hospital, Board of Religious Organizations, Children's Aid Society, Missouri Association for the Blind, Missouri Association for Occupational Therapy, Missouri Social Hygiene Association, St. Louis Children's Hospital, St. Louis Committee of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, St. Louis County Welfare Association, St. Louis Provident Association, Salvation Army, Visiting Nurse Association, Young Men's Christian Association and Young Women's Christian Association.

NEW MACHINE STAMPS AND CANCELS MAIL AT ONE TIME

Great Saving to Department and Users Who Have Large Amounts of Post to Send Out.

Expedition of mail has been increased by a recent invention which is in use at many organizations where large numbers of letters are mailed every day. The new machine automatically stamps and cancels about 250 letters a minute, and eliminates two steps in postoffice routine: concelling and facing. This makes it possible to take this "metered mail," as it is called, direct to the separation cases at postoffices.

The device seals, stamps, cancels, stacks and counts the letters. The sender buys any number of revolutions, each revolution being worth the price of a stamp, from the Postal Department, which retains sole possession of the meter key. Any price revolution, corresponding to denominations of stamps in use, may be purchased. The machine prints its stamp in a color corresponding to that of an adhesive stamp of the same price.

Book of Job,' 'Steve' and 'Land o' Romance' Hold the Week's Stage

Next Week to Bring Richard Bennett in Andreyeff's "He Who Gets Slapped" and Robert B. Mantell in Classical Series.

WITH Fiske O'Hara and Eugene O'Brien arriving tonight at the American and Jefferson, respectively, in new plays entitled "Land o' Romance" and "Steve," the interest of the literary playgoer turns to Stuart Walker's dramatization of "The Book of Job," which will be presented at the Odeon Friday evening and Saturday afternoon and night, and also to the announcement for next week that the Theater Guild's production of Andreyeff's "He Who Gets Slapped" will appear at the Jefferson, while Robert B. Mantell will be at the American in Shakespearean and classic repertory.

The O'Hara conveyance, written by Anna Nichols, tells a love story, laid in Ireland, with more or less familiar features. O'Brien, popular both on stage and screen, combines both in "Steve," which is a narrative centering about a moving picture actor. The Woodward Players, at the Garrick, are undertaking "The Easiest Way," by Eugene Walters. Rae Samuels is headliner at the Orpheum, and "The Troubles of 1922" is listed at the Empress.

"The Song of Solomon" and "The Book of Job" are regarded by critics as examples of the ancient Hebrew dramatic poem. Mr. Walker, in arranging the latter for the stage, has followed the convictions of scholarship by dividing the biblical text into three episodes—prologue, poem and epilogue. The prologue and epilogue are regarded as having a folk origin, while the poem was interpolated by a later philosopher. The poem is nothing less than an examination into the justice of divine government of the world.

In Three Divisions.

AT the beginning of this mystery play, the stage is darkened, save for two illuminated niches at either side. In each, like a statue, stands the figure of a woman; these, in alternate passages, declaim the prologue. They vanish, and Job is discovered, groveling on the ground. Then begins the poem, in which he debates with his friends, Eliphaz, Bildad and Zophar, and later the young Elihu. The voice of Jehovah speaks from the whirlwind—for which thrilling stage effects are provided; and then the two narrators speak the epilogue.

George Somnes, who takes the role of Job, was admired here a few winters ago for his work with a small stock company which gave classic plays at Hotel Statler. Misses Judith Lowry and Genevieve Addleman are the narrators. Music, arranged from old Hebrew chants by Elliot Schenck, will be played back stage by harp, piano, violoncello and chimes.

"The Book of Job" was first presented at the Booth Theater in New York, at which time the cast, in addition to Somnes, included Walter Hampden as Elihu, and the late David Bispham intoning the Voice from the Whirlwind.

The Week's Two Plays.

IN "Land o' Romance" there is the usual noble and warm-hearted Irish youth, inevitably gifted with a good tenor voice. This time he is rich, and is nearly caught in a matrimonial trap by the match-making mother of a girl he doesn't love, but is saved by the cleverness of a ragged street gamin whom he has befriended. In the cast are Miss Pat Clary, who plays the waif; Dudley Clements, Mae Washburn, Florence Thompson, Emmy Knill, J. E. Miller, Thomas McGrath and Herbert De Guerre. O'Hara will sing a number of songs.

"Steve," produced under the direction of Laura Hope Crewes, marks the gifted comedienne's debut in Fiske O'Hara and Miss Pat Clary, in "Land o' Romance" —American.

Eugene O'Brien of stage and screen, in 'Steve" —Shubert-Jefferson.

Virginia Brown Faire, Guy Bates Post and Patsy Ruth Miller, in "Omar, the Tentmaker"—Grand Central.

William Farnum and Lois Wilson, in "Without Compromise"—Liberty.

A change was made necessary in filming "When Knighthood Was in Flower," on account of a superstition of the actors. In the shooting of the garden party at the court of Louis XII it had been decided to have several gorgeous peacocks strutting about the garden to give additional color and realism to the scene. But such a hue and cry went up from the actors when they learned the birds of ill omen were to appear in the scene that the idea had to be abandoned. Spring lambs were substituted for the birds.

Now Jane Cowl Is to Try Hand at Juliet

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.

UNDETERRED by Ethel Barrymore's debacle in the part of Juliet, Miss Jane Cowl will try her fortunes as Shakspeare's heroine Wednesday night at Henry Miller's Theater. In the cast will be Rolio Peters as Romeo, Dennis King as Mercutio, Robert Ayrston as Friar Laurence, John Parrish as Paris, Gordon Burby, Grace Hampton, Lionel Hogarth, La Live Brownell and John Crowley.

The Moscow Art Theater's third bill, this week at Jolson's Fifty-ninth Street Theater, will be Tchekoff's last play, "The Cherry Orchard," with his widow, Mme. Olga Knipper-Tchekova, in a prominent role. Mme. Nazimova will return to the speaking stage Monday night, at the Selwyn Theater, in "Dagmar," by Louis K. Anspacher, adapted from the Hungarian of Ferencz Herzceg.

On Monday evening also "Lady Butterfly," a new musical comedy by Clifford Grey and Werner Janssen, with Marjorie Gateson leading the cast, will be disclosed at the Globe Theater. "Extra," a comedy written by Jack Alicoate and produced by the author and William Collier Jr., will make its bow Tuesday night at the Longacre.

The newly decorated and rebuilt Winter Garden will reopen Wednesday night with "The Dancing Girl," a type of intimate musical play such as this theater has not housed here-

What They Are Doing in the Movie Studios

Cullen Landis has been engaged by Vitagraph for one of the leading roles in "Masters of Men," the special production from the thrilling sea story by Morgan Robertson. He will play opposite Wanda Hawley in the all-star cast.

Jess Robbins broke all records and upset all precedents when he produced the newspaper story, "A Front Page Story," for Vitagraph. There isn't a pad or pencil in it.

Some startling contrasts in characterizations by actors are often called for by motion picture producers. Ernest Torrence had just finished portraying the role of a simple-minded clown in "Singed Wings" for Paramount when he was called upon to become an Indian scout and adventurer of the plains in the picturization of "The Covered Wagon."

When the white members of the company making "The Covered Wagon" discovered that the squaws were praying for victory for the Indians just before the big attack on the wagon train began, they became nervous. Some of them were afraid that if the squaws were so earnest about it the excited braves might slip some real ammunition into their guns.

"Bella Donna," Pola Negri's first American picture, in which she will star for Paramount with Conway Tearle, Conrad Nagel and Lois Wilson in support, has been completed. Ouida Bergere adapted Robert Hichens' story for the Polish star.

During the filming of scenes in Cecil B. De Mille's latest Paramount production, "Adam's Rib," somebody told Anna Q. Nilsson, a featured player, that they thought she looked sweet. And she thought they were trying to pull an old joke, because her father runs a sugar refinery in Sweden.

Nita Naldi, the statuesque screen vamp, is leading a strenuous life these days at the Paramount Long Island studio. She is working in two pictures. While finishing her role in Allan Dwan's production of "The Glimpses of the Moon," she began work in George Melford's production, "You Can't Fool Your Wife," in which she will be featured with Leatrice Joy and Lewis Stone.

Antonio Moreno, who appears as leading man with Gloria Swanson in "My American Wife" and is featured in support of Mary Miles Minter in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," is to be co-starred with Bebe Daniels in "The Exciters."

"The Custard Cup," widely read novel, has been put into screen form by Fox Film Corporation, under the direction of Herbert Brenon, and will be released next month. Mary Carr is the featured player. She will be seen in a picture which is entirely different from the "mother" story which has made her famous, her character being that of a woman who possesses the rare quality of always seeing the bright side of life.

Charles Horan has been engaged by Fox Film Corporation to direct "Does It Pay?" the scenario being the work of Howard Irving Young.

'Omar, the Tentmaker,' 'Pawned,' 'Ebb Tide' on Photoplay Bills

Farnum in "Without Compromise," "The Third Alarm" and "The Power of a Lie" Also at Local Houses.

Guy Bates Post in "Omar the Tentmaker," a picture adaptation of his stage success, is the week's screen attraction at the Grand Central Theater. In the cast are Virginia Brown Faire, Patsy Ruth Miller, Noah Beery and "Lefty" Flynn."

This is the story of the Persian poet and his sweetheart, Shireen—a beautiful romance until the girl is ordered to the harem of the Shah. Refusing his jewels and love, she is cast into prison, but a faithful servant assists her in escaping.

Omar, meanwhile, languishes, and from a brilliant young student becomes a derelict in the tent-making establishment of his father. It is not until years afterward that he and Shireen are reunited.

An added attraction is the appearance of the Oriole Terrace Record Orchestra, which comes direct from the Palace Theater, New York.

"Ebb Tide," a picturization of a story by Robert Louis Stevenson, is the week's feature at the Missouri. Regeneration of a man who has sunk to the lowest level of degradation, the "ebb tide" of man's affairs, is the theme.

James Kirkwood plays "the man" and Lila Lee is seen in the leading feminine role. Other featured parts are in the hands of Raymond Hatton, George Fawcett, Noah Beery and Jacqueline Logan.

Egbert Van Alstyne, song composer, will appear in person at every performance throughout the week and will feature some of his new song hits.

Larry Semon, in his new comedy, "The Counter Jumper," leads the laughing subjects on the program.

William Farnum in "Without Compromise" is the feature picture of the Liberty's bill.

Sheriff Leighton didn't believe a six-shooter was necessary in preserving law and order, even though the denisons of the little frontier town were rough. He tamed them, and when his own foster sister was murdered, he went out and captured the murderer after a desperate hand-to-hand fight in a dark cave, and then protected his prisoner from the mob that wanted to lynch him. There is a thrilling climax when the identity of the masked leader of the mob is revealed.

"The Third Alarm,'" with Ralph Lewis and Johnny Walker, is presented at the West End Lyric and Capitol Theaters this week, remaining at the West End Lyric for four days only. Beginning Wednesday for the last half, Anita Stewart in "Rose of the Sea" will be shown there.

"The Third Alarm" is a story about firemen that goes into the home life as well as revealing a story of heroism in action. The heart-interest of the picture is derived from the theme that depicts a great understanding between the veteran fireman and his horses, and the heartache of the man when motor equipment supplants the faithful horses. An apartment-hotel is burned to the ground. The old retired fireman and one of his horses prove to be the heroes of the occasion, performing a rescue in which the horse leaps through a wall of flames.

"Pawned," with Tom Moore and Edith Roberts as the leading players, is the picture attraction at the Liberty.

This photoplay gains its title from a series of pledges, either willingly or otherwise made by the principal characters. One pawns his life to the service of an international gambler. Another pawns his soul to drugs, another to drink, and the heroine pledges her hand in marriage as a loveless bride to save the life of the man she loves.

Guido Ciccolini, tenor, and Vera Curtis, soprano, remain over at the Delmonte for another week, and an added musical feature will be the appearance of Leo Ornstein, a noted pianist, at every performance, the management has announced.

The Rivoli's feature for the week is "The Power of a Lie," a melodramatic film based on a Norwegian novel of the same title. Mabel Julienne Scott has the leading feminine role. The Leather Pusher series continues.

"One Exciting Night," David Wark Griffith's thrilling mystery picture, goes into its second week at the Pershing.

Florence Vidor has been engaged by the Warner Brothers to play the part of Carol Kennicott in the picturization of Sinclair Lewis' novel, "Main Street," under the direction of Harry Beaumont. Other players added to the cast include Louise Fazenda, Noah Beery, Robert Gordon, Josephine Crowell, Harry Meyers and Monte Blue, who plays the lead as Dr. Kennicott."

Henry B. Walthall, the "Little Colonel" of Griffith's "Birth of a Nation," plays an important role in Harry Carey's first starring vehicle, "The Kick-Back." Despite the fact that he portrayed a heroic part in "The Birth of a Nation," Walthall has been playing villainous roles since then.

Rae Samuels, headliner — Orpheum.

Mabel Julienne Scott and Philip Smalley, in "The Power of a Lie"—Rivoli.

Tom Moore and Edith Roberts, in "Pawned"—Delmonte.

Ralph Lewis and Josephine Adair, in "The Third Alarm"—West End Lyric and Capitol.

Man of Letters Is Hero of Latest Guitry Play

PARIS, Jan. 20.

BECAUSE of the illness of Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, the role of Mme. Levaille, in Sacha Guitry's latest play, "Un Sujet de Roman," is being played, and admirably, by Mlle. Henriette Roggers, at the Theater Edouard Sept. The playwright's father, Lucien Guitry, in the eyes of Paris the greatest of living actors, wins another triumph in the new role written by his son—not a painter or scientist, this time, but a man of letters.

The subject of the romance is one Levaille, a great author, who lives in an ivory tower. He is venerated by the inner circle of lovers of literature, but is almost unknown to the wider public. This fact his emptypated wife cannot endure. In her eyes success consists in the production of best sellers, financial earnings and such badges as the red ribbon of the Legion of Honor. She regards her husband as an utter failure. He would leave her, but for his beloved daughter.

Levaille has hidden the manuscript of his masterpiece because his wife has forced him to sign a contract with a publisher specializing in sensational novels. When a young author asks for the hand of his daughter, Levaille gives the manuscript to him and tells him to publish it in his own name.

LEVAILLE then became the victim of a stroke and is half paralyzed. This is the wife's opportunity. She takes charge of the household, writes, asking for the Legion of Honor ribbon, gives a half-finished manuscript found in the desk to an unscrupulous newspaper man that he may finish making sensational novel, and de vaille's notes.

But the husband recovers able to undo all the harm. to annul the demand for the ribbon, saying: "I was crazy" a struggle with himself cides that the only really denouement is to pardon And Mme. Levaille, who has read letters to her hu the world's greatest me they treat him respectfully ter," realizes after 40 years has been sharing the life of man.

JANE COWL IS TO TRY HAND AT JULIET

In the cast are Trini, Span- [illegible] dancer; Benny Leonard, Marie [illegible], Tom Burke, Lou Holtz, [illegible] Doner and many others. On [illegible] evening "A Square Peg," by Lewis Beach, will be presented at the Punch and Judy Theater.

Cast for "Peer Gynt."

TONIGHT, at the Garrick, Paul Claudel's mystery play, "The Tidings Brought to Mary," came to a close, in order to make way for rehearsals of the Theater Guild's next production, Ibsen's "Peer Gynt," which will open Feb. 5. In the cast will be Joseph Schildkraut, Louise Closser Hale, Selena Royle, Francene Wouters, Lillebil Ibsen, Charles Holton, E. J. Robinson, Elise Bartlett, Stanley Wood, Helen Westley, Stanley Howlett, William Franklin, Albert Carroll, Philip Leigh and Helen Sheridan.

Polly Damrosch, daughter of Walter Damrosch, director of the New York Symphony Orchestra, will have her debutante role in "Rita Coventry," a dramatization of Julian Street's novel, in which Dorothy Francis has been cast for the part of a prima donna.

Following the fiasco of "Lady Cristalinda," which suffered a run of hard luck topping the season's worst breaks, Fay Bainter has quit the management of William Harris Jr. Her career under his direction won a fortune for this producer and Samuel Shipman, author of "East Is West." It turns out that Miss Bainter wished all along to do another Shipman piece, instead of Monckton Hoffe's play. Her new manager is Richard G. Herndon.

Philip Barry's Harvard prize play, "Jilts," comes to town next month, with H. B. Warner and Lucille Watson heading the cast. . . . "Humoresque" is back in town for recasting, and it is reported that Miss Laurette Taylor and the author, Fannie Hurst, have decided differences of opinion concerning the interpretation of the mother's character, this being Miss Taylor's role. . . Morris Gest, known as the Tex Rickard of the theater, estimates that his profits will be negligible at the close of the eight weeks' run of the Moscow Art Theater. The receipts will be in the neighborhood of half a million, it appears, but expenses will engulf most of that sum.

Ten Most Lucrative Plays.

THE 10 most profitable plays in New York, according to figures for box office receipts this week, are "Rain," "Hamlet," "Merton of the "Movies," "Loyalties," "Seventh Heaven," "So This Is London," "Kiki,' "The Fool," "The Last Warning" and "The Love Child." ' . . "Carolina" is the latest name of Tessa Kosta's new musical piece, which is derived from the German. Gossip connects it with the Ambassador Theater, and rumor is that "The Lady in Ermine" will quit that playhouse to replace "Blossom Time" at the Century. . . . George M. Cohan is returning from France with a new piece all written down, and liltingly named "The Rise of Rosie O'Reilly."

"The Wild Flower," starring Edith Day, opens in Baltimore on Jan. 29, and comes to New York a week later. Emily Stevens arrives week after next in "The Sporting Thing to Do." . . . Other pieces due shortly are "The Naughty Diana," "The Steam Roller," "Mary the Third" and "The Green Scarab.' The last is a crook comedy, with H. Cooper-Cliffe in the lead as an English detective in search of a sacred beetle.

Miss Barrymore's Next Play.

IT is reported that Ethel Barrymore's Juliet will soon be merely a more or less blessed memory, and that she is already rehearsing Alfred Sutro's "The Laughing Lady," in which Marie Lohr has been playing successfully in London. Clemence Dane, author of "A Bill of Divorcement" and "Will Shakspeare," always writes her last acts first.

Managers are continually shifting titles about in the hope of striking popular fancy. "Somebody's Luggage,' turned into a musical piece, was first "The Little Kangaroo," and at present has become "Lady Butterfly." Mrs. Fiske's new play has had half a dozen titles, the latest of which is "The Dice of the Gods." "Diana Comes to Town" has been rechristened "Naughty Diana."

"The Lady Cristilinda" and "Gringo" went their ways to storehouse or road last week. • • • Two new plays by Sasha Guitry are being made ready for American production. They are "The Comedian," with Lionel Atwill as star, and "Pasteur," in which Henry Miller will have the title role.

"Rain," which has been called the best play in New York, will not be seen in London until the local run is concluded, and Jeanne Eagles will play the part of Sadie Thompson abroad. • • • "The Awful Truth," with Ina Claire, at Henry Miller's Theater, ended its run tonight. • • • Rafael Sabatini, author of "Scaramouche," is said to be dramatizing the novel for Sidney Blackmer.

Daly May Play Whistler.

A PLAY about Whistler is in the offing, and the report is that Arnold Daly, himself no poor maker of epigrams, will be seen as the irascible painter. . . Frank Craven, author of "The First Year," is said to have written a rural comedy for Chic Sale, entitled "Early to Bed." . . The Hippodrome has sent a representative to Constantinople in the hope of engaging several ladies of the former Sultan's harem for appearance at that playhouse. Several of them are said to be musicians and dancers of talent. The only obstacle was that many of the beauties from Circassia and Georgia preferred returning to their homes. Others, however, said they would like to come to America.

Mme. Lillebil Ibsen, whose husband is a grandson of Ibsen, the playwright, will have the role of Anitra in the Theater Guild's production of "Peer Gynt." She is a dancer and a pupil of Fokine. . Tom Burke, well known as a grand opera and concert tenor, has been engaged for a prominent part in the next Winter Garden show.

Gladys Cooper Here.

GLADYS COOPER, English actress and famous beauty, arrived on the Olympic Tuesday for a week's visit to New York. It is said to be her first trip to the United States. . . . Richard Boleslavsky, stage manager of the Moscow Art Theater, will conduct a school of dramatic expression in New York. . . . Estelle Winwood and Roland Young began rehearsals this week in "Anything Might Happen," by Edgar Selwyn. . . . Fred Stone, in "Tip Top," played to $30,000 in Kansas City last week, according to reports received here.

Hilda Lee and Boyd La Dere, dancers of international reputation, will be seen in a fiery interpretation of the Argentine tango in "The Dangerous Age."

"Polly" Has Great Initial Success in London

LONDON, Jan. 20.

INSTEAD of the naive insouciance of "The Beggar's Opera," its sequel, "Polly," revived at the Kingsway Theater, savored of the sophistication of Gilbert and Sullivan. The best part of the old McHeath was that he recognized no obligations. In his new setting, this ingenious and engaging rogue has turned into a very much made-up pirate, sniggeringly endeavoring to evade his responsibilities to his ladies and his craft. So it is with the women. They are quite self-consciously naughty.

However, "Polly" has had an enormous initial success, but the signs are it will not last as long as its predecessor. In the title role it brought forward a charming new actress, Miss Lillian Davis, who, coming from Welsh concert platforms, sang and danced and smiled and simpered her way into the heart of her London audience in a single night. The other parts were satisfactorily filled.

Revivals now hold the stage, ranging from Maeterlinck's "Blue Bird" to "Charley's Aunt," and from "The Private Secretary" to "Bulldog Drummond." A new play, "Arlequin," translated from the French, has proved disappointing to audiences at the Empire. Harlequin is shown first as a Don Juan more addicted to rhetoric than amorism, arguing about love rather than making it, and then, as a penitent, ascending the cypress-flanked steps that lead to the Gates of Death, but still talking.

Eighteenth-century Venice furnishes the background. There is a rather tame Doge, who seems to have a grudge against Harlequin because he is a strolling player, and orders him kidnaped and sold as a slave. But Michaela, a cast-off victim of Harlequin's, saves him from this fate, and he proceeds to arrange meetings with the Dogaressa and her daughter, the latter of whom goes about symbolically accompanied by a dancer, a monkey and a parrot.

A Venetian Gunman.

THEY foregather in the Doge's garden, where a frivolous Archbishop throws aside his robes to pursue the fair. Harlequin escapes in them, while the "gunman" deputed by the Doge to assassinate him, shoots the faithful Michaela instead. There is a pathetic deathbed scene, followed by a colloquy between Harlequin and the King of Terrors, and by a vision of Michaela figuring, more or less, as Beatrice in the "Paradiso." There is an excellent cast, including Violet Tree, Godfrey Tearle, Moyna McGill and Dennis Neilson-Terry.

Jean Bedini, American King of Burlesque, is preparing to put on a revue at Covent Garden. It is to be called "You'll Be Surprised," and for the cast he has engaged George Robey, the $3000-a-week British comedian, and Lydia Lupokova, Russian dancer.

"Peter Pan" has been revived at St. James' Theater, with Edna Best in the title role and Prudence Vanbrugh as Mrs. Darling. "The Captives," by Plautus, was recently performed in English at Emanuel School, Wandsworth Common. It is a complex tale of master and slave, of elaborate deceptions and their discovery. Between the acts music by Handel and Corelli was played.

BOOK OF JOB,' 'STEVE' AND 'LAND O' ROMANCE' HOLD THE WEEK'S STAGE

the executive ranks of the theater. The scenes are laid on an island off the coast of Maine. In the cast appears Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, veteran actress; with Vivian Ogden, Helen Weir, Ann Winston, Isabel Winlocke, Peggy Whiffen, Duncan Penwarden, Homer Barton and Frank Herbert.

St. Louis will be the third city, following New York and Chicago, to see "He Who Gets Slapped," in which Richard Bennett still retains the role of the enigmatic "He." The translation used is that of Gregory Zilboorg, who some months ago directed two Russian plays at the Artists' Guild. The settings are by Leo Simonson, art director of the Theater Guild. This play will be followed in turn, at the Jefferson, by "The Greenwich Village Follies" and by Walter Whiteside's new play, "The Hindu."

Mr. Mantell's opening play, on Monday evening, Jan. 29, at the American, will be "Louis XI." There will follow "Hamlet," "As You Like It," "Julius Caesar," "King Lear," "Macbeth," "The Merchant of Venice" and "Richelieu."

"The Easiest Way."

THE performances of "The Easiest Way," beginning this afternoon at the Garrick, recall that a revival of this caustic drama was presented last season at the American, with Frances Starr in her original role of Laura Murdock, which Hazel Whitmore now undertakes. It tells the story of a weak-fibered woman and her suitors, a journalist from Colorado and a wealthy New York broker.

Miss Samuels, at the Orpheum, who styles herself "the blue streak of vaudeville," is promised in her usual repertory of song, humor, pathos and burlesque. On the bill also are Ben Bernie, once a "nut" violinist and now appearing at the head of his own orchestra; Jessie Busley and a company in "Batty," a parody on "The Bat;" "Senator Ford of Michigan," who discourses in epigrams on topical matters; Eddie Schwartz and Julia Clifford, in a song and nonsense turn; John and Nellie Olms, in "The Watch Wizards;" and the Chandon Trio, aerialists.

George Jessel's "Troubles of 1922," at the Empress, has a cast including himself, Fay and Florence Courtney, Jed Dooley, Audree Evanes, Charles O'Brien, Ed Warren, Marguerite Farrel, Ann Lowenwirth and Sam Bennett. Plenty of comedy, music and a well-dressed chorus are promised.

The Columbia vaudeville bill for the first part of the week will be led by Robert Henry Hodge and his company, in "Bill Blithers, Lawyer," a comedy. The feature picture is "My Wild Irish Rose, after a play by Dion Boucicault, with Paula Starke and Pat O'Malley in the cast. The Cortez sisters will head the program beginning Thursday with a song, dance and patter skit. Eva Fay begins a week's engagement tomorrow at the Grand, on a bill ville and screen feature

We Stop Falling Hair in 3 Weeks

And Grow New Hair in 90 Days or Your Money Refunded, Under Our 90-day Treatment Plan.

Costs Nothing

—unless we grow hair under our 90-day treatment plan. The Van Ess treatment is absolutely guaranteed. You are the sole judge. The warrant is signed by your own druggist. You assume no risk in making this test.

This New Way

Science discovers falling, lustreless hair due to simple infection (Sebum). Now quickly overcomes it. Hair actually grown on 91 heads in 100.

This is to offer you new hair—lustrous, beautiful, attractive—or money refunded under our 90-day treatment plan.

It offers, too, to stop falling hair in 3 weeks.

If we fail, the treatment costs you nothing. Your own druggist signs the guarantee. Hence we assume the risk.

Thousands of women have made this test. Results are amazing. The charm of wonderful hair is now available to any one who chooses to have it.

The Infected Sebum in Your Hair

Sebum is an oil. It forms at the follicles of the hair. Its natural function is to supply the hair with oil.

But frequently it becomes infected. It cakes on the scalp; clogs the follicles and plugs them.

Germs by the millions breed in it, then feed upon the hair.

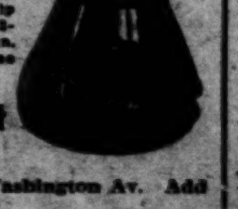
Soon your hair begins falling. You note too how lifeless it appears. In a short time, all the natural lustre and beauty are gone.

But—and note this scientific fact—remove the Sebum and the hair reverts back to the softness and brilliancy it displayed when you were a school girl.

The Van Ess treatment accomplishes that result. We know you will doubt it. So we guarantee it.

We urge you to give this new way a fair trial. It is folly not to test it; for, remember, you take no risk.

Go to any druggist or department store today. Ask for the Van Ess Liquid Scalp Massage on the 3-bottle treatment plan. Written guarantee accompanies it.



$1.37 bottle. Complete treatment of 3 bottles, $4.00.

Ganz Celebrates Anniversary of MacDowell

MLLE. MARCELLE PRIVAT.

As today is the fifteenth anniversary of the death of Edward A. MacDowell, Mr. Ganz is commemorating the occasion by placing the American composer's "Indian Suite" on the program of this afternoon's popular symphony concert at the Odeon. The suite consists of several numbers, based on folksongs of the Iowa, Kiowa and other tribes.

The soloist will be Mlle. Marcelle Privat, a mezzo-soprano of French-Swiss parentage, who is head of the vocal department of the School of Fine Arts at the University of Kansas. She will sing the aria, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from "Samson and Delilah," and a group of songs, including Schubert's "Erlking."

The other orchestral numbers will be the overture to a little-known opera of Rossini, "La Gazza Ladra," or "The Thieving Magpie;" a transcription of Liszt's "Liebestraum," and the symphonic poem, "Finlandia," Op. 26, No. 7, by Sibelius.

There will be no regular concerts until Feb. 2 and 3, when Mr. Ganz will make his single local appearance of the year as a pianist, and undertake the herculean feat of presenting two concertos on the same program—Beethoven's, in C Major, and Liszt's, in E-flat.

Mme. Claussen as Soloist.

For its midwinter concert, Tuesday evening at the Odeon, the Morning Choral Club has engaged Mme. Julia Claussen, mezzo-soprano, who has sung here as soloist with the Symphony Orchestra and on other occasions. She will offer the aria, "Samson, recherchant ma presence," from "Samson et Dalila," and songs by Paladilhe, Bruneau, Martini, Gretchaninow, Brahms, Strauss, Nevin, La Forge and Spross.

The chorus is to sing "Invocation to St. Cecilia," Harris; "The Song of Brother Jacques," Paladilhe; "Turn Ye to Me," Harris; "The Wind-Swept Wheat," by David Stanley Smith, with Miss Lenore Riemann as soloist; and "She Dwells by Great Kenkaws' Side," Coleridge-Taylor. Charles Galloway will conduct, and Paul Friess will be accompanist. Miss Kathryn Kerin will be at the piano for Mme. Claussen.

Miss Mildred Bryars, contralto, will be soloist at the concert to be given tomorrow night at the Odeon by the Knights of Columbus Choral Club, under the direction of William Theodore Diebels. Her numbers will be songs by Curran, Foote, Mrs. Julie Stevens Bacon, La Forge, Strickland, Rogers and Woodman; and the aria, "Ah, mon fils!" from Meyerbeer's "Le Prophete." The principal number for the chorus will be a cantata, "The Norsemen's Raid," by Parker. Mme. Esmerelda Mayes will be accompanist.

Charles Galloway will give his fourth free organ recital of the season this afternoon at Graham Memorial Chapel, Washington University, beginning at 3 o'clock. The concluding number will be Ernest R. Kroeger's "Procession Indienne." These recitals are a feature of the university's extension course.

Fritz Kreisler, premier violinist, is announced for a recital at the Odeon on the evening of Feb. 8. This will be his only St. Louis appearance this season, as his American tour is limited to three months.

Ukrainians Returning.

The Pageant Choral Society, under the direction of Frederick Fischer, began rehearsals last week for the production of Gounod's "Redemption," which will be given at the Odeon on the evening of March 13.

It is expected that St. Louis will have a week of German opera in the early spring, to be given by the Wagnerian Opera Festival Company, which opens its American tour Jan. 31 in Baltimore. It is headed by George Hartmann, general director of the Berlin Deutsche Opera, and Leo Blech, musical director of the Berlin State Opera, is chief conductor. The singers have been drawn from the leading opera houses of Germany and Austria.

The Ukrainian National Chorus, which has been hailed everywhere as a revelation in group singing, is announced for a return engagement on Feb. 6 at the Coliseum.

Will Rogers the Cowboy Humorist Says—

By Will Rogers.

(Copyright, 1923, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

WELL, this week just passed has been pretty busy in New York. It looked like my home town of Claremore, Ok., on a Saturday afternoon. The Automobile Show was here. I don't know why they come clear from the coast to see the same Cars they can see in their local Show Rooms, but they did sure come and brought their Wives—well, I won't say brought. I mean their Wives came with them.

I had a very busy week, me being the gabbiest old thing in New York. I was conscripted to make a speech to the Automobile Chamber of Commerce, which is all the Manufacturers. They are a pretty fine bunch of men. Most of them have had their money now for a few years, and they are getting so they act like they always had it. Golf has supplanted the Carburetor as a national Topic.

I often wonder how they distinguished a gentleman in the old days when there was no Golf.

Mr. Martin Littleton, the Distinguished Lawyer, and I were the annoyers for the evening. I was there, not through any entertaining quality I might have, but to offset the glibness and humorous speech of Mr. Littleton. He knew nothing about Automobiles: being a Lawyer he knew very little about anything, so I apologized for him and soon put the members back into a serious and business-like mood.

Mr. Littleton, as you know, specializes in Lunacy Cases. He defended and saved Harry Thaw. He also defended Mr. Newberry and made it possible to get him out of the United States Senate. So you see he works in direct opposites. One man he got into the Insane Asylum, and the other he got out of one. And personally I think Newberry should be the more Grateful of the two.

Mr. Durant of the Star Car says that in 10 Years every Man, Woman and Child in the U. S. will own an Automobile, or, rather there will be one per Capita. He is laying out his manufacturing schedule along that line. Now all he has to do is to control the Birth Rate.

As an Exhibiton, during the week a Dodge crew assembled an entire Car in 19 Minutes. I didn't see it. I can imagine what they did the first three minutes, but I don't know what they were doing the other 16.

Ford for President.

ON the next night I was invited, on account of being a light eater, to speak at the Automobile Accessories Banquet. Littleton wasn't with me on this. He had gotten a paid job in the meantime keeping some Sane man out of the lower House of Congress.

Now these Accessories are the bootlegging end of the industry. They sit back and make all the Parts and the Manufacturers have to go out and sell them.

I launched a Ford-for-President movement. You see I am figuring on going in the Cabinet, as he will have to be like all of them and pay off his political debts with jobs. You see, all these other Cabinets are picked, not on ability, but what they have done for the Party. Well, we ain't going to have any party. It's to be called the "All over the Road Party" with Mr. Ford for Leader. Our Slogan will be "Come with Ford and you will at least get somewhere."

I will probably have to be Secretary of State, although I don't think I could stand the round of conferences. I think Vice President would be about my speed. Of course I do hate to stay hid that long because I like for people to know who I am, but if it looks best for the Party for me to be sacrificed, why, I would do it.

I would love to see Mr. Ford in there, really. I don't know who started the idea that a President must be a Business man. A Politician can't run any other kind of business, so there is no reason why he can run the U. S. That's the biggest single business in the World.

I just would love to see Mr. Ford when Congress pulled one of those long stalls of theirs, going around and lifting up the hood and seeing what is the matter.

The News of the World.

WELL, that's all for automobiles and politics, but what of some of the affairs of the world? The big news of the week was President Harding ordering our boys back. Senator Jim Reed reminded the President and Congress that they were stil over there. I tell you its lucky some time to have a fellow around that keeps his eyes open for little things like that.

I doubt if they will come home without being conscripted—at least not if they have heard from home lately.

I would hate to be the man to hand one of these real Soldiers his first glass of Near Beer, after four years of German brew, when they land here.

Of course, we must get 'em home. That's no place for a Soldier and a war coming on. I wish they had let those boys have stayed there and Refereed the next war. Then at the end say who is the winner and just what does he win.

I tell you wars will never be a Success until you do have a Referee, and until they announce before they start just what it's for.

I see where they are talking of bringing home these Unofficial Representatives we have had strewn around at these various Conferences.

We are the originators of the unofficial Representative. It's like a man going to a Dinner where he was not invited. Now he may have come unofficially, but still he eats just as much as if he had been invited. Col. House was the originator of this form of entertainment.

The Case of the Ruhr.

WELL, France has gone into Germany. She said, "I am going to get in there some way if I have to have Peace to do it."

That's another case of that Unofficial business. France says it ain't war officially, but they are like the uninvited Guest. They are in there eating, ain't they?

Nations never seem to get much nourishment out of these Unofficial invasions. If memory don't fail me I think we made a pilgrimage into Mexico unofficially. All we got was Sand in our eyes.

Either make it official and go in a-shooting, or stay out.

France says Germany was back in their Telephone Pole Delivery; also shy some sacks of coal. Now you can't invade just for lack of Coal. If you could, why, look how long the Republicans let the Coal strike last, last summer before they tried to settle it. And now we have no coal.

Well, can't the Democrats invade the basin of the Monongahela and take over the west bank of the Alleghany and claim that they haven't been getting the coal that was promised during the last Campaign?

I claim they could do it—but the trouble is the Democrats have beat their Guns and Sabers from the last war into Pocket Flasks.

Germany says France sent in some Black troops which they object to. France says they didn't send in any real colored ones, that these were only a kind of a dark bay.

WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN THE MOVIE STUDIOS

It is a comedy-drama of modern life. Hope-Hampton heads the cast. Robert T. Haines, Mary Thurman, Florence Short and Peggy Shaw have important roles.

"The Face on the Barroom Floor," with Henry B. Walthall in the leading role, is the title of a new Fox picture which contains a strong human story and a number of picturesque exteriors for which Jack Ford, the director, is noted. The story is that of a painter who voluntarily accepts the blame for another man's wrong and so loses the one woman he loved. Ruth Clifford, Alma Bennett, Walter Emerson, Frederick Sullivan, Novel McGregor, Michael Dark and Gus Saville are other members of the cast.

"A Friendly Husband," starring Lupino Lane, the famous English Pantomimist, is the first feature length picture made by Fox Film Corporation in which the celebrated comedian is the star.

Fearless

Hearst's International Loved and Respected for the Enemies It is Making

How do you account for the surprising growth of a magazine like Hearst's International, or for its grip on the American people?

By what authority is this big, powerful, alluring, appealing book so rapidly earning—even among its opponents—the name of America's strongest magazine?

Analyze any issue of the magazine and you'll find your answer.

It is fearless.

Under the editorship of NORMAN HAPGOOD, Hearst's International is as fearless as it is powerful.

Facing a challenge too tremendous to be ignored, the International has settled down to a long, grim fight against dope, and the invisible menace of all illegal activities, WHEREVER FOUND

Hearst's International is loved and respected for the enemies its fearless policy is making.

Analyze these enemies: you will find their ranks jammed and crowded with secret reactionaries—with so-called "conservatives" who put MONEY above HUMANITY.

What is the best policeman?

"LIGHT," answers Emerson.

Which seems to give us the International's creed in a nutshell.

It is turning upon the secret, slinking, slimy enemies of good business and good citizenship the searchlight of pitiless publicity

When it starts after the secrets of the dope ring, or of the Ku Klux Klan, or of any other menace to the wholesomeness and integrity of family and national life, the International has a way of getting the WHOLE STORY.

Dope

One Out of Every Hundred Uses It. Inside Workings of Huge Dope Ring Exposed by Hearst's International.

Dope that sinister menace that eats away body and brain, now rages here at home more violently than in any other country in the world.

One little town of 5,000 men, women and children uses more dope today than all the hospitals in the city of New York.

Government is doing next to nothing to muzzle this menace. Dope officials are bought up. Policemen are bribed. Doctors and druggists who "need the money" are in collusion.

Men and women of power and refinement—even children—are on the lists of drug users.

The Dope traffic is shameless. The stuff is being sold under your very eyes—every hour, every day.

The drug evil must be controlled.

IT SHALL BE CONTROLLED.

The first step is to put the facts, proved with documents, before the American people.

A copy of the February issue of Hearst's International, containing the facts, figures and photographs, is being put into the hands of every Senator and Congressman in Washington.

The rulers of our country shall have their responsibility forced home to them by being shown the facts—the appalling headway dope has gained in America.

THEY WILL BE COMPELLED TO ACT

Ku Klux

Is Klan Now Planning to Investigate Hearst's International?

Among the papers of NORMAN HAPGOOD, editor of the International Magazine, is a certain Ku Klux publication which refers in scathing terms to the articles now running in Mr Hapgood's series exposing the inner workings of the Klan.

"The facts exposed in Hearst's International," says this K. K. K publication "could only have been obtained by theft or burglary"

When you turn to Mr. Hapgood's articles in the International, the significance of this accusation will be instantly apparent. His articles consist chiefly of exact copies of signed, dated documents intended by the Klan only for Klansmen's eyes In the "Invisible Empire's" own words, these documents are "exceedingly itsub"—which is Ku Klux for "sacredly private and confidential."

Is not the Klan's hasty charge an unwitting tribute to both the authenticity and the importance of the facts exposed?

Perhaps the Klan now plans to return the compliment by investigating Hearst's International.

Should this come to pass, the International's fund of "inside stuff" on the workings of the Klan will be further enriched, and its readers will benefit accordingly.

It is becoming increasingly difficult to turn out enough copies of the International to meet the demand.

Here is one reason.

In towns where the Klan is strongest, last month's International was quietly bought up, the day it appeared on the news stands, by certain small groups of men.

Who are these men? Why are they so watchfully waiting to take this magazine off the market the moment the newsdealer gets his supply?

The Rising Tide

Hearst's International for February is out today.

You will find it a thing of rare and compelling beauty—full of richness, art, thrills, action—and above all, bristling with FACTS.

Never in the history of magazine making have such masterful paintings been reproduced with such striking color contrasts and appeal. In the 150 pages and more of fact, fiction, art and editorials, is ample explanation of the rising tide of new-reader demand

The International's circulation grows so fast that many readers are disappointed at the news stands.

Thousands tried to buy the January number—and found the dealer's supply exhausted.

To all who have been thus disappointed in the past, to all who have set their hearts on "never missing an International after this," the FREE LIBRARY coupon printed on this page is a double opportunity

Hearst's International
Benda
THE INSIDE STORY OF DOPE IN THIS COUNTRY
THE TEMPTRESS
A New Novel by the Author of "The Four Horsemen"

Just Out

FEARLESS

On every news stand you pass today, you will see this face—the face of "The Temptress"—looking up at you.

If proof is needed of the utter fearlessness of Hearst's International, you will find it in the amazing exposure of facts in this number. In "The House that Dope Built," Sidney Howard tells the inside story of Dope in this country. Norman Hapgood, in "The New Threat of the Ku Klux Klan," exposes the Klan's secret control of our courts.

The editorials on this newspaper page give you a clue to these astounding developments—as this cover painting by Benda gives you a hint of the beauty, the mystery and the intimate appeal that flood the pages of this unprecedented issue.

In this number, moreover, Blasco Ibanez, of "Four Horsemen" fame, begins his latest and greatest novel, "The Temptress." Paul De Kruif tells the truth about "monkey glands."

Eight best short stories of the month, three distinguished serials, a world survey in a dozen gripping articles—page upon page of color paintings by the world's greatest artists.

H. G. Wells, Somerset Maugham, Gouverneur Morris, Achmed Abdullah, Count Tolstoi, Margaret Sangster, Flagg, Louderback, Cornwell, Mitchell, Shinn, Benda, Steele, Thomson—the names and titles in the Table of Contents are words to conjure with.

Get your copy while you can. The pile of Internationals on the news stand melts away before you know it.

Killings Due to This Peculiar Form of Business Rivalry Invariably Are Without Evidence of Benefit to the Police in Finding the Killers and the Best Investigators Can Do Is to Guess at the Cause Through the Surrounding Circumstances—Other Murders in St. Louis for Which the Policc Have Found No Solution.

"SOME more of the 'bootleggers'' work," concluded the policeman.

"Homicide by parties unknown," echoed the Coroner.

That sums up what the Police Department has done regarding 16 murders in St. Louis and St. Louis County attributed to a gang war between rival Sicilian "moonshiners" and "bootleggers."

But, although the identity of the slayers has never been determined, detectives investigating the murders have disclosed the following facts:

The makers and purveyors of ''moonshine,'' commonly called ''hooch,'' have standardized the selling price of their product and have divided the city and county into trade territories.

The penalty for violation of trade agreements is death.

The offender is charged with being a ''double-crosser,'' and the death penalty is executed with sawed-off shotguns.

It is one of the forms of outlawry that have come in with prohibition, and, as those who must have strong drink are driven more and more to rely upon the "moonshiner" for their source of supply, this "bootleggers'" war will grow more acute, the police expect, and the death toll more numerous.

The rivalry is not without its ethical standards and its code of honor. First of all these is, "Never talk to the police and never tell them anything." The partisans and friends of one who falls in the "bootleggers'" war are expected to avenge his death.

As in the old country with the vendetta, when a man is killed, whether there are witnesses or not, the associates of the victim know who the slayer is and they will take care of him in time. Back in Sicily, they never took such matters up with the police and they don't do it here. It is this spirit that makes the work of the police in dealing with such outlawry practically vain.

One of the centers of distribution of "hooch" is in the neighborhood of Seventh and Wash streets, where approximately half of the murders have been committed. Another of the main depots is in the extreme southwestern section of the city, on what is known in police circles as "Dago Hill."

Detectives have obtained the "inside story" of several of the murders, but have not been able to lay hands on the slayers, although in some cases they have come pretty close to establishing the identity of the perpetrators, if not the actual murderers.

A Promotor of Moonshine Production

Take the case of John (Bad Luck) Coco, "moonshine" still promoter, who was shot to death in an automobile at Daggett and Boardman avenues early in the morning of Oct. 5 last. That was a typical incident of the "hooch" war. The "inside story" was related at the Coroner's inquest by Coco's friend, Elmer Schwarz.

"He was not a moonshine peddler," said Schwarz. "As he described it to me, his business was promoting moonshine production. He would form a company to get a still, and would put them in a position to start business, but I never learned that he did anything further.

"As I understood it, Coco was without competition in this line of business. He had told me of having trouble with some bad people, and once, at a wedding celebration, he pointed out five 'bad men' to me. He said he was 'off them for life,' and that he preferred to go on the hill (Dago Hill) as little as possible, and never without a friend along."

Members of the police homicide squad learned by inquiry, before that inquest, that Coco had been connected with successive moonshining enterprises which had ended unfavorably for the investors, through raids by real or pretended officers of the law, and which left a chance for suspicion that Coco had "double-crossed" his associates.

Coco had never been arrested, so far as the police records show. A relative, also named John Coco, was one of the men arrested in the first raid on a moonshine still here under the prohibition law, and this caused some confusion in the first inquiries into the murder.

One of the late John Coco's enterprises was a still on the Meramec River, for which he collected funds from several investors. He later told them that the place had been raided by two men representing themselves as Federal agents, who had carried away about 250 gallons of the product, but had not touched the still.

Had Too Much Bad Luck

Coco is said to have told the investors in this enterprise that he did not believe the men were really Federal agents, but that he had no alternative but to let them take the whisky, as they used hold-up methods.

In another case, the detectives were told, Coco organized a group and collected $3000 to be put into a still. He spent about $1400 on a still, barrels and mash, and kept the rest. Before the first gallon of whisky was made the still was raided, this time by city detectives, who confiscated the still.

Later, a very similar incident occurred, and Coco's investors concluded he was having more "bad luck" than one man was entitled to. They began to suspect him of "tipping off" the authorities, particularly as he had been careful to collect from the investors in advance.

Coco's career in the "moonshining" industry was similar to that of Salvadore Patti, who was killed with a sawed-off shotgun as he was putting his automobile in his garage at 5712 Columbia avenue, the night of Feb. 3, last. Coco and Patti had been friends.

Coco once appealed to Patti to pay a fine imposed on a relative of Coco. The Judge gave Coco's relatives the alternative of paying his fine or sending him back to Italy. Patti furnished the money, about $300, required to settle the fine.

At the time of Patti's murder it was related that a Sicilian, arrested on a charge of operating a still, had been financed for a time by Patti, as the man had information which he might have used against Patti. The man went to jail with the understanding that Patti would pay him $3000, but he got only $300, and after getting out of jail he was heard to make threats against Patti.

The detectives do not believe that the murder of Coco was in any way an act of revenge for the killing of Patti, but rather that the two men were murdered by representatives of the same group or similar groups, and for similar reasons.

The murder of Joseph ("Green Onions") Cipolla and Everett E. Summers, whose bodies were found in Shaftsbury lane, in the western part of University City, early Dec. 27, 1921, was attributed by the police to the "bootleggers'" war.

Rivals Stole Both Stills and Hooch

St. Louis County "bootleggers" had become tired of being robbed not only of their "moonshine" product, but even of their stills, by a gang of St. Louis "bootleggers." The police were informed several days before the double murder that a number of men, including Cipolla, had been "double-crossing" county still owners by holding up the men in charge of the stills under the pretext of being Federal agents, demanding a share of the "moonshine" and in some cases carrying away the still and the men in charge of it. In this work a touring car and truck were used. The men would be dumped out on the road after going a few miles, and would return to find that the still had been removed. One still, which cost $5000, was carted away in this fashion, it was reported.

Members of the homicide squad pointed out, at the time, that a feud had sprung up between the sellers of bottled-in-bond whisky and the purveyors of county "moonshine" and it was suggested that Cipola, as one of the "moonshine" sellers, may have become involved in this feud. It was recalled that Constable William Egan, who was mysteriously murdered in front of his saloon at 1400 Franklin avenue two months before, had signed the bonds of several men accused of the unlawful selling of bottled-in-bond whisky.

Cipolla had been arrested in connection with police investigation of "moonshining" activities, and he and Summers had been intimate associates for several months prior to their death.

Price and Territory the Issues

Leo Messina, who was killed at Eighth and Wash streets on the night of Nov. 24 last, had been warned to stay away from that neighborhood. "Bootleggers" in that vicinity had grumbled because their customers were being solicited by "bootleggers" from other parts of the city, who offered to sell them "moonshine" at prices lower than they had been paying the "Wash street crowd."

Supporting their contention that Messina was a "bootlegger," policemen declared that when they raided an upstairs room on "Dago Hill" several months before the murder they found Messina and other Sicilians and a quantity of illicit liquor. No warrants were issued because the police had entered the room without a search warrant.

While the "moonshiners" were attempting to regulate the price of "hooch," and see to it that rival gangs did not invade each other's trade territory, police obtained information that the wholesale price of the product dropped from $10 to $6 a gallon, and that certain "big" customers were getting it even cheaper than that.

Frank Piacenti and Raymond Cipollo (no relation to Cipolla) paid the penalty for invading the neighborhood of Seventh and Wash streets. They were shot from ambush the night of Jan. 11, this year, in front of 714 Wash street. Cipollo, who lingered for several hours, told the police he did not see the assassins. The police were unable to throw any light on the affair because neither Piacenti nor Cipollo had police records.

"Some more of the 'bootleggers'' work," said the police, and they let it go at that.

The first shot fired in the "moonshiners'" war killed Carmelo Bonvissuta, in front of his fruit store at 824 High street, the night of July 31, 1920, the police say. An illicit still, whisky and mash were found in Bonvissuta's living rooms the month before, and it was said that the police who found the contraband outfit had been "tipped off" by seemingly law-abiding Italians, who, it later developed, had acted in the interests of competing "moonshiners."

One Killed for Knowing Too Much

Angelo Bonvissuta, a brother of the slain man, was heard to remark that he knew who had killed Carmelo, and two months later, the night of Sept. 1, 1920, he was murdered with slugs from a sawed-off shotgun, in front of his home, then at 4865 St. Louis avenue.

The arrest of several suspected "bootleggers" followed the murder of Tomasso Spicuzza, at Eleventh street and Franklin avenue, Aug. 7, 1920, but nothing definite came out of the investigation. The police heard rumors of Spicuzza's alleged connection with the traffic in "hooch," but they were unable to ascertain the identity of the slayers or find a positive motive for the crime.

Francisco Sicola was fatally wounded by a volley of shots fired at him from ambush as he was leaving an Italian grocery at 1014 North Ninth street, the night of July 23 last, and one month later, to the very day, Giuseppe Certa was shot and killed by unseen assailants in front of 1002 North Seventh street. The police sought to connect the two murders on the theory that both men knew something about the shooting, July 23 last, of Frank Daito, on Carr street, between Seventh and Eighth streets.

Antonio Giammanco was killed the night of Feb. 6, 1921, by men with whom he was riding in an automobile, and his body was dumped in Calvary drive, between Calvary and Bellefontaine cemeteries. He had quarreled with other Sicilians over the profits of a "bootlegging" transaction, but the only details the police obtained were that it had to do with the sale of "moonshine" to a North Side saloon keeper.

Among other victims of the "bootleggers'" war were Joseph Cammarata, killed Dec. 13, 1921; Michelo Adragna, Oct. 12, 1921; Antonio Labaido, Sept. 30, 1921, and John Frai, Oct. 23, 1922.

Many Other Unsolved Murders

The baffling murders with which the police have had to deal in the last year, however, have by no means been confined to cases growing out of bootleggers' and moonshiners' wars. There has been the ever-present gang feud with its toll of victims; there have been killings resulting from holdups and in which all means of determining the identity of slayers have failed, and there have been shootings resulting apparently from momentary quarrels. In some 19 murders that have taken place in the year just ended and which are as yet unsolved, at least five have been traced to gang affrays in which the motive of revenge for "snitching" was outstanding in the meager evidence the police were able to collect.

In these cases it is the rule rather than the exception for the investigators to learn the identity of the slayer, that is, to their own satisfaction, and then run up against a brick wall when it comes to obtaining witnesses who will identify the suspect. The first law in the gang code of ethics is "kill the snitch." The gang member who, in underworld parlance, "weeds" information to the detectives about the activities of his associates, or "mouths," is a marked man, and sooner or later is likely to meet a swift and sudden death. Even though he flees to another state, the gang remembers, and in most cases seeks him out. The gang, too, believes in putting off until tomorrow nothing that can be done today.

For this reason testimony that might convict a gangster for the murder of an associate is seldom forthcoming. Regardless of the activity of the police in rounding up suspects, their effort commonly comes to naught after the case is placed in the hands of the prosecuting authorities.

Among the murders of the last year which have been attributed to gang warfare or gang quarrels were those of Luke E. Kennedy, Simon J. Wallace, John Ottersbach, Peter Berg and Theodore Lange.

Most notable among these cases probably was that of Kennedy, notorious gangster, who was believed to have figured prominently in the killing of William T. Egan, Democratic City Committeeman and ward politician, who was slain in front of his saloon at Fourteenth street and Franklin avenue in October, 1921, presumably as the result of bootleggers' rivalry and gang trouble. Kennedy was shot to death on April 17 as he sat in his automobile in Wellston, by several men in another car, who riddled his body with bullets. At the time he was convalescing from wounds he had received several months previously when he and a companion were fired on in an automobile at Eleventh and Market streets.

In this first attempt on his life the police saw evidence of the Egan feud's workings and questioned several persons known to have been followers of the slain politician, but they could prove nothing. Least of all could they get any information out of Kennedy after his wounding.

"That's a foolish question," Kennedy is said to have replied to a request for the name of the man who shot him. "You detectives have been busy and you are going to be busier. The other crowd has had their try and missed. Next time they will have to shoot straight and quick. We know who they are now."

Evidence that the "straight and quick" method was put into operation was disclosed when his body was found a few months later with 25 bullet holes in it.

Similar was the case of Wallace, 30 years old, a former convict, whose body, bearing eight bullet wounds, was found in the rear of the home of Gregory H. Lewis, 4606 Olive street, on

"She Tempted Me--and I Killed Him"-- Confesses Man Who Murdered His Best Friend Under Spell Cast by Latter's Wife

"WE MEANT TO GET HIS INSURANCE, THEN GO AWAY AND GET MARRIED," SAYS KENTUCKY MINE MANAGER'S WIDOW

Ollie Gibbons, Henderson Miner, Tells of His Illicit Romance With Woman Who "Nagged at Him to Get Rid of Her Husband" Until He Committed Crime — Murder a Striking Parallel to Famous Bywaters-Thompson Case Which Terminated in London Recently With Hanging of Milliner and Her Youthful Paramour.

Gus Noffsinger Was Slain at Door of His Garage, Not 20 Feet From His Wife's Room Where She Had Kept Tryst With Lover During Husband's Absence.

GUS NOFFSINGER, MRS NOFFSINGER and their CHILD.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
HENDERSON, Ky., Jan. 20.

"I NEVER had a better pal than Gus Noffsinger. He was a friend to me at all times, but his wife kept nagging at me to get him out of the way so she and I could get married and I killed him."

Thus did Ollie Gibbons, Kentucky coal miner, sum up his connection with the Henderson "hammer murder", which, in the three weeks since its occurrence, has been widely characterized as the most brutal crime in the history of western Kentucky. The speaker talked as he sat in a railroad train that was taking him to Louisville for safe keeping and his listeners were Sheriff Otis L. Benton and Deputy Sheriff Mike P. Abel of Henderson county. Ater repeated denials of his guilt, he had broken and was telling a story that cleared up some phases of the case which had remained unexplained when Noffsinger's widow weakened under the strain on her conscience and made a confession resulting in the arrest of her lover.

Gibbons' story was a tale of illicit romance with the wife of his best friend. He told of his visits to the home of his friend, of love messages exchanged with the woman when her husband's back was turned or while he played with his baby daughter on the floor, and of their plans to run away together when the husband should have been slain and his insurance collected. He told of his pangs of conscience that troubled him when the time set for the murder approached, of the man's kindness to him, and of the woman's urging that spurred him on to strike the fatal blow. Finally he related how, after the crime had been committed, the newly made widow tried to embrace him publicly while shedding false tears over her slain husband's body.

Once his tongue was loosened, he left few details of the sordid crime and its development untouched. Then, when his statement had been prepared he affixed his name and began his wait in the Louisville jail for the trial, set for Feb. 19, which will determine his fate.

Offer to Plead Guilty Rejected

As the time for it approaches his chance for life—even a life in prison—appear remote, officials declare, for his offer to plead guilty and accept a life sentence has been refused by the prosecuting authorities. The State will ask for his death, and as his father, William Gibbons of Evansville, Ind., has announced that he is unable to finance a defense, the accused man's only defender will be an attorney appointed by the court.

Mrs. Lurlie Noffsinger, the widow of the slain man and the woman whom Gibbons had expected to marry ere this, has fared slightly better, but she, too, is finding marital freedom obtained at the expense of her husband's life, extremely uncertain.

Though she is at liberty on a bond of $5000, an indictment charging her with being an accessory in the case has been returned along with that naming her lover as the murderer. Her release came recently after she had been rushed to Owensboro for safety.

With the stage set for the Gibbons trial, discussion is turning to the many points of striking similarity between this case and the famous Bywaters-Thompson case of London which terminated two weeks ago with the hanging of Mrs. Edith Thompson, a young milliner, and Frederick Bywaters, her youthful lover, for the murder of the woman's husband. The circumstances leading up to the Kentucky tragedy were almost identical with those surrounding the killing of Thompson, a shipping clerk, on the other side of the Atlantic.

Comparison of English and American Justice

There was in each case the same motive apparent, the same clandestine association, the same plotting over a long period of time. The victims in both cases were slain by men who had lived in their homes and associated with them as boon companions. Both crimes apparently were inspired by wives, tired of their husbands and longing for marital freedom so that they might live undisturbed with their illicit lovers.

Whether the rigors of British law, which exacted the death penalty so relentlessly in the Thompson case, thereby marking the first execution of a woman in England in 15 years, will be emulated in this country remains to be seen. The coming trial is expected to determine whether there is much or little truth in the statement frequently heard that criminals fare easier in American courts than they do in those of European countries.

Noffsinger, who was 34 years old, had been the manager of the mines of the Southland Coal Company of Henderson, and Gibbons, a man of the same age, had been employed by the same concern. The two frequently had been seen together and appeared to be close friends. In fact they sometimes made trips out of town together and Gibbons often stayed at the Noffsinger home.

It was on the night of Dec. 31 that Noffsinger was slain at the door of his garage just after he had put his car away. His body with the skull crushed from behind, was found the next morning not 20 feet from his wife's bedchamber. His own miner's hammer which lay nearby with telltale marks upon it explained the agency of his death, which apparently had been instantaneous.

Bloodhounds were brought to the spot and the investigation was begun. Gossip some time before had linked the names of Gibbons with Mrs. Noffsinger and it was not long before the finger of suspicion was pointed at the miner, but it was not until after, the widow's breakdown and subsequent confession that he was arrested.

Conscience Moves Widow to Talk

Several days after the murder Mrs. Noffsinger had gone to the Henderson courthouse on an errand concerning the appointment of an administrator for her husband's estate and also of a guardian for her 5-year-old daughter. She had been unable to see her attorneys promptly and the delay had accentuated her already nervous condition. Entering the lawyer's office, she suddenly threw herself into a chair with the exclamation: "Oh, I am troubled nearly to death. I had better tell it all and get it over with. I can't go on like this. I must have relief."

The lawyer advised her to tell her story to the detectives and she acted upon his advice.

Questioned by the officers, Mrs. Noffsinger is declared to have admitted that Gibbons killed her husband; that she knew in advance her lover's intention, but took no step to prevent it.

On the night of the murder her husband had left the house early in the evening, she related, according to the detectives, and Gibbons came to visit her. He left just before the time Noffsinger was to return. The next morning, when Noffsinger did not appear, she knew, she said, that the murder had been done. A tale of domestic unhappiness and of infatuation with her husband's friend was included in her story. "We had had trouble and my husband was cruel to me," she is said to have related. "Ollie was kind to me and we decided to run away and get married. He suggested that I buy some poison and put it in Gus' coffee, but I told him I couldn't do that. Then he said the he would knock him off.

"I didn't know what he meant by that, but I knew he would carry out his plan, whatever it was, and Gus had been so mean to me that I had come to the stage where I didn't care what happened. We were going to try some way to get Gus' life insurance and then go away together."

The Murderer Fell Into Trap

The hammer with which Noffsinger was slain was his own, his widow said, but it had been missing for weeks. Her explanation of its absence was that Gibbons had hidden it in order to have it handy when an opportune time to use it as a weapon came.

Following Mrs. Noffsinger's confession, Gibbons was arrested, but he steadfastly denied his guilt.

It was not until the officers were taking him to Louisville that he wavered and he did so then as the result of a ruse. The two officers and the prisoner were engaged in conversation on the train when the deputy said "Say, Gibbons, you were a fool to go around making tracks in the mud about Noffsinger's body when you are the only man in Henderson who wears a five and a half made-to-order shoe." (There had been no tracks found at the scene of the murder.)

Gibbons was confused. "Hand-me-down shoes make the same kind of a track," he countered. "What makes you think that the tracks were mine?"

"Don't you know," the deputy asked, "that there are eight holes in the heel of a made-to-order shoe and only six in the heel of a ready-made shoe and that you are the only man in these parts with a five and a half foot who wears that kind of a shoe?"

Gibbons broke. "I'll confess," said he, and he told his story.

The confession, which is an extraordinary document because of its detail, follows in full:

Tells How Woman Wooed Him

"I was in the parlor of Mrs. Noffsinger's residence last June, 1922, and she came in there and said to me: 'Ollie, I want you to learn me how to dance so we can go out and have a good time together.'

"I told Mrs. Noffsinger I could learn her how to dance, but I don't know about the good times. Then she said to me that she wanted me to quit drinking. Which I did.

"Then she said: 'Ollie, can you get me loose from Gus?'

"I told her the only way I knew was to get up and leave him and she said 'I cannot do that, for he would take my child.' She said 'Ollie, you know how he drinks white mule, and you and him taking drinks every morning, and you can get something and put it in his drink. Then I would be yours.'

"I told her that I couldn't do anything like that because he was too good a friend to me. She said 'Yes, you could, because everybody in Henderson knows you are a friend to him and he is to you, and no one will ever think anything about it.' She said 'If you don't want to kill him that way, shoot him, because you have a good gun, and you know so.'

"I told her I would never do such a thing, or trick as to shoot anybody with a pistol. She then said 'What will I do?'

"I told her if she wanted to get rid of her husband, she would have to do the work herself. She said she could not commit murder.

"We went on for weeks and weeks and she kept asking me to do this and I would keep telling her I was afraid the people of Henderson would find it out. She said 'Ollie, you know he don't treat me right.' I said 'What makes you think so?'

Advised Her to Remain With Husband

"I then said: 'Mrs. Noffsinger, you had better stay with your husband, because he makes $5 a day where I only make $1 (his way of expressing their difference in financial standing and not a statement of actual income) and you know that you have a good home, a baby girl to take care of, and all other happy things of a home.' I said: 'Mrs. Noffsinger, I've been married once, lost my wife and I don't ever expect to jump into the river again.'

"She said: 'Ollie, I love you well enough to let you take my heart, string it around your neck, and wear it for a charm.' I said: 'I can't help it if you do. I haven't got the nerve to kill the man.' I told her the only thing I knew of, as I told her before, was to leave him. I further said, I could not do it.

"She would have me go to the mines just to fool him, make him think that I was working, playing off sick and come home and I would do so. Every day the mines were running and I would not work. I would get paid just the same, as she would give me the money. She said: 'Ollie, if I didn't love you, I wouldn't be doing this,' and I told her I was a fool for staying here and taking that man's money. She said: 'No, never, you have been so good to us, keeping up the fires in cold weather and doing the cooking while I was sick.'

"She said: 'Ollie, Gus is my second husband and you're the only boy I have ever met that I really loved. Then why shouldn't you get me loose from him?' she said.

"I said: 'Simply because I haven't got the heart.' She would tell me everywhere he was to go, and what hour of the night he was to get back. She told me once he was going to Evansville, Ind., and for me to go with him and 'bump him off.'

"I told her if she wanted me to go to Evansville with him I would, but would not 'bump him off.' She said, 'Why not?'

"I told her if I did, the people of Henderson would find it out. He asked me that night to go to Evansville with him and also his wife to come along. She said she did not want to go to Evansville with him as it was too far to ride. He said, 'Come on, Shorty (he called me that name), we will go ourselves.' I did so.

Then the Neighbors Began to Talk

"We came back (Gus and I) on the last ferry about 12:15. I came home and went to bed.

"The next morning I was sure sick, because we had taken a few drinks the night before, while going and coming back. Gus said the next morning, 'Shorty, I wouldn't go to work this morning if you don't feel like it.' I was at the breakfast table the same morning and I said, 'Gus, call the boss up and tell him I can't come to work.'

"He said, 'To hell with the boss. I am the boss. You tell him while I listen.' After that he went to the mines (Gus), and his wife came in my room and told me she was glad I didn't go to work. And then she further said, 'You never did what I told you to do,' And I told her 'I did not have the heart.'

"That morning I went out to the mines and Dave Burich, my foreman, said, 'Shorty, I have something to tell you when I get the chance.'

"I said, 'When I come back you can tell me what it is.' He said, 'All right.'

"When I got off the motor he said, 'Ollie, do you know the people on Clay Street were talking about you and Gus' wife?' I said, 'About what?' He said, 'They told my wife and she told me that you and her are loving one another.'

"I said, 'You might call it loving if you want to, but I was only dancing with her.' He said that the people were going to go and tell Gus themselves. I said:

"Dave, I am going out and see Gus myself.'

"He said 'No, don't go to him yourself.' That he didn't want him and his wife pulled into it.

But the Husband Trusted Them

"I told him that I did not care if I did, that I was sure going to him and tell it. That the people said I was loving his wife; and I did go and tell Gus that Dave Burich told me that the people said I was loving his wife.

"When I told him this he said 'Ollie, I don't care what the people think. They cannot make me believe it, because I think you are too good a friend of mine and us.' I said 'Gus, why I am.' And then we both cried.

"He said 'Come on, I'm going up town.'

"We got into the machine and I told him 'Gus, I'm going to leave town.' He said 'No, Shorty, don't do that, because I am a new man on this job, and you can help me and tell me what goes on in the mines.' I said 'Gus, it's hard to stay around the town and have the people talking about me and your wife.'

"He said 'That is all right about what the people are saying. When they are talking about you they are letting other people rest.' I said 'All right, just as you say.'

"Then we went to dinner. After we had dinner he said 'Shorty, do you want to use the car this afternoon?' His wife said 'Yes, I do, I want to go down town.' He said 'Shorty can take me over to the office, come back and take you up town.'

"Going over to the office with Gus, I said 'I don't like to take your wife down town after the way the people are talking about me.' He said 'Go ahead, Shorty, that's all right,' and I did so.

"His wife told me going up town, 'Ollie, how happy I would be if I could only say you belong to me!' I told her she did not mean what she said, or was talking about. Coming back home, I went on over to the office, brought Gus back after he got through with his work. When he got home he played the piano that night, and his wife and myself were dancing.

"Every time she would catch his back turned she would make the motion with her mouth: 'That I love you.' That was on Sunday morning and we did not get up until about 8 o'clock. Gus came in my room and said, 'Shorty, you will have to get breakfast for us again. Bill (his wife) is sick and does not feel very good; she danced too much, I think.'

"And I said, 'All right, I will get the breakfast.'

"Whenever he had to work at the mines, he told me to take his wife out car driving. I had taken his wife and child to Anthoston, Ky. She told me not to be in too much of a hurry to get back, to drive along slowly. Then we came home and I went and got Gus Noffsinger. This had been going on for about eight months.)

Tells How He Killed His Friend

"On Saturday night, Dec. 30, 1922, I was at his home. I went down there about 6 o'clock and I was playing on the piano. He was singing and playing with his child. He went out after a while and his wife slips in there where I was, tells me that 'Gus is going out and up town and don't you go with him. You stay here,' she said.

"She told me where he was going, who he was going to meet, what train he was coming in on and about what time he would be home.

"She said, 'Shorty, got your gun?'

"'Why, yes,' I told her.

"She said: 'Tonight is a rainy night, and would be a good inght for you to do your work.' I told her I was afraid to. She said 'You never will get caught.'

"I stayed at her house until 9:30 o'clock and then went out down town. I got to the Blue Front grocery store. Four of us, who were together, had lunch there. J. W. Miles, George Reed Jr., and C. W. Cavanaugh, and myself.

"They closed up the place after I had eaten. Mr. Miles went to the barber shop. Cavanaugh and the others going home, and I called around Arthur Raymond's garage, stayed there until about 11 o'clock. I went from there to Burris' drug store on Powell and Mill streets. I walked to the end of the car line on Powell street several times in the rain with an umbrella over me waiting for Gus to come by.

"He did, so I got into the car with him, and he drives into the garage. He got out first. This hammer was lying in the back of the car. I reached over and got it. I stepped aside of the door and I hit him on the head once behind the ear and he fell.

"I took the umbrella with one hand and stuck a stick up aside of the fence, climbed up on the fence, walked the fence to the sidewalk and jumped off there and went to my room. (It was in this way that he guarded against giving bloodhounds any scent.)

"The next morning, two boys came after me and said, 'Gus got killed.'

"I told them 'Are you kidding me?'

"They said 'No.'

"I went on down there, half-dressed, stayed back where he was lying and some people told me to get back away from there that they were waiting for the dogs (hounds). I came back and went into the house and shook hands with Gus' mother and father and went into Mrs. Noffsinger's room and all were crying.

"His wife was sitting in a chair. She raised up acting like she wanted to hug me. I turned and went into the other room away from her. At 11:30, I told Mrs. Noffsinger (Gus' wife) if anybody wanted me I would be in my room. She said, 'Don't be in a hurry, we will have dinner here.' I said, 'It is not dinner I want.'

"Then I went away.

"I never had a better friend than Gus Noffsinger. He was my friend at all times and his wife kept nagging at me to do this and I killed him."

Lionel Joins Ethel and John in List of Shattered Barrymore Romances

THIRD OF FAMILY OF ACTORS TO FIND FIRST MARRIAGE A FAILURE THOUGH HIS LASTED 18 YEARS

His Union With Dorris Rankin Was Looked Upon in the Theatrical World as Ideal Until Announcement a Few Days Ago That She Had Been Granted a Divorce in New York, Where the One Cause for Such Action Is Marital Infidelity—John Divorced One New York Society Beauty to Wed Another, While Ethel Found Her Marriage to a Member of the Colt Arms Family Irksome After Three Children Were Born.

LIONEL BARRYMORE

MRS. DORRIS RANKIN BARRYMORE

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.

BROADWAY and the theatergoing public in general have been speculating a lot in the four weeks that have passed since Lionel Barrymore and Dorris Rankin came to a parting of the ways, and the more they speculate the harder it becomes to arrive at any definite conclusion about either of two matters that interest them most.

In the first place, they would like to know the story that is behind the situation that resulted in Mrs. Barrymore being awarded an interlocutory decree of divorce Dec. 22 upon a referee's findings. In the second, they would like to find out how much truth there is in the persistent rumors that very soon after the decree is made permanent on March 22 two weddings will take place.

Everybody seems to have his or her own private explanation of the mysterious proceedings and nobody would think of keeping anybody else in suspense about it, but all the explaining isn't getting the explainers anywhere. Both principals in the divorce action are about as quiet as the gossips are talkative. They refuse to affirm or deny any report, sensational as it may be, about any phase of the tangle whatsoever, specific or general. The prospect of getting any information out of them does not appear promising.

Neither does there seem to be any light forthcoming from official sources. The policy of secrecy in marital affairs that for a long time has been prevalent in Dutchess County, where the proceedings went through, apparently has been adhered to so rigidly that neither the identity of the co-respondent nor the testimony of any of the witnesses has leaked out.

Co-Respondent a Mystery

Of course, there was a co-respondent. The public is satisfied about that. That was one of the first deductions, and quite a natural one in view of the fact that marital infidelity is the only ground for divorce in this State. Co-respondents are quite indispensable in New York divorce cases.

But the question of identifying her was something else again.

As a result of all this secrecy, the public feels that it has been cheated out of a sensation and there is nothing that hurts quite so much as that. It feels that somebody has slipped one over on it while it was napping. Here Lionel Barrymore had never been thought of as anything but a model husband.

For 18 years the couple's married life seemed to be an object lesson in connubial devotion. They had appeared in the same companies on the stage and seemed immune to domestic discord. Now comes the revelation that there has been an affair and a co-respondent and a charge of infidelity and all that—and the stage gossips missed it all. In fact, they didn't even know that a divorce had been applied for until it was granted and Supreme Court Justice Morschauser made the announcement publicly.

But if the gossips were tardy about supplying details before the divorce, they haven't been slow since that time. Already two young actresses have been picked as eminently eligible to be brides of Barrymore as soon as he is eligible to have another bride. One was a member of the company in which he had been playing. She promptly met the report with the declaration that she already had one good husband and didn't contemplate divorcing him for another, Lionel Barrymore or anybody else.

Some of Lionel's Likes and Dislikes

Again, the name of a handsome young theatrical star who recently divorced a prominent real estate dealer has been mentioned in view of Barrymore's alleged interest in her. As yet this report has met with neither denial nor verification.

Since Barrymore himself won't discuss the factors entering into his divorce, the self-appointed investigators are going to other sources in an effort to solve the problem. It happens that there are on the records several quotations of recent date in which he has expressed his opinions on life and love rather forcefully. These are now being dug out assiduously.

Then, besides, some of his well-known likes and dislikes are being recalled. For one instance, he is noted professionally for being averse to playing in one role for a prolonged period and insisting always on a change of play, with contrasting characters.

He is known to hold the theory that constant repetition and monotony of experience is deadening to the enthusiasm and dulling to the mind. He has always striven ceaselessly for new successes. In an interview in the American magazine he expressed this view:

"I have always lived in the present, never in the past and never in the future. What's over is over; what's to come is to come."

Barrymore is 45 years old, but he has preserved a tradition of youth, extraordinary for a man of his years, by varying his roles so that he plays young men's parts and old men's parts alternately. He has played extensively in pictures as well as on the stage and possesses rare skill as a screen artist. In pictures he pursued the same policies and tastes that he displayed in the spoken drama.

The Barrymores and Marriage

Lionel is the third and last of the Barrymores to find marriage, or at least first marriage, a failure. Ethel Barrymore, sister of Lionel, was married to Russell G. Colt, son of the millionaire rubber manufacturer, S. P. Colt, in 1909, when she was at the zenith of her fame, but 12 years later she was finally forced reluctantly to break the marriage bonds because of her husband's alleged association with other women. They were separated under a formal agreement under which the mother was to have the custody of the three children.

John Barrymore, younger brother of Lionel and Ethel, married Kitty Harris in 1910, was divorced in 1917 and now is remarried to the former Mrs. Leonard Thomas, poet and playwright, who writes under the name of Michael Strange.

ETHEL BARRYMORE COLT

Lionel and Dorris Rankin were married in St. Francis Xavier's Church, in Manhattan, on June 22, 1904. Both families sanctioned the affair and were represented at the wedding. John served as best man, and McKee Rankin, the bride's father, gave her away. In the years that followed there was no suggestion of discord in the family, nor rumor of trouble that was accepted seriously.

In contrast to the smooth-running circumstances of Lionel's marriage, however, were the dramatic events attending John's first venture into matrimony. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Harris, parents of the bride, became involved and brought powerful opposition to bear against the ceremony. But nevertheless, it was performed in spite of their objection, and took place also in St. Fancis Xavier's Church in New York City.

John's romance not only was frowned on by the parents of Miss Harris, but by his managers as well. In fact, they had so feared such an emergency that they had taken out a policy of $50,000 with Lloyds of London as insurance against his marriage to anybody.

Old Flames of John Barrymore

It was in 1910, during the run of "The Fortune Hunter," that his managers took this measure of protecting their matinee idol against matrimony—and themselves against consequent shrinkage in box-office receipts from adoring young things who are supposed to turn up their pert noses at "old married men." Their policy was well timed, for even then John Barrymore was getting the reputation of being one of the most sought after—and one of the most susceptible—young men in America.

PRESENT MRS. JOHN BARRYMORE

He had been engaged or reported to be engaged nearly a dozen times. He was the youthful sweetheart of Evelyn Nesbit, who later became the wife of Harry K. Thaw; others who were recipients of his attentions were Bonnie Maginn, the dancer; Vivian Blackburn, a beautiful show girl and the original of the fencing girl posters; Loretta Faust, Elsie Janis, Ida Conquest, Grace Lane, a Chicago beauty; Sallie Fisher, his leading woman in "A Stubborn Cinderella," and Hazel Allen. His dressing room was invariably swamped with mash notes and flowers from feminine adorers.

Then, with his heart all heavily insured, he met Kitty Harris, a pretty 18-year-old society girl of New York, and promptly lost it. The announcement of their engagement and their wedding followed shortly afterward. Later the bride appeared with her husband in "Believe Me, Xantippe," and, to all appearances, the marriage was a happy one. For seven years all went well; then Mrs. Barrymore quietly got a divorce in California, alleging desertion.

In 1920, three years after his divorce, came John's romance with Mrs. Blanche Oelrichs Thomas, "Poetess of Passion" and former society girl, whom Paul Helleu, the French artist, once described as "America's most beautiful woman." A Paris divorce for incompatibility had more recently ended her first romance. She was originally Blanche Oelrichs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oelrichs of New York and Newport, and her former husband, Leonard Moorhead Thomas, a wealthy clubman, sportsman and musician, was at one time secretary of the American Legation at Madrid. She, like John Barrymore, was married first in 1910. She has two little sons, Leonard Jr. and Robin May Thomas, who remained with her after the divorce.

The former Mrs. Thomas has achieved considerable fame with her writings. About six years ago she published a first volume of "Miscellaneous Poems," which attracted wide attention, and three years later came a second volume. Highly emotional verses made up the contents of both books and many of the poems expressed the shadows, disillusions and despairs of love long before there was any public intimation of the author's domestic infelicity.

THE FIRST MRS. JOHN BARRYMORE

Since her second marriage she has gained prominence as a playwright with "Claire de Lune," in which her husband appeared last year with his sister, Ethel.

The John Barrymores now have a daughter and their married life appears to be a happy one. Observation of its course is interesting in view of John Barrymore's philosophy of marriage as he once expounded it.

"A true sporting spirit is indispensable to a happy marriage," he declared. "When I meet the right girl I will ask her, and, if she will have me, marry her and do my best to make her happy. The married sportsman does not believe that his wife is to forsake her old friends and devote herself exclusively to him. He knows that she requires friends and amusements just as much after marriage as she did before.

"The sportsman is not suspicious and jealous. To him his wife is a fair, square, honorable partner, and he relies upon her to do her best in every emergency of life. He trusts her with her former men friends and does not think it a sin to have her sit down at luncheon or go to the theater with another man. The married sportsman will not nag or scold.

"To sum it all up, the husband with the sporting spirit will give his wife mental, financial and social freedom.

"Everything I've said goes for the wife as well, but of course she has a much harder job before her. The civilized woman is pretty nearly perfect, while the best man, compared with her, is only a rough-necked savage."

Ethel Barrymore's marriage endured over a troubled period of 12 years, during which there were frequent reports that the union was an unhappy one and that a divorce was to be sought. At times a New York society woman's name was mentioned in connection with the trouble, but Colt, husband of Miss Barymore, vehemently denied that there was a New York woman or any other woman involved. Eventually came the separation, however.

A formal statement issued by William Nelson Cromwell, counsel for Miss Barrymore, on March 7, 1921, set forth the circumstances surrounding the separation as follows:

"Mrs. Barrymore Colt has refrained from making any statement whatever regarding her domestic concerns and of course I have known of this attitude and have myself strictly adhered to it heretofore. But in view of the wide publicity which has been given the subject it seems wiser to clear the atmosphere by now confirming the fact that Mrs. Ethel Barrymore-Colt has definitely separated her life and home from Mr. Colt and that a separation agreement has been formally executed by both parties and is in actual operation.

"By the agreement, Mrs. Barrymore-Colt has the sole care, custody, control and education of the three young children. Mr. Colt has the opportunity of companionship with the children, subject to the arrangements and convenience of their mother, and the health, physical conditions and studies as determined by her."

Miss Barrymore's secret marriage to Colt came as a surprise to those of her friends who had other expectations for her. She had won a leading place on the American stage and had

The Post-Dispatch prints herewith extracts from editorial or other articles in organs of the labor unions and Communist and Socialist parties showing the trend of thought on public questions among those bodies of citizens, and indicating causes of social unrest.

BIBLES AND BULLETS.

(From the Miami Valley Socialist.)

Alvin Davis of Dewar, Ok., in a recent letter to Haldeman-Julius says:

"Here in Okmulgee County the klan is having its day of power. Nearly all the county officials belong to it and they were victorious in the November election almost to a man. So the next administration will be worse than the present one. "Dozens of citizens have been threatened, whipped and driven out of the country. Bibles have been placed in all the public schools and teachers instructed to read them to the pupils. It is impossible to get witnesses to testify against klansmen.

"The president of the 'True Blues' of Spelter City, T. J. Bogus, former Deputy Sheriff and Constable, was shot and killed on the streets of Spelter City for filing information against three klansmen for participating in a whipping party."

What a picture of social disintegration! A generation ago we read of such organized terrorism in Sicily and thanked God we lived in a free, enlightened, civilized country where no Mafia could terrorize the community and defy the Government. It was only in centers of degraded, ignorant, servile population that such scenes could be! Capitalism has brought its evil fruit upon us. Raving reaction rides by night in pillow case and sheet trying to frighten back the rolling tides of progress. The hand of the masked murderer, smoking with the hot blood of its victim, thrusts a Bible into the hands of the trembling school teacher! What a travesty upon religion! What a sin against the Holy Spirit! What a recrudescence of the Dark Ages!

FARMERS NEED MORE IN CREDITS.

(From the Milwaukee Leader, Socialist.)

Deflation has cost the farmers of the United States somewhere in the neighborhood of $20,000,000,000. Not $20,000,000—but $20,000,000,000.

The farmers need more credits. Harding admits this, but does not suggest any practicable program. Such farmers as are not already loaded up with debts can make use of credits to advantage in holding their crops for higher prices. But all of the dirt farmers are in need of much more constructive and helpful legislation.

They need crop insurance to equalize the burden when there is a partial or total failure of crops due not to their own fault, but to the "act of God"—as the lawyers call storms, drouth, etc. All the bad things that cannot be otherwise explained the legal fraternity blames on God.

The farmers also need stabilized prices. Some farmers think credits will be sufficient to bring about stabilized prices, but this does not seem probable.

The farmers likewise need aid in selling their surplus products. They need lower freight rates. Farm tenants need lower rents.

All of which could be supplied by a Congress that wanted to do it. Lenroot does not want to. When the managing director of the Farmers' National Council suggested crop insurance to the Joint Agricultural Inquiry Committee in the summer of 1921, he says that "certain members of that committee, including Lenroot of Wisconsin and Senator McNary of Oregon, acted as though I should make application for admission to the insane asylum."

LET GLUTTONS PAY THE BILL.

(From the Oklahoma Leader, Farmer-Labor.)

Before the war the debt owed by the United States Government amounted to $10 per capita. The national debt now amounts to $203 per capita. All due to the war.

And what did the people of this country get out of the war—as compensation for this huge debt which was saddled upon them?

Democracy? Nothing doing—they have less democracy than they had before, for some of the most important constitutional guarantees have been tramped out of existence.

They got cripples, shell-shock victims, and green graves.

They got empty chairs and empty purses.

Yes, they got a nice assortment of new millionaires, too.

Why should not the rich beneficiaries of the war be made to pay the big debt that was contracted for?

LIBERTY IS DIVINE.

(From the Seattle Union Record, Labor.)

Our readers are familiar with the stock assertion of the "open shoppers" that what they are primarily interested in is preserving to the "free and independent worker" his "inalienable" right to work when and where he pleases.

We have heretofore pointed out that this so-called "inalienable" right is, after all, alienable. It is alienated every time some worker is laid off or fired.

Attention has also been called to the fact that the freedom and independence enjoyed by the unorganized workers is that freedom that permits a worker to exercise his "inalienable" right to starve—either on the job or off. For, strange as it may seem, the "open shop" defenders of liberty are singularly careless when it comes to providing wages or working conditions that make for a living standard above that of mere subsistence.

The other day we happened on the following from the writings of Thomas Carlyle. It makes interesting reading in the light of the talk going around about "free and independent" workers:

"Liberty, I am told, is a divine thing. Liberty, when it becomes the liberty to die by starvation, is not so divine. That I have been called by all the newspapers 'a free man' will avail me little if my pilgrimage has ended in death and wreck. Liberty requires new definitions."

DEPORTATION FOR PARDONED RADICALS.

(From the New York Call, Socialist.)

In commuting the sentences of eight members of the I. W. W. who were convicted under the infamous espionage act in 1918, President Harding has imposed conditions that are abominable. These men are given 60 days in which to leave the country, failing to do so they will have to return to prison and serve the remainder of their terms. What the President does is to offer the men exile as an alternative to imprisonment. As though to rub salt into the wound, it was emphasized at the White House that the release of these men under such atrocious conditions does not indicate any purpose to extend clemency to other prisoners convicted in the same trial.

Months ago the Department of Justice let it be known that the prisoners, who are American citizens, would be required to give up their ideas if they are to expect clemency. The imperial bureaucrats have not the courage to establish a place of exile for this class of prisoners, so they adopt the expedient of demanding that these politicals surrender their opinions.

This policy is all the more reactionary, considering that if it were rigidly applied to the capitalist class certain leaders of powerful corporations would be serving long prison sentences. Whatever may be said of the views of the I. W. W., it is certain that they have in mind the organization of wage workers after the fashion set, for example, by the United States Steel Corporation.

The Harding view is to imprison this idea when it is offered to the workers and to accept campaign funds from the corporate masters, who have realized the same idea in the organization of billions of capital. Harding's policy, like the Wilson policy toward these prisoners, is naked class rule and nothing else.

HELPING THE FARMER.

(From the Seattle Union Record, Labor.)

The Harding administration is evidently aware that something is wrong in the rural districts and that the returns from the last election reflected dissatisfaction with things as they are. In no other way can administration support of the bill authorizing the Federal land banks to increase the limit of loans on farms from $10,000 to $25,000 be explained.

Making it easy to get into debt is no cure for the farmers' ills. Instead, it must aggravate the situation. Debts finally must be paid. To refuse to recognize that fact is but to postpone the day of reckoning.

Federal control of transportation facilities insuring adequate facilities at cost and organization of a marketing system that will unload a horde of useless middlemen and gamblers, is the only program that has in it any ray of hope for the farmers.

Insurance Sales Meeting Tomorrow.

A one-day sales' meeting under the auspices of the Life Underwriters' Association of St. Louis will be held tomorrow in the Assembly Room of the Chamber of Commerce. Speeches by seevral insurance men will feature the program.

PLANTING OF MILLION TREES IN 1923 URGED BY FORESTRY BODY

Any Person Who Places One Is Eligible to Membership in New Association.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Planting of a million trees in 1923 is the objective of the American Tree Association, just organized by Charles Lathrop Pack, former president of the American Forestry Association. The new association will make anyone who plants a tree and registers it with the association a member. There are no cash dues and the only way to join the association is to plant a tree.

Response to the call for tree planters has been remarkable, says P. S. Rinsdale, secretary. Everyone who planted a tree in 1922 is eligible. From Louisville, Ky., 3000 memberships have been received from one bank that gives depositors tree to plant. The national tree-voting plan has been taken up in a number of schools.

Pack is continuing to send millions of American tree seeds to England, France, Italy and Belgium to help to reforest war-devastated areas. As a result millions of American trees already are growing in Western Europe.

"Bootleggers' War" Blamed For 16 Unsolved Murders

the morning of April 20, three days after Kennedy's death. Wallace, it is said, had been employed in connection with a dice game at the old Suburban Garden, and his murder was believed to have resulted from a disagreement among hangers-on there. Detectives who worked on the case obtained from underground sources information that he was shot by a fellow gangster. The man named in the case eluded his pursuers for some weeks, then came in with a lawyer and was released. The police said they had evidence that he had been wounded in the fight in which Wallace was killed, but there were no witnesses and it was impossible to make the case against him stand up.

The killing of Ottersbach, 27 pears old, a professional pianist, took place on the night of May 27. His body was found the next day in a wrecked automobile at 8216 North Broadway. The killing had followed a wild automobile ride during which there had been frequent stops at roadhouses and much drinking and his body bore evidence that he had been shot by someone standing on the running board of the machine or at a point close beside the car. Apparntly there had been no attempt at robbery. Witnesses were found who testified that he had been threatened because of his association with a young woman and that he had had trouble with gang members, but his murder was never solved.

Peter Berg's death, which is among the most recent of those attributed to gang operations, occurred on Dec. 1 at the Jewish bath house, 1515 [illegible] street. On that afternoon he was escorted to the place by two companions. Latter his companions left him and two other men, attired in raincoats, stepped into the room and emptied their revolvers into his nude body. The Police Department displayed its usual activity and it was learned from underground sources that he had quarreled the day before the murder with four associates over a "business deal," in which he had been accused of holding out more than his share of the profits. The associates were named and search for them was begun. The trail already has led through several Western states and the police believe they may be captured, but they also believe that it is extremely doubtful if a case can ever be made against them.

On Nov. 15 Theodore Lange was shot to death in an automobile by a man in another car. The police learned that he had been a loiterer in a saloon and had incurred the enmity of a gang there and that some members of the gang had made threats against him. Several men were arrested, but were released for lack of identifying witnesses.

Throughout the history of gang murders has appeared conspicuously the determination of both the accused and their victims to keep silence. Dying men and men who had escaped their assailants' bullets would grimly refuse to give the police any information and those who expected to recover would indicate their purpose of settling the score themselves. In the face of this attitude the police are sometimes heard to remark that, after all, worse things could happen than the killing of gangsters by other gangsters. So also are they known sometimes to venture the opinion that the best way to deal with a gang murder is to give the opposing gang full opportunity to avenge it, thereby ridding the city of two criminals instead of one.

Other murders which reveal no evidence that gang activities had a bearing on them have also resulted in fruitless quests for justice, too. In some ten or a dozen cases the police have solved the mysteries to their own satisfaction, only to have prosecution blocked by failure to obtain tangible evidence.

There was the case of Charles Sterner, prohibition agent, who was mortally wounded in a raid on the Sharpshooters' Club in St. Louis County on June 18. It was established that Sterner was shot by a man who was serving as lookout for some 15 others who were believed to have been engaged in a gambling game, but the identity of the lookout was never definitely fixed.

The killing of Matthew Winkeler, [illegible] years old, of 1448 North Market street, a laundry wagon driver, on March 21, was never explained. He was found lying on a platform in front of 1823 Lucas avenue, with his hands crushed behind and his nose fractured. There was no indication of a struggle and he had not been robbed. No arrests were made. Police believed he had been killed by negroes, but were never able to substantiate their belief.

Still another unexplained murder was that of William T. Pilcher, 53 years old, of Webster Groves, a general foreman of construction for the United Railways, who was shot and fatally wounded while waiting for a street car to bring him to St. Louis Feb. 6, and who died in St. Luke's Hospital Feb. 12. Several suspects were arrested, including two soldiers from Jefferson Barracks and one in Oklahoma. None of them was identified, however, and all were released.

Pilcher, before his death, told how he had been waiting for a street car when two men accosted him and said, "This is where the aristocrats live, isn't it?" When he replied in the negative and said "respectable" persons lived in the neighborhood he was shot. There was no attempt to rob Pilcher and the shooting, the police asserted at the time, was without provocation.

Hardly less baffling was the killing of Alexander Bleiweiss, 33 years old, a huckster of 4620A St. Louis avenue, who was shot on the night of Sept. 14 as he was preparing to drive his truck into the garage in the rear of his home. No one observed the shooting and no one was seen fleeing from the scene. Relatives told the police he had been in fear that he would be shot by a gang of young hoodlums who frequented a nearby corner and had been heard to say "that gang is going to get me yet. They are hanging around every night when I drive in. If you ever find me dead you will know who did it." A revolver was found in the vicinity of the scene and several persons were arrested, but identification of the slayer was not established.

Curious Death of an Actor.

On May 14 Albert McInnis, 35 years old, a vaudeville actor, died at the city hospital from injuries received when he and his brother and a stranger engaged in an altercation with a taxicab driver over the amount of a fare. In the fight McInnis was knocked down, striking his head on the pavement and fracturing his skull. It was never definitely established who struck the blow that caused him to fall.

Some Cases With Unusual Angles.

There was the case of William F. Steinfeld, the grocery truck driver who died Dec. 12 from a fractured skull. The police working on the case satisfied themselves that he suffered the fatal injury when knocked down in a fight. He was found lying upon the sidewalk on the afternoon of Dec. 8 by a policeman who thought he was drunk. An examination at the city hospital later revealed that he had suffered an injury to the head. It was learned that he had become angry and had walked out of a saloon that afternoon upon being refused a drink and was later heard quarreling with a man whom he addressed as "Harry." Witnesses told of seeing "Harry" hurrying away from Steinfeld a little later when the latter was sprawled upon the sidewalk, but nobody could identify "Harry."

A peculiar case was that of Frank Whitelaw, a negro cook, whose body with a bullet wound in the abdomen was found early on the morning of Dec. 21 in the yard of the True Light Baptist (negro) Church, at 109 South Sixteenth street. The body indicated that it had been hauled there from a distance.

Investigation disclosed that Whitelaw had associated with white men and one of these former associates, who accompanied Whitelaw's body to his home in Cape Girardeau, was arrested when he returned to the city. He told a curious story of how Whitelaw had exerted a strange influence over him and how he had only recently been able to throw off the spell. He had married and was living with his wife on Olive street. He was glad that Whitelaw was dead, he declared, and went to Cape Girardeau simply to make sure that the negro was buried. There was no evidence to connect him with the killing and he was released on his alibi, although the police were skeptical of his story.

"A Solution for All Mysteries."

The police, however, recognize no murder case as a mystery impossible of solution. "There is no such thing in the department," declared Chief of Detectives Hoagland recently, when questioned by a reporter.

"We are always after some solution and always working on some clew or another that may bring the murderer to justice. We never quit and call these cases unsolved as long as there is a thread to work on.

"In many of these crimes in which no person has been brought to trial the police have satisfied themselves as to the identity of the murderer, but are unable to get witnesses. That is the great obstacle in ferreting out crime, and it arises in many cases through fear of vengeance. Witnesses who identify prisoners when they are first arrested often waver later and say they might be mistaken, and this makes it impossible to get a conviction on their testimony, although the police may feel certain that their first statements were true."

LIONEL JOINS IN LIST OF SHATTERED BARRYMORE ROMANCES

youth, beauty and rare charm. Colt, while he was the son of a millionaire, had not gained any special distinction in business himself and had not appeared to be an eligible suitor. Prior to the announcement of the engagement of the couple there had been many reports that Miss Barrymore was to wed this one or that one of considerable repute in society, in finance, foreign nobility or in the theatrical world. One of those with whom her name was linked was Laurence Irving, son of Sir Henry Irving. Another was Gerald du Maurier, son of the creator of "Trilby." She once was reported engaged to Richard Harding Davis and once her engagement to Capt. Harry Graham of the Scots' Guards was announced, but this betrothal was short lived.

The wedding took place in Hyde Park, a suburb of Boston, in March, 1909, and the ceremony was performed by a Catholic priest. Her brother, John, represented the family at the ceremony, and the only other persons present were Mr. and Mrs. John Fairchild of Dedham, Mass., friends of Colt. Miss Barrymore was playing at that time in "Lady Frederick," and the honeymoon was passed "on the road," the young couple traveling in a luxurious private car from city to city, and the bride keeping up with her theatrical engagements.

There are three children of the marriage, Samuel, called after the millionaire grandfather, was born in December, 1909. Ethel Barrymore Colt, named after the mother, was born in 1911, and the the youngest, John Drew Colt, christened after his mother's uncle, a famous actor, was born in 1913.

The mother retained custody of the children at the time of the separation.

The Barrymores, Lionel, Ethel and John, as is known, were the children of the late Maurice and Georgiana Drew Barrymore, both noted players.

DR. W. P. HENRICH, THE RECTAL SPECIALIST, SAYS

Get Your Piles Cured!

BETTER NOW THAN WAIT UNTIL IT IS TOO LATE!

Unfortunately I found during my many years of treating Piles and other Rectal Diseases, that the majority of such afflicted put off coming for a cure, until they became so bad they can scarcely get around at all. They do not realize that Rectal Diseases do not get well by themselves.

Indeed Rectal Diseases are constantly growing worse; if not attended to properly and if not removed, they slowly, gradually may develop malignant conditions, such as Cancerous and Tubercular Diseases, which are incurable and indisputable advance agents of premature death.

Why take such dangerous risks when mild and safe treatment is easily obtainable from Dr. Henrich?

Is it on account of your reluctance to take a trip to St. Louis?

Is it because you shrink from the expense that a cure involves?

Is it because you fear the Treatment might be too severe?

When your future happiness, nay, perhaps your very life may be at stake, such objections must fall to the ground.

Take my advice, pull yourself together, come NOW to me, before it is TOO LATE.

Fear not the cost, for your financial loss will mount higher on account of neglecting your health.

Fear not the Treatment, for my Treatment is mild and incomparable with the tortures you suffer with each recurring attack of your affliction.

There is no reason why you should travel any longer under the shadow of misery, torture and even death; COME NOW or at as early a date as you possibly can arrange. COME NOW BEFORE IT IS TOO LATE. Examination is Free.

Every week I am discharging a number of people as Cured, many of whom only a few weeks before had tired of life on account of the Tortures of Rectal Trouble and now they bless the day they came to me. Tell your friends about me.

STATE TREATY MAY BRING DEVELOPMENT OF LARGER AREA THAN THAT OF FRANCE

Controversy Over Colorado River Rights Expected to Result in Reclamation of 4,000,000 Acres.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
No. 20 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Probably any treaty you might name is better known to Americans than the Treaty of Santa Fe, N. M., signed by properly accredited plenipotentiaries on Nov. 24, 1922, and now awaiting ratification. The Treaty of Santa Fe has nothing to do with reparations, armaments or the rights of racial minorities. It contains no "Article X." It will, in the language of Secretary of Commerce Hoover, one of its framers, destroy much oratory instead of creating oratory. It does violence, in short, to most of the common conceptions of a treaty. Yet the Treaty of Santa Fe contains potentialities so great that to set them down is to run the risk of seeming to exaggerate.

The Treaty of Santa Fe, or, as it is officially known, the Colorado River Compact, is not among nations, but among sovereign states of the Union. Before its execution, the Constitutional treaty making powers of the separate states had never been invoked to settle a difference between more than two States. This compact, entered into by the representatives of seven states and the Federal Government, sets a new precedent in interstate relations. It shows what can be done by negotiation instead of litigation.

A dispute between Wyoming and Colorado over river rights was ended only last year by the United States Supreme Court, after 11 years of argument. The Colorado River Compact, involving the interests of seven states, was drawn up in 11 months.

Must Be Ratified by States.

To become operative, the compact must be ratified by the legislatures of the seven States—Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming—and by the Federal Congress. As the legislatures are now in session, it is hoped that approval will be given in the next three months. Delay in the ratification by any one of the seven states or by Congress will leave the way open for litigationn; and litigation, as experience has shown, will hold up indefinitely the development of a great national asset.

The Colorado River Compact deals with the unromantic subject of water rights. "It makes," says Hoover, "for growing spuds and not for glowing speech." Its purpose, in the simplest terms, is to provide for the equitable division of the waters of the Colorado, so that great developmental projects will no longer be blockaded by legal squabbling.

An unromantic subject? That depends on the point of view. If there is romance in the harnessing of waste waters to make them produce over 6,000,000 horsepower, romance in developing 242,000 square miles, a territory larger than France, romance in reclaiming, through irrigation, 4,000,000 acres of desert land to the uses of man—if romance consists in such things as these as well as in clashes at arms, then there is romance in fullest measure, fit for glowing speech, in the Colorado River Compact.

What It Means to the West.

Hoover, none better, knows there is romance in it. In a statement about the compact he said there was "nothing especially romantic about it," "nothing sensational," nothing that would inspire men to "great oratory." That was an ironical shaft at those who see romance only in conflict. He spoke his real mind when he said: "Behind all the precise and commonplace language of this compact lies the greatness and romance of the West, the building of a million more homes out under the blue sky in security and good will."

Ratification of the compact will bring, its framers believe, not only the vast development that has been sketched, but construction of urgently needed dams for the control of floods annually threatening the Imperial and the Palo Verde Valleys in California and the Yuma project in Arizona. Here are Communities assessed at over $100,000,000, where from 75,000 to 100,000 Americans make their living.

Homes for 2,000,000 citizens, it is estimated, will be added to the nation's assets; these will mean new communities furnishing increased markets for the whole country, and new markets will mean more wealth to meet the burden of taxation.

The Territory Affected.

The Colorado River basin embraces 242,000 square miles of American territory and 2000 of Mexican. The American section takes in portions of the seven states which have entered the compact. For years the development of the river has been held back by disagreements among the states as to how the water should be apportioned. With endless litigation in sight, litigation which would have tied up the untold latent wealth of the basin for a generation or longer, the good sense of the states involved led them to seek an adjustment. They concluded that the problem could not be solved by the application of legalistic principles, but must be grappled with on physical and engineering grounds.

The legislatures of the seven states co-operated in 1921 in the formation of the Colorado River Commission, with a delegate from each State. As the Constitution of the United States forbids the states to enter into agreements without the consent of the Federal Government, it was necessary to get the consent of Congress to the proposed negotiations. This was given in August of 1921. The enabling legislation provided for the appointment of a representative to safeguard the interests of the Federal Government, and directed that the negotiations should be ended by Jan. 1, 1923.

Hoover Represented Government.

The President in December, 1921, named Secretary Hoover as the Federal representative, and the first meetings of the commission were held in Washington in the following month. Hoover was elected permanent chairman. It was decided that hearings should be held in the states affected, so that the viewpoint of each could be learned at first hand. Accordingly, the commission met at Phoenix, Ariz.; Los Angeles, Cal.; Salt Lake City, Utah; Grand Junction and Denver, Colo., and Cheyenne, Wyo. After a study of the records, a final session was held in November at Santa Fe, where the treaty was signed by Secretary Hoover and the representatives of the seven states.

The compact divides the river system into an upper and lower basin, separated by a thousand miles of canyon. It allocates in perpetuity 16,000,000-acre feet of water, that is, sufficient water to cover 16,000,000 acres to a depth of one foot. This is 80 per cent of the total natural flow of the river, amounting to 20,000,000-acre feet, and is said by the commission to be more than sufficient to water all lands now being irrigated and all which economically can be developed for the next 40 years.

New Commission After 40 Years.

The compact provides for the appointment of a new commission at the end of 40 years, leaving to that commission 4,000,000-acre feet, or 20 per cent of the natural flow, for a second apportionment among the states. Agriculture is given the preference over power. Since the river is practically unnavigable, navigation is made secondary to other uses. All question of Mexican rights to water are left to the State Department, the only agency which has the power to deal with a foreign Government.

The commission recognized, according to Hoover, that the two basins differed radically in their economic life, and that the logical thing to do was to divide the water between them so that they could "make homes instead of defend injunctions."

The settlement has been hailed by Arthur P. Davis, director of the Reclamation Service of the Interior Department, as a "signal victory for those qualities and impulses that distinguish civilized man from the savage." Both basins, in his opinion, are fully provided for, and their future development, unhampered by disputes, assured.

"All good citizens," said Davis, "should rejoice in this substitution of reason and progress for conflict and stagnation."

Six Sons Have Appendicitis

Wisconsin Family Has Six Operations

Robert Powers, a farmer living in Wisconsin, has had six operations for appendicitis in his family within the past two years, as stated by a news item in a local newspaper.

A Treacherous Disease

Appendicitis attacks at any moment even persons seemingly in good health. Usually, however, it is preceded by so-called stomach trouble, constipation or similar disturbances. Often when there is a warning feeling of uneasiness in the abdomen, appendicitis can be guarded against in exactly the same manner in which one guards against the spread of throat infection, because that is just what appendicitis is—an infection in the intestines spreading to the appendix. When one has sore throat, one can often prevent further trouble and the development of influenza or grippe, by using an antiseptic wash or gargle to fight the germs and a laxative to carry off the poisons from the body. Just exactly the same procedure is necessary to fight the intestinal germs and guard against appendicitis. But instead of an antiseptic wash for the throat, an INTESTINAL antiseptic is necessary.

Intestinal Antiseptic.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal thus guarding against append[illegible] and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

Reports From Physicians.

"I congratulate you on the good effect I had from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

"I have found nothing in my 50 years' practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. Prettyman.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Sold in St. Louis by WOLFF-WILSON DRUG CO., 7TH AND WASHINGTON; ENDERLE DRUG CO., and other leading druggists.

TRIUMPH FOR MOSCOW THEATER GROUP IN PARIS IS PREDICTED

Company May Reach America in October, Following Their European Tour.

(Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News.
(Copyright, 1923.)

MOSCOW, Jan. 18.—Russian artists predict a triumph for M. Tairov and his Moscow Theater group, who begin a foreign tour in Paris in March. They will be at the Deutches Theater in Berlin in April, in Scandinavia in May, in London in June and probably in the United States in October. Tairov and the members of his company before their departure received the highest tribute possible in the theatrical circles, namely, an official invitation from the city to play at the great opera house.

Tairov's art is supreme in plays like "Salome" and "Romeo and Juliet." He concentrates everything upon the actor, whose presentation is carried to the ultimate point of emphasis—a policy which is certain to create controversy. His stage decorations are unique. He is regarded here as the foremost exponent of new-world methods in the ranks of the Russian actors. M. Tairov makes no secret of his belief that the Russian drama under the forced draught of revolutionary life has reached a development far ahead of that in the West and he hopes to demonstrate this.

Exhibit of Little Theater Design.

An exhibit of Little Theater design and stage craft, created by Dawson Dawson-Watson for the Junior Players, is on display for the remainder of this month in the new downtown galleries of the St. Louis Art League at 511 Locust street. Dawson-Watson will speak on the technique of design for the theater and Miss Alice Martin on the Junior Players and the Little Theater movement at a meeting Tuesday night for league members. The galleries are open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily.

Bear and Forbear

Paramount in the daily life of that earthly Utopia, HOME, is DUTY, the inspiration of the courageous.

As a stone is cast into a stream in a spirit of playfulness it sinks from view.

Just so can each individual at HOME sink his selfish feelings that they will vanish (as does the stone) in a spirit of consideration.

Let there be mutual sacrifices; infallible tests of DUTY and FORBEARANCE.

Let our motto be: A HOME FOR ALL AND ALL FOR A HOME.

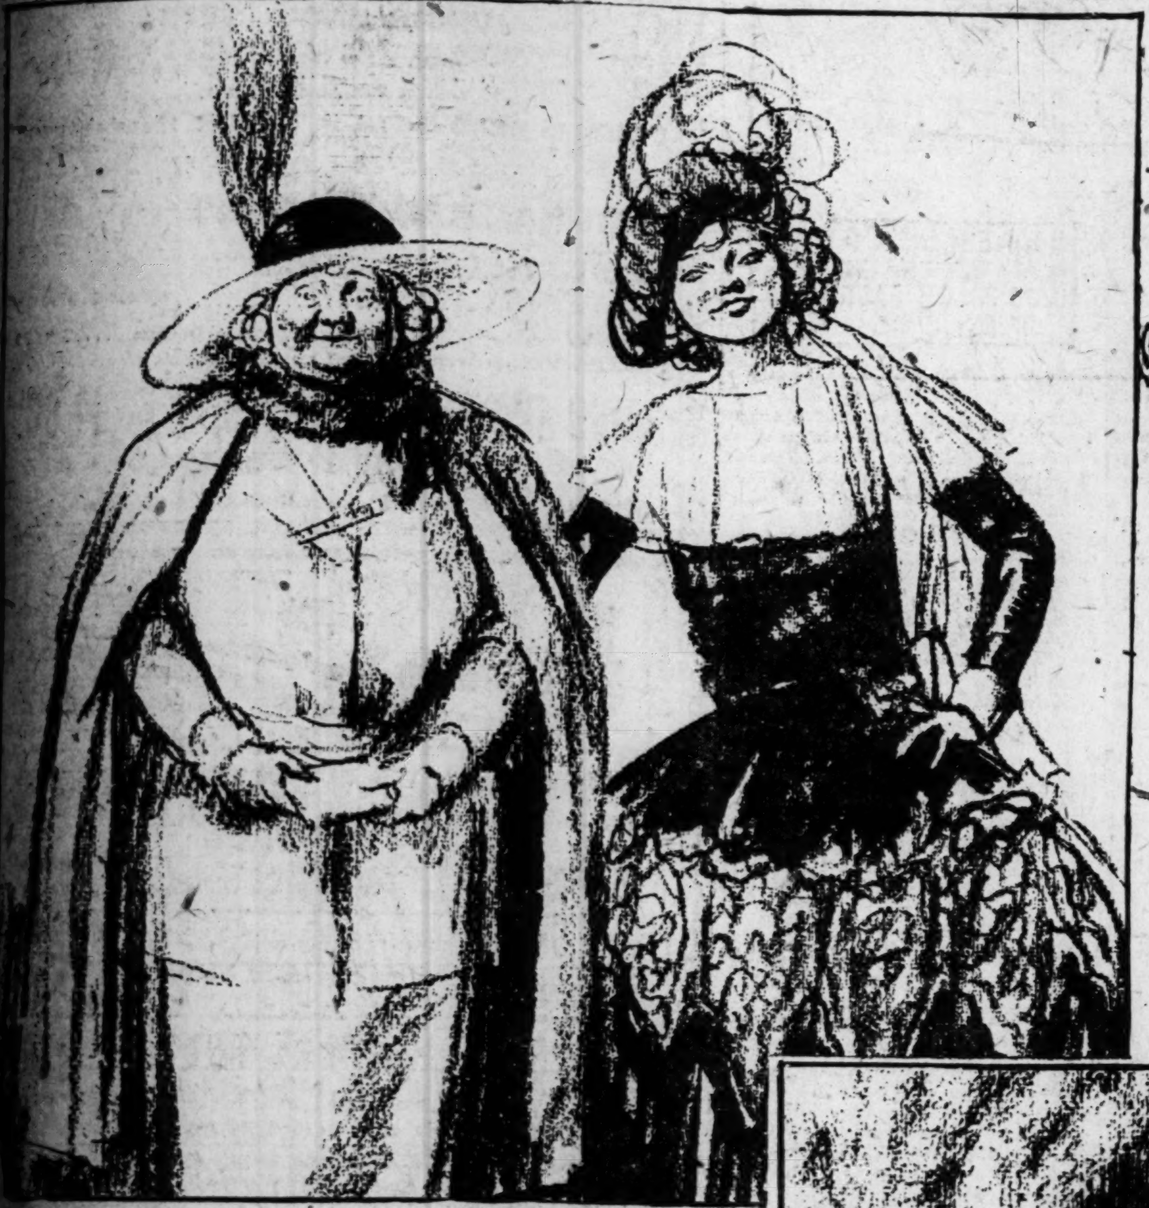
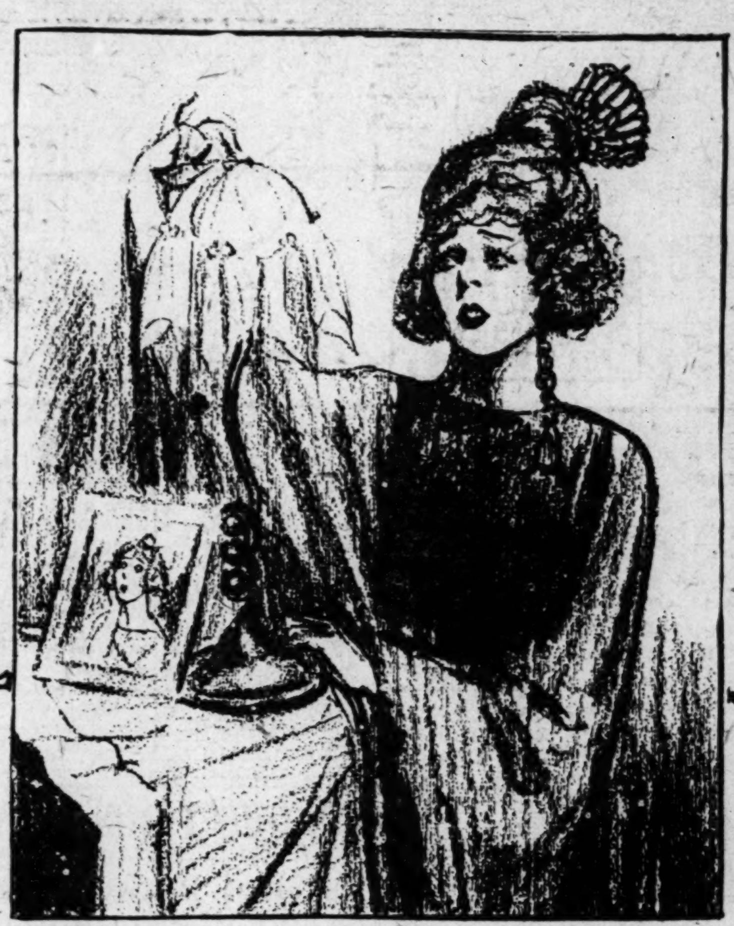
PUBLICITY STUFF

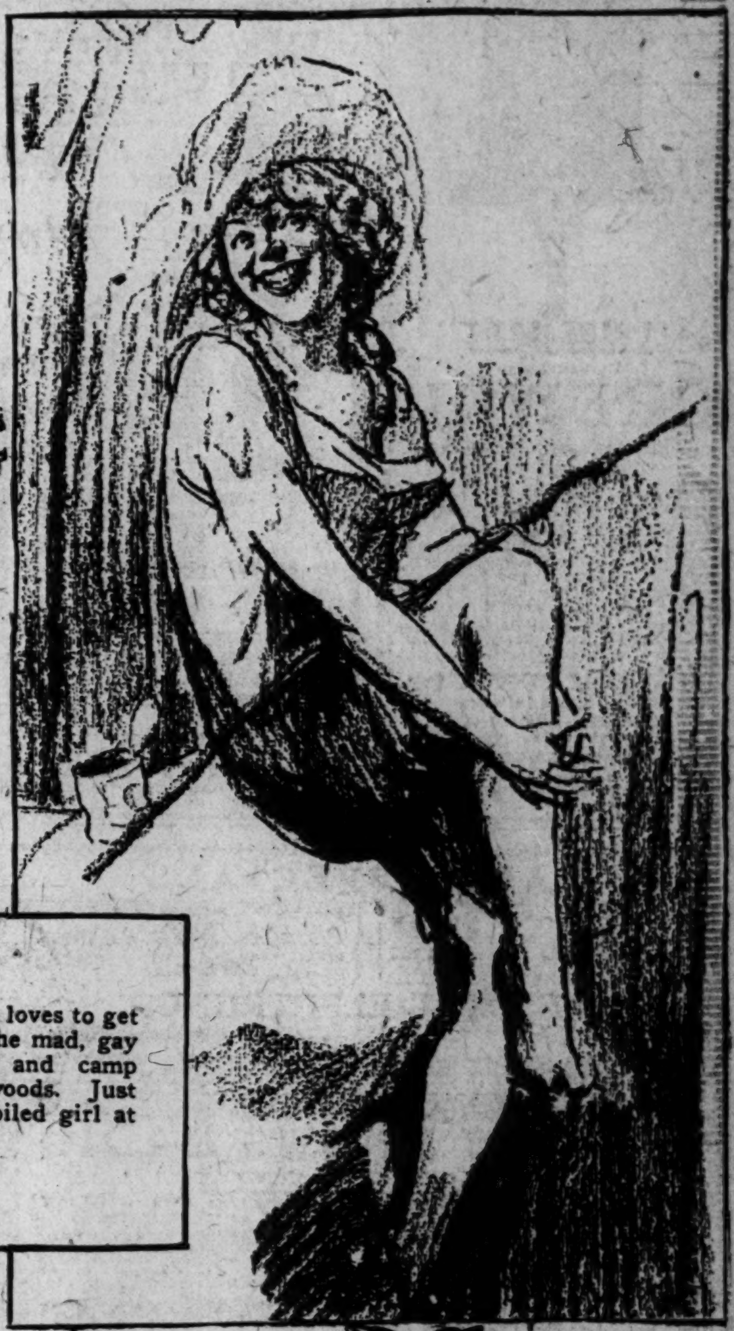
By W. E. Hill



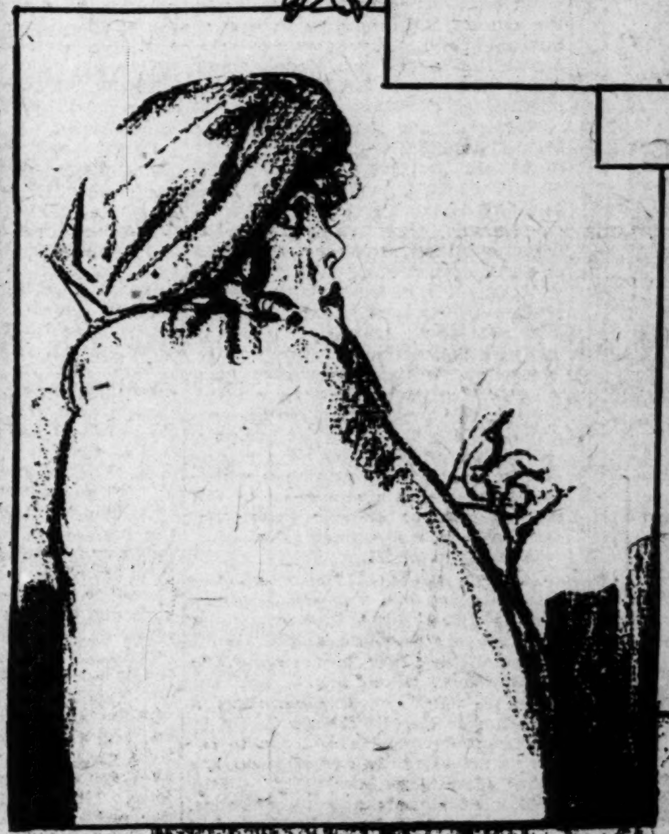
The star and her dear mamma being photographed together. Underneath the star will have a lot to say about how "whatever of genius and talent I have brought to the screen I owe to mamma, who has in all things been my constant inspiration and chum."



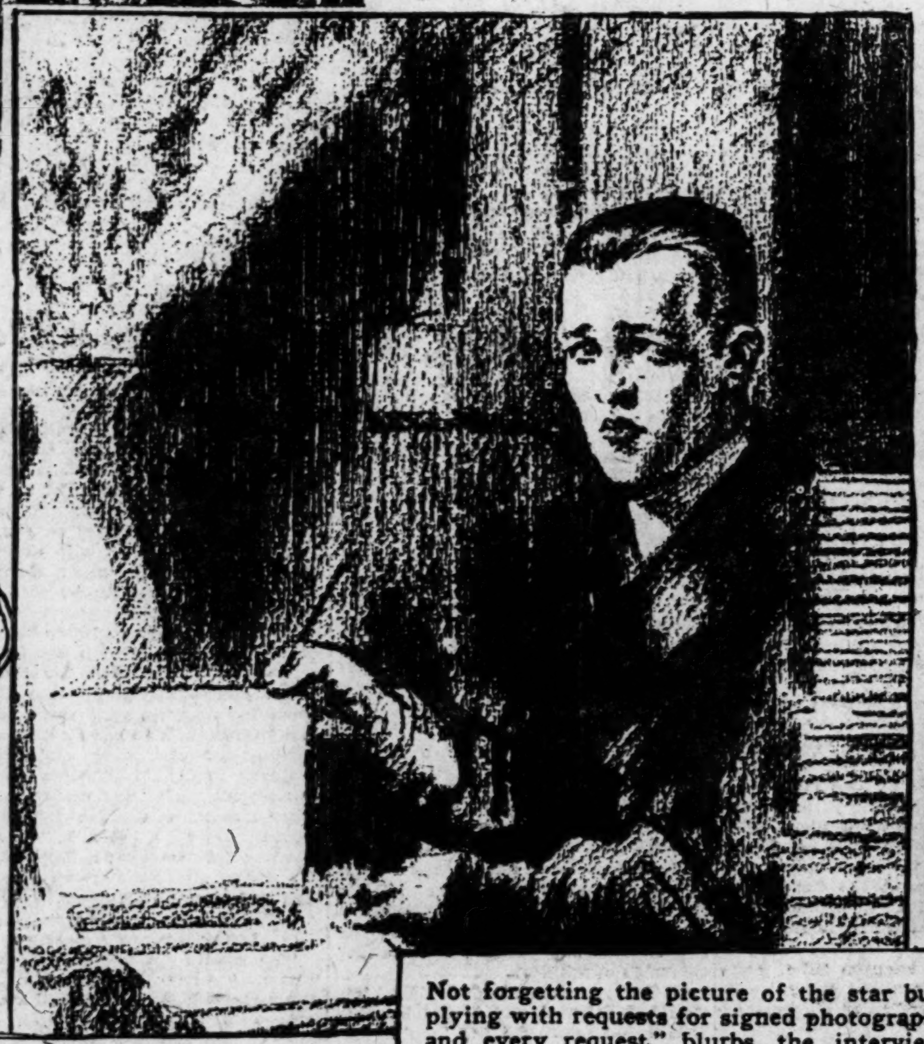
If this were a motion picture sheet the caption beneath the beautiful lady arranging the lamp shade would be "Winifred Wintringhouse, the Motion Picture Star, Loves Her Seventeenth Century Electrolier."



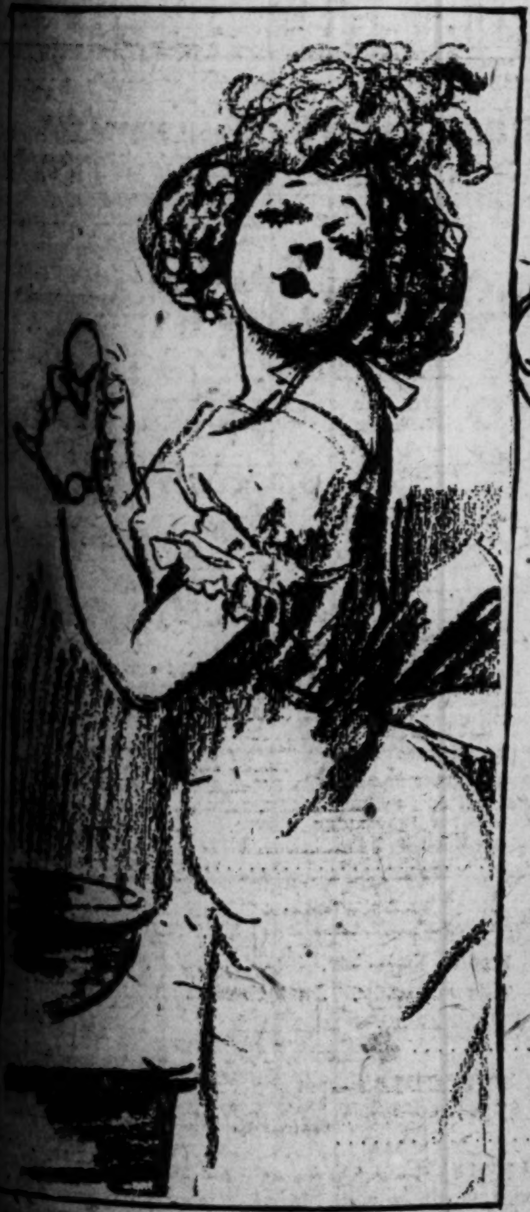
The star who loves to get away from the mad, gay social whirl and camp out in the woods. Just a little unspoiled girl at heart.



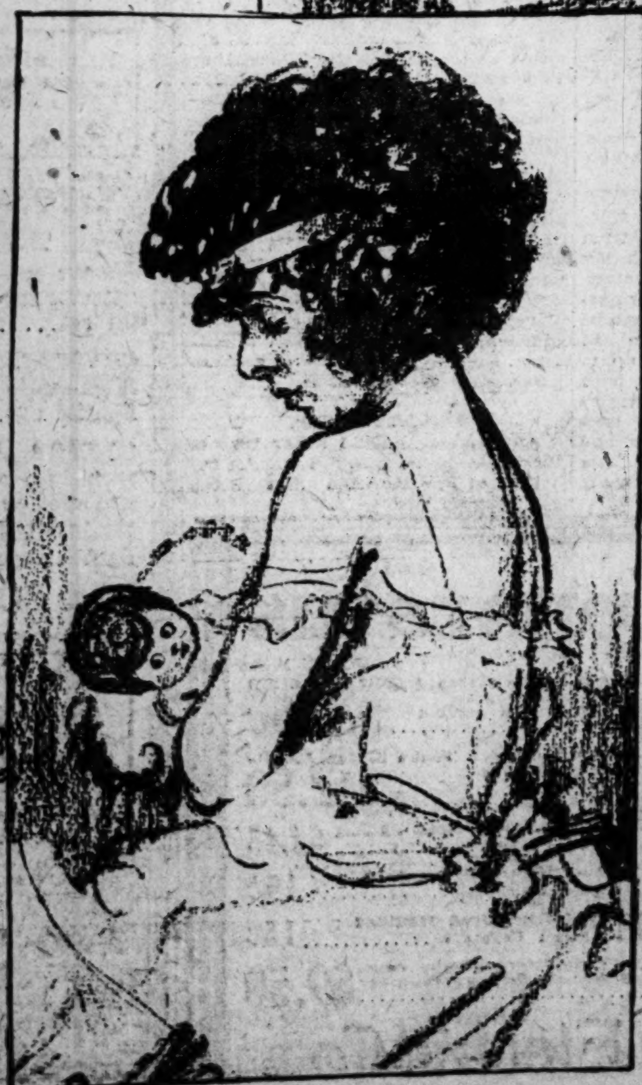
The screen favorite who is very public-spirited. The comment below should read something like this: "Away from the studio, charming little Hallene Rue is never idle. Her mornings are invariably spent going over scenarios, while her afternoons are made up of good wholesome American play, for Hallene believes in the old maxim—all work and no play. She is tender-hearted to a fault. Recently she visited the town jail and, with the help of Oceanhorror, her Japanese butler, distributed dozens of little sachets to the inmates—all the work of her leisure moments. Hallene believes that life should be made simpler, not for its own sake, but because of——" etc., etc.



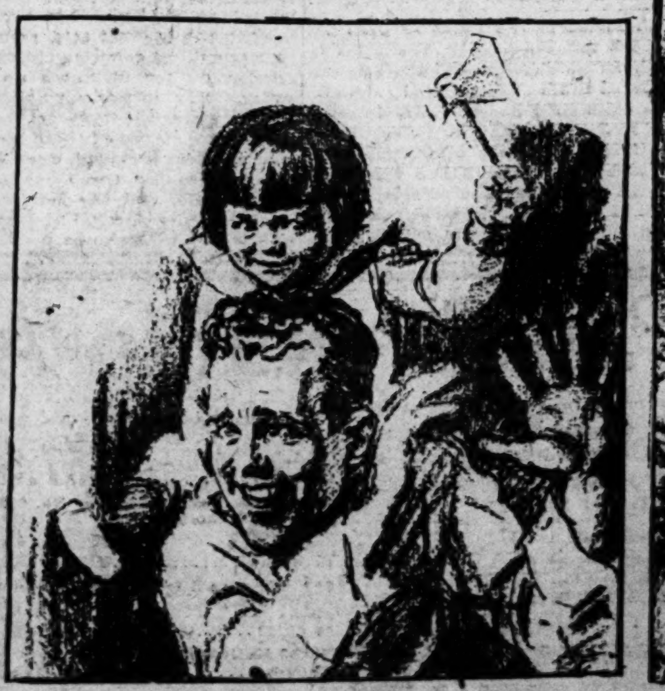
Not forgetting the picture of the star busily complying with requests for signed photographs. "Each and every request," blurbs the interviewer, "receives a personal response from Arnold Caresse himself. 'You see,' he said, as we shook hands at the end of the interview, 'I believe in giving my public the very best that is in me. In little things as well as big.' And he smiled that fascinating never-grown-up-mischievous-boy's smile as he waved good-by. Honest effort—that is the keynote of Arnold Caresse's career."



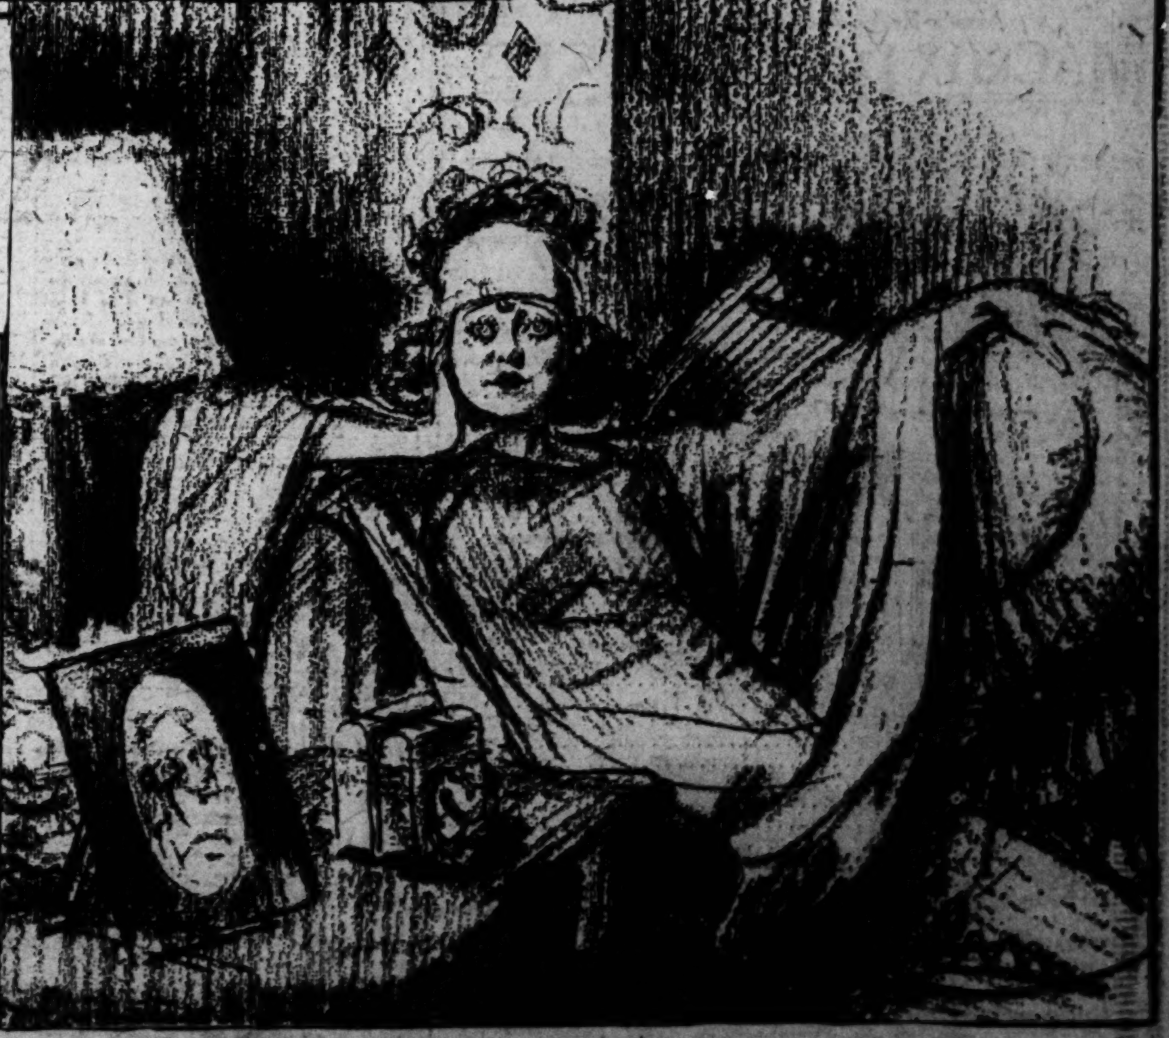
"That screen stars are human just like anybody else is shown by the fact that charming Alvia Pocohontis of the Squeegee comedies, is often to be found in the gold and white kitchen of her Hollywood home, preparing a favorite dish. Alvia's broiled eggs are famous far and wide," etc.. etc.



"Hobbies?" said dainty little Roberta Gruesome, 19-year-old star of the Tantamount films. "Yes, indeed, I have hobbies, as has every healthy young American girl of today! My collection of kewpie dolls is my great hobby at present. I have 8000 of them in all." "And here," interrupted Mamma Gruesome, proud mother of the gifted Roberta, "you will find her after a hard day's work at the lot, arranging and rearranging my famous collection."



The happy household picture, showing the screen idol and his youngest, making of life one continuous romp for the benefit of the magazine public.



The intimate pose of the beautiful actress among her books, in the seclusion of her beautifully appointed home. Try and find the books.

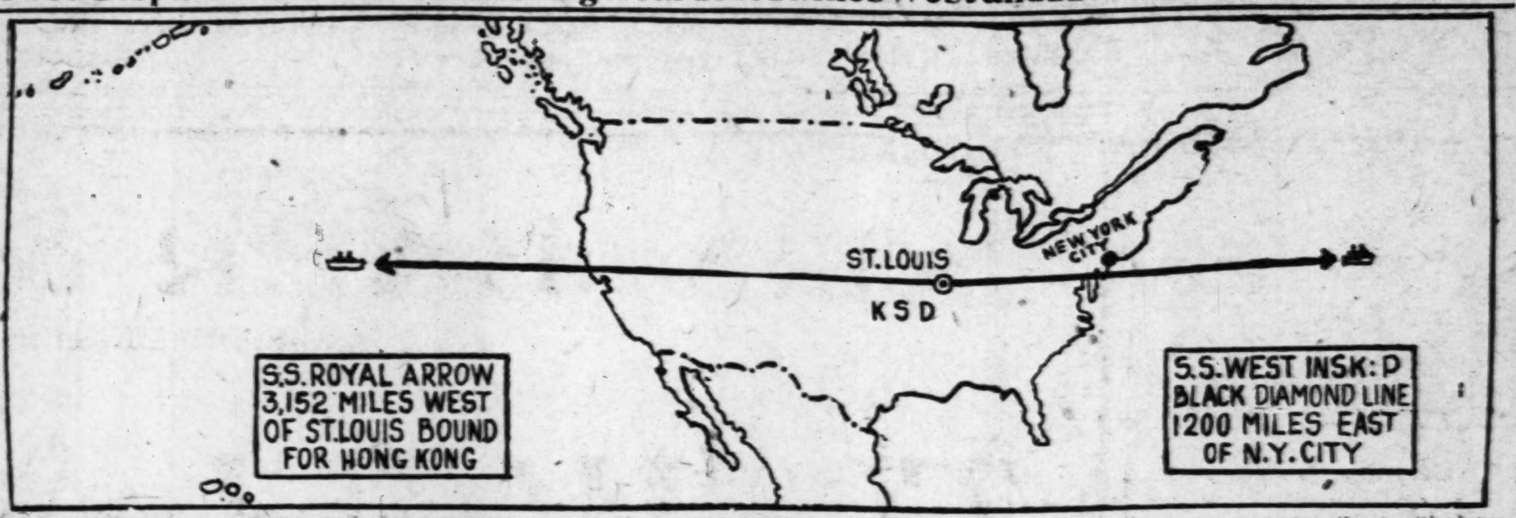
Post-Dispatch Radio Broadcasting Heard 3152 Miles West and 2200 Miles East of St. Louis



ST. LOUIS
K S D
NEW YORK CITY
S.S. ROYAL ARROW 3,152 MILES WEST OF ST. LOUIS BOUND FOR HONG KONG
S.S. WEST INSKIP BLACK DIAMOND LINE 1200 MILES EAST OF N.Y. CITY

Two new distance records for the Post-Dispatch radio station K S D have been established. Letters received show that concerts sent out from this station have been heard on ships, one of which was 3152 miles west of St. Louis on the Pacific Ocean and the other 2200 miles east of St. Louis on the Atlantic Ocean when the broadcasting was picked up.

Information as to the hearing of the concert on the Pacific comes from C. A. Richmond, commander of the Steamship Royal Arrow. He heard Station K S D on his outward voyage and on his arrival at Hongkong, China, he mailed to the Post-Dispatch a letter of appreciation. It is interesting to note the mariner's accuracy with which he records the distance. His letter is as follows:

"You will no doubt be pleased to know that Mr. Louis Dehmlow, radio operator, and myself heard your long-distance radio dance program on the evening of Nov. 20, 1922, which was broadcast from the Statler by your radiophone in St. Louis.

"The music and announcer's voice came in very good, indeed. When you signed off at 12:56 a. m., Nov. 21, your time, this vessel was in latitude 30 degrees, 10 minutes north and longitude 145 degrees, 24 minutes west, en route from Los Angeles to Hongkong.

"Using the geographical position of the observatory in St. Louis as given in the World Almanac for 1922 as latitude 38 degrees, 38 minutes north and longitude 90 degrees, 12¼ minutes west, this vessel was 2738¼ nautical miles, or 3152.9 statute miles from St. Louis, a great circle distance, which is the shortest route for radio waves.

"The receiving apparatus consisted of a honeycomb coil set with detector and two steps of audio frequency amplification. I consider this a most remarkable distance to hear the radio telephone and wish to congratulate you on your achievement."

The report on the hearing of the K S D broadcasting when 1200 miles east of New York, on the Atlantic, came from the chief engineer of the Steamship West Inskip of the Black Diamond line. This was in November, exact date not stated, when the ship was outward bound from New York to Rotterdam. The engineer reported that the concert was greatly enjoyed on the ship.

NEW TYPE TELEPHONE USES RADIO PRINCIPLE

High Tension Wires Used to Carry Voice Interference With Broadcasting Impossible.

The successful transmission of voice over high-power electric lines carrying 70,000 volts for a distance of 40 miles from the Pennsylvania Water and Power Co.'s plant at Holtwood on the Susquehanna River to the city of Baltimore by means of carrier current, a new system of communication which is a development using radio principles, has been announced by the General Electric Co.

The apparatus is similar to a radio outfit, having vacuum tubes, batteries, etc., but instead of radiating waves through space in all directions, as a broadcasting station, it keeps its voice waves concentrated about electric power lines, thus insuring privacy and direction of signals. For power companies it has many advantages over the land telephone for so long as a single transmission line is in operation, communication can be carried on. Ordinary telephone lines, which are wires many times smaller than high-power electric lines, are generally the first to suffer during a storm and through lack of a means of communication, accidents which should result in a shutdown in the transmission of electric power for seconds only, is stretched to minutes, sometimes to hours.

In tests made at Baltimore, the quality of speech was much better than obtained by a land telephone over the same route and the conversation was free from hums and other noises, which are prominent when a telephone line parallels a high-power electric system.

Carrier current, in addition to assuring privacy in communication, has other advantages over radio. Static, fading of signals and interference, the greatest bugaboos of the wireless fan, are entirely eliminated. It doesn't require a radio opertaor or a person with any special knowledge of wireless to operate it and a Government broadcasting license is not required.

A small switch connected with an ordinary telephone instrument does all the work. Moving this upward, a bell is rung at the other end. The switch then automatically returns to neutral or listening position and the conversation begins.

The apparatus is in operation only when a conversation is in progress. When the receiver is on the telephone hook, the set is dead. Raise this and a motor generator starts; this supplies 1000 volts direct current, which is put through two 50-watt vacuum tubes and converted into high frequency alternating current of 15,000 cycles. This voltage carries the voice signals from the telephone to a wire 1000 feet long which parallels the high-tension electric lines as they leave the power plant. Instead of radiating these sound waves into space, this wire acts the part of one plate in a condenser and the energy is all inducted into the electric power lines and the magnetic field which surrounds the wires.

Traveling at the speed of light, or 186,000 miles a second, the voice is received on the other end much the same as radio broadcasted signals. The equipment consists of a detector and two audio amplifier tubes. Tuning is not necessary after the apparatus is once adjusted, as the wave length and other characteristics are always the same. Since carrier current travels on a wave length of 20,000 meters is far removed from any possibility of interference from radio broadcast stations which use wave lengths from 360 to 400 meters.

With the 50-watt sets, carrier current telephone communication can be carried on for distances up to 85 miles. For longer distances up to 260 miles a 250-watt set has been perfected. Seven of these larger sets will soon be installed, four in New York State for the Utica Gas and Electric Co. and the Northern New York Utilities, located at Watertown, and three in Oklahoma.

RADIO QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

All Queries Must Be Accompanied by the Name and Address of the Sender.

Q. How far should a ground pipe be driven into the ground. A. C. H.

A. At least five feet, and preferably six or seven feet.

Q. At what speed does a person have to send and receive before he can obtain a Government license to operate a ship or land station? M. A. G.

A. Twenty words per minute, in addition to a thorough understanding of all commercial types of transmitting and receiving apparatus, and their wiring diagrams, as well as familiarity with the international rules and regulations governing radio communication.

Q. 1. Could I use an Edison phonograph for a loud speaker, using a two-stage amplifier? Would any extra attachments be necessary? 2. Could I operate two amplifier tubes and a detector with one 6-volt battery. R. G.

A. 1. Yes, with the aid of an adapter for attaching the telephone receivers to the tone arm of the instrument. 2. If you have a storage battery, yes. It would be very expensive, however, to try to operate three tubes with dry batteries, as their life is comparatively short in this service.

Q. What is the difference between an "A" and a "B" battery? D. S.

A. The "A" battery is used to heat the filament of a vacuum tube (detector or amplifier). "Peanut" tubes function with but 1½ volts and therefore may be successfully used with one dry-cell battery. All other types of tubes require a 6-volt battery; a storage battery is universally employed because of the short life of dry cells when used in this service. "B" batteries provide the plate voltage and are made up of small flashlight cells. The voltage varies from 22½ for detectors to 120 for amplifiers. The life of a "B" battery, under ordinary conditions, is from six to eight months.

Q. Can a new vacuum tube containing air from a slight puncture in the tip be repaired? If so, where? S. A.

A. We know of no place where vacuum tubes are repaired.

Q. I am using 45 volts on the plate of my audio-frequency amplifier. Will it increase the signal strength to add a 22½-volt battery, making a total of 67½ volts? J. B.

A. Yes, probably, but not certainly.

Q. Is your station more powerful than W M A Y? I don't get them as loud. A. V. G.

A. Yes.

Q. Please tell me where I can get a radio directory. C. P.

A. The Rand-McNally Co., Chicago, Ill., publish a complete radio atlas.

Q. Where is Station W C A J? G. McL.

A. W C A J, Nebraska Wesleyan University, University Place, Neb.

Q. Where is station W L A Z? T. G.

A. W L A Z—Hutton & Jones Elec. Co., Warren, O.

Q. Is a three-circuit tuner more efficient than one of the single-circuit type, and is it hard to learn to operate? P. E.

A. Used, of course, in connection with a vacuum tube detector, a three-circuit tuner should give excellent results. Anyone can learn to tune a set of this kind, after a little practice.

Q. I have a one-stage amplifier. Can I use a loud-speaker with it? A. R.

A. Yes, if the signals are loud enough to hear with the phones lying on the table, but you would probably get better results by adding another stage of amplification before trying a loud-speaker.

Q. Is it all right to use No. 14 insulated wire to connect up a tube set? WM. S.

A. Yes.

Q. Please mention parts which would be necessary to add one stage of audio-frequency amplication to my crystal set. J. S.

A. Using a "peanut" vacuum tube, the following parts will be necessary: One dry cell (1½ volts), one 45-volt "B" battery, one amplifying transformer, one rheostat and a socket for the vacuum tube. We have received many letters from enthusiasts who are successfully using the "peanut" tubes as amplifiers.

Q. I have a tree about 60 feet high. Could I connect my aerial wire to this tree, to save me the trouble and difficulty of erecting a pole? I have a steel wire to tie from tree to the insulator, so that the aerial wire will not touch any of the tree limbs? A. G.

A. Yes, a tree will, in most cases, serve quite as satisfactorily as a pole or tower.

RADIO DEVELOPMENTS IN CZECHO-SLOVAKIA

At Present Largest Station Is Located at Prague—More Powerful One to Be Opened Next Year.

Three radio-telegraph stations are now in operation in Czecho-Slovakia, and six are under construction, according to Consul Winans at Prague. The station of Brno, Moravia, opened for business last month, establishing communication with the Swiss radio station at Berne; a regular schedule is now maintained three times daily.

Czecho-Slovakia's principal radio-telegraph station is at Prague, the capital, where a 10 k. w. set has been in operation since June, 1920. Another smaller station is maintained at Vinghrady, which serves the airplanes flying between Prague, Warsaw and Vienna. Exchange rates and press reports are also handled by this service for the state.

At Kbely, near Prague, a one k. w. station is nearing completion for special service to the aviation field at Kbely and public service. Carlsbad, or Karlovy, another one k. w. set is being installed principally to handle traffic during the "cure" season.

A five k. w. station is in course of construction at Podebrady, Bohemia, which will eventually become the center of Czecho-Slovakian service. At this place there will also be erected a second station with two 50 k. w. generators to be used for international communication. It will be ready for opening next year. Moravaska Ostrava is to have a station for serving the air route and general business in this industrial center. Kosice, Slovakia, has underway another five k. w. station for general service, and a five k. w. set is planned for Bratislava, Slovakia, for the International Danube Commission and Danube shipping.

Limitations of Amateurs.

The maximum wave length for amateurs under the present law is 200 meters, although special amateur licenses are sometimes issued permitting the use of a wave length of 375 meters. The power input allowed an amateur is one kilowatt, or 1000 watts. Amateurs within five miles of a Government or naval station are limited to 500 watts, or one-half kilowatt.

Elimination of Noises.

Howls and noises coming through a receiving set may be reduced with tinfoil. Paint the interior with shellac (not glue—glue is not an insulator) and stick the tinfoil to the wet shellac. After the tinfoil is in place, it should be grounded. In addition, if necessary, place aluminum sheets between the vacuum tubes and ground these.

Efficient Tuning.

An amateur should never try to tune a set by guessing at it. An experienced operator can give many good suggestions.

FACTORS AFFECTING RADIO TRANSMISSION

Topography of the Soil, as Well as Atmospheric Conditions Influence Range.

By R. R. COMMINGS,

Radio Engineer General Electric Co.

One of the questions almost invariably asked by people who see or speak of a radio transmitter is "how far will it send?" This question is entirely justifiable and the following brief review of the factors affecting the range of radio transmitters has been prepared in an effort to explain the hesitancy which is frequently shown by radio engineers in claiming any specific range for a radio transmitter.

It has become standard practice with companies who build radio transmitting equipment to very carefully specify the conditions under which any guaranteed range can be made, and even then it is seldom that a conservative company will guarantee transmission at all times.

In the first place a radio transmitter will transmit several times as far at night as in daylight; it will transmit farther on a dark night than on a moonlight night. This is due to the fact that the sunlight and moonlight cause an ionization of the atmosphere which results in much greater losses than occur when such ionization is not present. The greatest ranges are obtained when the atmosphere between the transmitting and receiving stations is most nearly a perfect insulator.

The range depends upon the nature of the territory lying between the transmitting and receiving station, the greatest ranges for a given power usually being obtained over water. Any metal, particularly iron or steel, lying between the stations will cause a loss of signal strength. Such metal may either be in the form of artificial structures such as buildings or building frameworks, or may be in the form of ore deposits. Some sections of the country are noted for their poor location for radio reception, and the cause of this can usually be traced to this reason.

In many places it is possible to receive effectively from all directions but one, and it is usually found that in this direction a metallic structure or a metal deposit is responsible for the lack of reception.

A radio station which can be depended upon for reliable communication through the winter months for a given range can only work effectively during the summer months over a fraction of this range, assuming that the power of the transmitter is not increased. This is not due to any diminution of signal strength, but to the percentage presence of so-called "static" disturbances during the summer months. Static disturbances, which result in cracking, hissing or grinding noises in the receiver head phones frequently sufficient to make this radio signal unintelligible, have been the subject of investigation and analysis for many years, during which time many attempts have been made to determine their origin and means for preventing their detrimental effect on radio reception. While some very special receiving equipments and antenna systems have been devised to increase the ratio of signal strength to static strength (the so-called "signal-static ratio"), the most positive way of overcoming static seems to be in transmitting sufficient power to make the radio signals intelligible even in the presence of static. This was the procedure followed, for example, at the Lafayette Station in Bordeaux, France, which was built by the United States Navy Department during the war, for reliable communication in the event the transatlantic cables were cut by the enemy. This station has a capacity of 1200 KW and was, when it was built, the largest radio transmitting station in the world, and its capacity was made large primarily to insure transatlantic communication during the summer months when static is most prevalent.

The range which is accomplished depends also, of course, upon the type of receiving equipment which is used, and upon the ability of the operator to use his equipment to best advantage. A receiver with one or more stages of amplification will receive stations which cannot be heard without such amplification, although there is a limit to the extent to which amplification can be used. It does not serve, for example, to overcome static disturbances, because such disturbances are amplified to the same extent as the radio signal thus leaving the signal static ratio the same, and therefore not making the message any more intelligible.

The wave length at which transmission is carried on is also an important factor in the range which can be realized with a given power. Energy radiated at short wavelengths is absorbed to a much greater extent than energy at longer wavelengths, and for this reason very long wavelengths, comparatively, are usually used for a long distance such as transoceanic communication.

The personal equation of the receiving operator is of importance. Signals which are quite readable to some operators are absolutely unintelligible to others.

The number of stations which work in close proximity to each other also decreases ranges which would otherwise be obtainable, for many signals which have sufficient strength to be easily interpreted are made unreadable by interference caused by other stations.

In general, therefore, in specifying the range of a radio transmitter, it is necessary to specify whether transmission will be carried on in day time or at night; in winter or summer seasons; the type of receivers and the amount of amplification which will be used; the nature of the country lying between the transmitting and receiving stations; whether or not uninterrupted communication is required or whether so-called "deferred service" is satisfactory; the wavelength upon which transmission will be carried on; the kind of transmission desired, that is, telephony, continuous wave telegraphy or interrupted continuous wave telegraphy; the vicinity in which the transmitter will be located with respect to other transmitters, and lastly, but by no means of least importance, whether or not the range specified, even after the foregoing conditions are known, shall be a conservative one or one which is the maximum which can be expected.

It is impossible, in a very brief discussion, to analyze more fully the various factors entering into range considerations which have been enumerated, but the mere mentioning of the existence of these factors should be sufficient to make all of us realize that a brief statement to the effect that a radio transmitter has a range of, say, 500 miles, is practically meaningless.

This does not mean that reliable communication cannot be carried on over given distances, for a careful consideration of all conditions will permit satisfactory equipment being installed. Such equipment will frequently transmit distances far greater than the rated range of the set. For example, a transmitter manufactured by the General Electric Co. which is rated, under definite conditions, at 175 miles, has recently communicated by telephone over a distance of 4050 miles. This performance was, of course, the result of an unusual combination of favorable conditions.

In view of the foregoing, anyone concerned in the range of radio stations should assure himself of the conditions under which the transmission has been or is to be carried on before arriving at any conclusions in regard thereto.

RADIOLA GRAND PRESENTED TO PRESS CLUB IN WASHINGTON

Correspondents Can Now Listen In to Broadcasting Stations Operated by Their Home Papers.

A new receiving set of the very latest type has been presented to the National Press Club in Washington. With this new set, which has a larger wave range and longer reception radius than the old set, many of the Washington correspondents whose papers broadcast, now tune in the "home station." Broadcasters in the Middle West and far South have been brought in since the new set has been in operation. Theodore Tiller, well-known representative of the Atlanta Journal, which broadcasts from "WSB" was much disappointed the other day when told that he was paged by radio the night before. His paper put on a special program for him, announcing it over the radio and calling for him to listen in. He was not in the club, however, and missed out.

The new installation is a big improvement on the old one-dial set, as it enables better tuning. It consists of a two-stage amplifier, transformer coupled, using a push and pull circuit on the second stage, which gives a smoother quality to the tone of the signals and eliminates a large amount of distortion. The loud speaker is also a new device and prevents "blasting." The horn and tubes are mounted on shock absorbers, and the tubes, which are of the new 1½-volt variety, are operated from four dry cells.

Efficiency From a Crystal.

To get the best results in the use of galena in a crystal detector, it is advisable to secure a large piece of the mineral and break it up into smaller pieces. Each of these pieces should be tested, and the one which operates most satisfactorily may be used as a standard and the sensitivity of other pieces compared with it.

Government Wave Meter.

The United States Bureau of Standards has sent out a circular describing an instrument for measuring wave lengths of from 100 to 570 meters, and reminding radio operators that they must keep within their allotted wave length bands.

Wireless Supervision.

A bill has been introduced in Washington which provides that the Department of Commerce shall have supervision over all radio communication, assigning wave lengths, approving apparatus, licensing operators and otherwise supervising wireless communication to bring order out of the present chaos of jazz bands, sermons, crop reports, sporting services, concerts and what-not running simultaneously on the same wave lengths.

LISTENERS-IN BEGINNING TO PREFER CLASSICAL PROGRAMS

Conclusion Reached After a Perusal of the Incoming Mail Received at Station W G M.

L. O. Moseley, program director of station W G M, the Atlanta Constitution, in a discussion of the programs most desired by the listening-in public, made the following comment:

"A noticeable thing in the influx of the letters is the demand for higher quality. Operatic programs or programs composed wholly of the classical features of music attract unusual interest. A few months ago such a program would have been 'tuned-out' in many homes where it now finds its heartiest welcome."

Radio is serving to entertain those who appreciatte classical music as well as acquaint those heretofore unfamiliar with it.

An Economical Insulator.

It is not necessary to purchase expensive insulators to make a good job of a receiving aerial. Ordinarily glazed porcelain cleats, such as are used in house wiring, are quite satisfactory. These may be divided and each piece used separately. The free or open end of the antenna wire should be passed through one hole and twisted upon itself, a strong wire passing through the other hole and being used to support the insulator and wire.

For the Notebook.

The speed of an electromagnetic wave is 186,000 miles or 300,000 meters per second.

Galena, the most sensitive of crystal detectors, is sulphide of lead, mined in several of the Western states.

When attaching an antenna to live trees be sure to insulate the wires at least 15 feet from the nearest branches.

It is now possible to send money by wireless to passengers on vessels en route to the United States or foreign countries.

Use of the radio has brought to the sightless the newspaper, the book, the theater, opera, concert and lecture platform, which in the ordinary routine of their lives would be denied them.

Antenna Types.

There are several types of antenna, chief among them the inverted "L," the "T" type, umbrella, vertical, fan, cage and loop.

The Wonders of Radio

Written by a New "Radio Bug"

"RADIO BUG" is what my friends call me—and I can't say that I blame 'em much. Since I installed a receiving set in my home I haven't been able to talk or think about much else.

Not that I know anything about the mechanical end of it. I confess I don't know a storage battery from an amplifier, and talk about static conditions is all Greek to me. But just the same I put in my set myself, and it works.

I've only had it a short time, and when I installed it, I did so more out of curiosity than confidence—to see if it really would do all the things some folks claim. I guess most people feel the same way about Radio until they've tried it.

Now I'm a real enthusiast. I'll never forget the thrill my first impressions aroused. I just turned a little dial and picked up station W W J, Detroit, broadcasting a jazz selection and heard with as much clearness and pep as if I were in the room with the orchestra.

Then I turned the "magic" dial a little more and picked up W J Z and heard a delightful soprano solo in Newark, then station W E A H, an interesting lecture on irrigation delivered in Wichita. Then back I switched the dial and caught station K D Y Y, Denver, and heard a man's voice relating bedtime stories for the kiddies.

Let 'em call me a "bug" if they want. I just can't get over the wonder of it all, and the best part of it is, I have such success, and am only a rank amateur.

My set is a Mu-rad, and unless I knew I could get another, I wouldn't sell it for ten times its cost. It surely works fine.

DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEYS, DRINK WATER

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer [illegible] source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a [illegible] by having a good kidney flushing any time. By all means have [illegible] examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Matters of Current Interest to St. Louis Lovers of Art

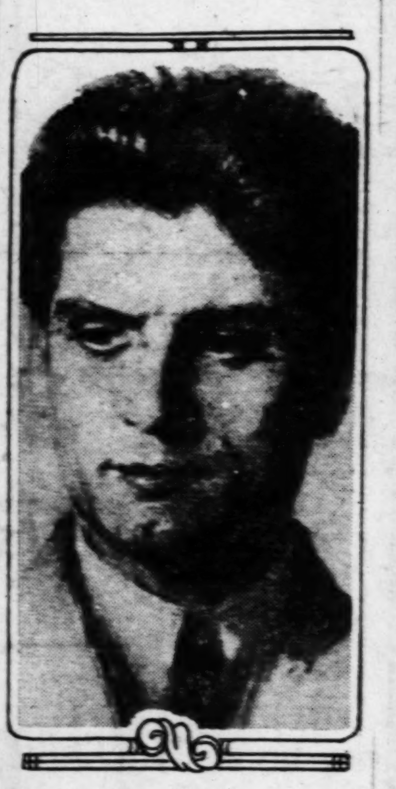
THE old Deutsche sprichwort which, when translated, tells us that "All good things go in threes," holds good in art events in St. Louis at the present time.

At the City Art Museum, the great exhibition of eighteenth century French art is now in progress, to continue for one month; the Newhouse Gallery is displaying the extraordinary collection of Innesses Blakelocks; and, Jan. 23, the double exhibition of portraits by Carl Bohnen and floral designs by Marie Blanke opens at the Vandervoort Galleries.

It would be impossible to consider justly such a stupendous undertaking as the eighteenth century French art exhibition in the little space we can devote to it this week. It will have to wait until next week.

ENTERING the Newhouse Gallery, one might find it hard to say whether the owners were picture dealers or bankers. The handling of treasures such as the 15 Innesses and Blakelocks, here gathered, is indeed parallel with the business of handling gold and silver, Government bonds or gilt-edged securities. Congratulations on the splendid and untiring work of B. M. Newhouse in obtaining and assembling the significant examples of Inness' and Blakelock's works are in order. Procuring characteristics and authentic examples of these masters' works has required not only deep study, sound knowledge, perspicacity and cleverness, but several years of earnest concentration, since the few examples that are on the market are jealously hoarded by the dealers, and those privately owned are just as difficult to obtain. The collection, with one or two exceptions, is complete in representing every period of each artist. Mr. Newhouse is in New York endeavoring to close final negotiations for an important example of Inness' late period. If he is successful, this painting, with three others he just has purchased after two years of effort, will be added to the present collection. With the exception of one on which settlement has not yet been decided, all paintings shown are owned by the Newhouse Gallery, and are fully authenticated by Elliott Daingerfield and Mrs. Blakelock. It is a remarkable record, and one of which probably no other dealer in the country can boast.

A BOHNEN DRAWING TO BE SHOWN HERE



Charcoal drawing of Francis Macmillen, violinist, brother of S. E. Macmillen, manager of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, drawn by Carl Bohnen.

EXHIBITING the painters with the paintings is a new phase of conducting displays of artists' works. Not only is the public curiosity indulged, but much personal interest and enjoyment is lent, especially when the artists happen to be Carl Bohnen, whose works have placed him in the first rank of contemporary American portrait painters, and Marie Blanke, whose floral designs are so widely known and easily recognizable on calendars, cards, cretonnes and posters. The arrival of the artists in St. Louis will coincide with the opening of their exhibition at the Vandervoort Galleries Jan. 23, and their visit will be for perhaps half of the month the show remains in progress.

Among the works Miss Blanke will exhibit are four Dutch garden subjects which she painted while in Holland last summer. Her love for brilliant color and formal arrangement found there great suggestion and opportunity. The influence probably will be noted in many of her newer designs and adaptations.

Miss Blanke is well known in Chicago and holds an important place there among women painters. She has studied in London and Munich, as well as at the Chicago Art Institute, where she began her work, and has taken many distinctions given for designing in Chicago and the East. Among these honors are the Mrs. Julius Rosenwald prize, 1920, Chicago Artists' Exhibit; the Edward B Butler prize, 1922, Chicago Artists' Exhibit, and the Chicago Woman's Club scholarship for three years. She is a member of the Artists' Guild of Chicago, secretary of the Chicago Society of Artists, member of Society of Arts and Crafts Boston, the Arts Club of Chicago, and is now assistant professor of design at Lewis Institute, Chicago.

Carl Bohnen, descendant of a long line of artistically inclined and accomplished ancestors, comes by his art very fairly. Although born in Pennsylvania, the most of his earlier painting was done in St. Paul, Minn., from which community a group of art lovers sent him, in 1913, to Europe for three and a half years of study. The expiration of that period found him in Germany just before the United States entered the World War. Mr. Bohnen recounts how he discovered himself "flat broke" in Germany, when his money was in London and the English banks were paying nothing on German banks.

"There was but one thing to do," he said, "and that was to use my good right arm. I put it to the best advantage I knew, and painted portraits of great men in the country, thus working my way out of Germany, through Switzerland, and across the Atlantic." Some of these portraits of Germany's illustrious men were taken by the Government because of their merit.

In America Mr. Bohnen is probably best known for his pencil and charcoal drawings of musical, dramatic, poetic and literary celebrities and other personages prominent in public life. His display here includes portraits of Fritz Kreisler, John Drew, Georgio Polloco, Prof. Carl Marr, Francis Macmillen and President Harding.

A private reception to the artists will be held in the galleries on the afternoon of Jan. 23, after which date the exhibit will be open to the public for one month.

What I Have Learned in 47 Years Practice

I HAVE been watching the results of constipation for 47 years, since I began the practice of medicine back in 1875. I am now 83 years old, and though from time to time the medical profession makes some wonderfully interesting experiments and tests, the fundamentals of causes and relief in this particular ailment are unchanged.

But the people take greater interest today in their health, in diet, exercise and the drinking of water. Constipation, however, will occur from time to time no matter how one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. I believe in getting as close to nature as possible, hence my remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It is made of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics. Children will not willingly take bitter things. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written me to that effect.

Over 10 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are now sold every year, and it is the most widely bought family laxative in the world. I say family laxative because all in the family can use it with safety. It is mild enough for the infant in arms, effective in the most chronic constipation of an adult. The formula is on every package.

Recently there has been a new wave of drastic physics. Calomel, a mercurial that salivates and loosens teeth, has been revived; salt waters and powders that draw needed constituents from the blood; coal tar disguised in candy form that causes skin eruptions. In a practice of 47 years I have never seen any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping, and without shock to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It lowers your strength 28 per cent, hardens the arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope but go to a druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a generous-size bottle. Take a teaspoonful that night and by morning you will be well. The cost is only about a cent a dose. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, piles, indigestion, loss of appetite or sleep, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

I REPEAT MY FREE OFFER
$10,000 worth of trial bottles of Syrup Pepsin free

Last year I agreed to spend $10,000 cash for free samples of my Syrup Pepsin, and send them free and postage paid to all who asked. A tremendous mail was the result. But there must be many who did not write. I would like to get their address this time. So I now renew my offer, in remembrance of my approaching 84th birthday, and will again devote $10,000 to free samples. I am anxious to see one in every American home. Write for yours today. Simply give me your address. Send it to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Mine is truly a free gift; it costs the public nothing.

1922 SALES LARGEST IN NASH HISTORY

Nash Motors on Jan. 9 had on hand more orders for delivery this month than were booked in any previous month in the history of the company with the exception of May and June of last year. The year just closed was the greatest 12 months period in the history of the Nash Motors Co. Total sales of Nash passenger cars in 1922 more than doubled shipments made the previous year.

One interesting phase of the 1922 record is that the last six months of the year eclipsed the first half period in point of sales. One thousand and five more cars were shipped by the factory from July 1 to Dec. 31 than were shipped between Jan. 1 and June 30. The Southwest Nash Co. distribute the Nash cars in St. Louis and territory.

A. A. A. TO CONTROL SPEED RACES IN 1923

That speedway racing during 1923 will continue under the control of the American Automobile Association Contest Board is indicated by the fact that officials of practically every large speedway in the United States have signified their intention of conducing their races under A. A. A. sanction as usual. Officials of the Indianapolis Speedway have already had an official sanction assigned for the big race on May 30 and have issued their entry blanks bearing the A. A. A. Contest Board's sanction number.

According to William Schimpf, chairman of the Contest Board, efforts to create the impression that a new organization would take control of speedway racing in the United States have hastened the action of the officials of the various racing plants in assuring the A. A. A. Contest Board of their desire to continue racing under the sanction of that body. Requests for sanction have been received even earlier this year than usual and in almost every instance assurance has been given that the speedway officials are highly satisfied with A. A. A. supervision of racing and have no desire to change.

Can You Beat It?

The average upkeep expense on the New Oakland 6-44 for 1922 was only $8.92. On some of these cars there was no repair expense whatever.

This is hard to believe, but ask any Oakland 6-44 owner and he will tell you it is true.

The car on which the expense was greatest showed a cost of only $53.40 for the year.

This is the record of the Oakland 6-44 cars sold in St. Louis.

Taking into consideration the low gasoline consumption—20 to 25 miles per gallon—and the big tire mileage—15,000 to 20,000 miles—and the low maintenance cost—average $8.92 for the year—proves conclusively that the Oakland is the most Economical Car to Own, Operate and Maintain—Bar None.

INSIDE OF BATTERY A MYSTERY TO MANY

To most automobilists the inside of a battery is a subject of considerable mystery. Most of them know that the box does not contain a series of gears and pinions such as are found in the transmission, but aside from that their knowledge is more or less nil.

Although the extensive use of the automobile today has necessitated a general all-around knowledge of the elementary mechanical workings of the machine, few people bother to find out what makes the battery do the excellent work it does. Oftentimes it is not until the starter refuses to work and the crank as well, that the automobilist wakes up to the fact that his machine has a battery in it which he has given no care.

"Service station men all over the country are united in a desire to educate every car owner as to the inside workings and the proper care of the battery. It is to their interests that car owners should be able to get the maximum use from their batteries. W. A. Suhre of the Battery Service Co., Willard distributer, says that they make it a point to explain the essentials of the battery to every patron who will take the time to listen. And it is surprising how many remark that they didn't know this thing or that thing about batteries before.

The former Auburn models were completely Remy equipped.

HUDSON-ESSEX DEALERS MAKE TOUR OF FACTORY

John N. Willys recently announced that the Willys-Overland factories will produce more motor cars in the next three months than ever before in a like period.

The force of men who build the Willys-Knight and Overland cars is being increased over all previous numbers, and the prospects of greatly enlarged production are exceedingly bright for 1923.

During 1922 the sales of Willys-Knight and Overland cars were double that of 1921.

"THINGS TO DO TODAY" INSPECT YOUR BRAKES

Watch your brakes! Don't wait until tomorrow to give them the "once over." You may be in the hospital by then—or the police station. Cats may have nine lives, but no mortal has ever yet been killed more than once. It doesn't sound like a big item in the "Things to Do Today" column, but—

More motor accidents result from faulty adjustment or application of brakes than from any other cause. This has been the finding of the National Safety Council in a survey of auto smash-ups, traffic deaths and reckless driving cases.

When your car is going 10 miles an hour, will your brakes bring it to a standstill within 9.8 feet; or 20.8 feet at 15 miles; 37 feet at 20 miles; 58 feet at 25 miles; 83.3 feet at 30 miles; 104 feet at 35 miles; 148 feet at 40 miles, and 231 feet at 50 miles? If not, get busy! Brakes should be tested every day. Before going a block from the garage make a service test by throwing out the clutch and applying the brakes. If possible, a dry spot should be selected for this test. Under no circumstances should the car be taken farther if the brakes fail to operate correctly. Go back to the garage and have them fixed.

If your brake linings are slippery, remove the rear wheels and wash the linings with kerosene; never oil them. If your brakes squeal, that can be stopped by removing the wheels and softening the linings with a file. If the linings are worn down, have new ones put in. Only an experienced mechanic should install brake linings. Be sure your brakes are adjusted properly. If they drag, they wear quickly and unnecessarily; if they are too loose, they won't act quickly.

Automobile brakes have a definite relation to safety. Watch those brakes! Keep out of trouble; keep out of jail!

HUPP DOMESTIC SALES DOUBLE THOSE OF 1920

Sales of Hupmobiles for eight of the 12 different months of 1922 were greater than the highest previous monthly sales record of any other year in the 14 years of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation's history, according to an announcement made last week by O. C. Hutchinson, general sales manager.

Hupmobile sales this year will total about 35,000 cars. Domestic sales will be more than double those of 1920, the previous largest year.

It is officilly stated that the output planned for 1923 will considerably exceed that of 1922. The Hupmobile is distributed in St. Louis by the Weber Implement & Auto Co.

Everything Points to the Greatest Spring Demand for Ford Products in Company's History

1,202,517 Ford Cars and Trucks were delivered to retail purchasers in the United States alone during 1922—

Actual deliveries for last month greatly exceeded any previous December in the history of the Ford Motor Company—

It was the ninth consecutive month in which more than 100,000 Ford Cars and Trucks were retailed—keeping the Ford Plants working at capacity to meet dealers' requirements—

In many parts of the country dealers are already finding it necessary to specify later delivery dates on certain types because there are no reserve stocks to draw from—

Commercial users, business houses and farmers, anticipating their future requirements, are placing orders and taking delivery of Ford Cars, Trucks and Fordson Tractors to insure against delay—

Everything points to the biggest shortage of Ford Products this Spring that has ever existed—

The only way you can be sure of obtaining delivery of a Ford Car, Truck or Fordson Tractor is to list your order immediately—

We have given you these facts as they actually exist so that if you are planning to purchase a Ford Car, Truck or Tractor for use this Spring or Summer, you can list your order now and take advantage of our dealers' first opportunity to make delivery.

14-ACRE TRACT ON RIVER BOUGHT AS POWER PLANT SITE

Light and Development Co. Acquires Land in the Columbia Bottoms, North of St. Louis.

Options on Other Extensive Holdings in This District Obtained by the Same Company.

By Berry Moore.

What is regarded as the forerunner to important developments was the purchase yesterday of a tract of 14.71 acres in the Columbia bottoms, adjacent to the Mississippi River in North St. Louis, and approximately seven miles north of Washington avenue, by the Light and Development Co., through the [illegible] Grether, with offices in the International Life Building.

The tract is bounded on the west by the Burlington right-of-way, on the east by the Mississippi River and is 100 feet south of the point where the Burlington tracks cross Riverview drive, and is 200 feet south of the extensive plant of the Missouri Portland Cement Co. The tract is about a mile and a half north of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas shops. The company has purchased in addition an outlet from this tract to Riverview, west of the tract.

The purchase has been made tentatively as a site for a plant to supplement that of the Cupples Station Light and Power Co., and which is to be on a large scale. The company, which is capitalized for $3,000,000, and of which H. Wurdack is president; John A. Porter, vice president; E. M. Kurtz, treasurer, and Horace W. Beck, secretary, has as subsidiaries the United States Public Service Co., the Cupples Station Light and Power Co., the Missouri Utilities Co., and the Western Light and Heating Co., and is regarded as a potential rival of the Union Electric Light and Power Co.

Options on Other Holdings.

The Light and Development Co. has obtained options on other extensive holdings in this district, which is served by the Municipal Electric Railway, which carries passengers and the tracks of which are laid on the conduit of the city water works.

The Burlington Railway owns an extensive tract about two miles south of the 14 acres purchased by the Light and Development Co. This tract has been submitted at an attractive price to Henry Ford as available for his proposed plant for St. Louis. The tract requires considerable filling, but it is attractive by virtue of its river frontage and rail advantages.

There is a wilderness of vacant land on both sides of the Burlington right-of-way eligible for industrial purposes, and practically all of this is held by railroads and speculators who believe that this district is fraught with possibilities from the industrial viewpoint. Considerable of this land is said to be held by subsidiaries of the Santa Fe, which, it is reported, is seeking a right-of-way into the city.

The tract acquired by the Light and Development Co. was owned by Dr. Edward Evers, Miss Anna H. Evers, Mrs. Louise Solomon, Miss Millie Lewis, Mrs. Ella Marsded and Mrs. Claudia Yungbluth, who were represented by the John Grether & Co.

Real Estate Market Active.

Developments of the past week indicate a larger scope of operations in real estate. The market for all classes of property was brisk. The demand for apartments for speculation as well as for investment was keen, while that for sites and buildings for industrial plants was the distinguishing feature.

Earnest money was paid on an unprecedented number of large holdings in the apartment, business and industrial centers, but announcements are being withheld, pending the perfecting of financial arrangements and examination of titles. These include several deals in the central district which are significant as indicating a reawakening in this section of the real estate market. One of the largest sales of the week was that of the Argonne Apartments, the details of which are given elsewhere.

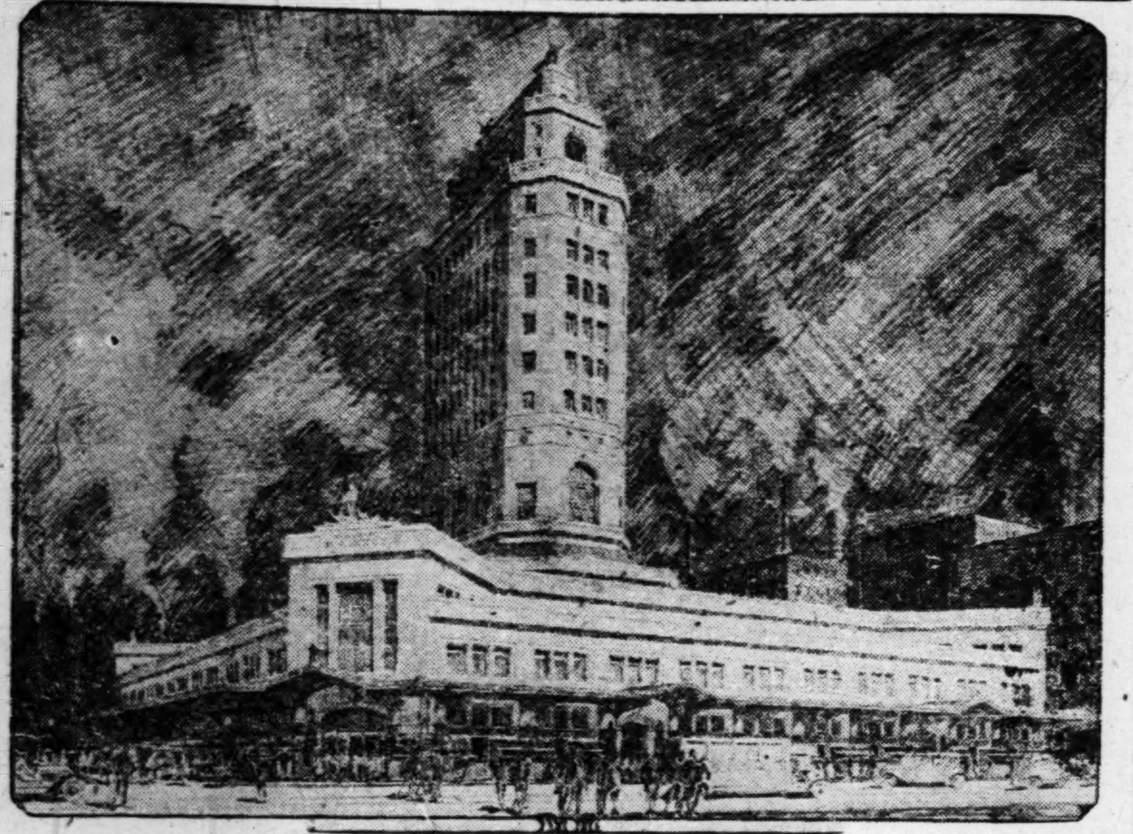
E. T. Farrell has taken a position in the real estate sales department of the Mercantile Trust Co. He formerly was in the automobile busi-

Proposed Plan for a Market Building, Interurban Station and Parking Site



Construction of a Union Market Building that would combine a market center, a station for interurban trains, and several stories for parking automobiles, or for offices, has been suggested by Sigmund Baer, president of the Progressive Downtown Improvement Association.

Proposition No. 20 of the municipal bond issue, to be voted on Feb. 9, provides $1,250,000 for reconstruction of the present public markets, or construction of new ones.

Use of the basement of such a building as Baer proposes for an interurban train station, and construction of several floors above the ground floor, to provide office space, or a modern parking garage for automobiles, was advocated as a means of making the building fully self-sustaining. Under the plan, the ground floor would be used for merchants' stalls.

"No other city in the United States has such poor market buildings and conditions as we have here," Baer declared. "St. Louis deserves the best. Building of new markets should appeal especially to women, and all of them should vote for Proposition 20."

The building contains approximately 70,000 square feet of floor space equipped with automatic sprinkler, steam heating plant and three electric elevators. Possession of the premises will not be turned over to the new lessee until about Jan. 1, 1924, when alterations will be made. ARGONNE APARTMENTS SOLD BY LOUIS NOLTE FOR $475,000

City Comptroller Said to Have Realized Record Profit Through Sale of Property to Sam Koplar, Speculator.

A feature of the week was the purchase by Sam Koplar yesterday for a reported price of $475,000 of the Argonne Hotel apartments, a five-story structure at 3664 Washington avenue, in the first block west of Grand boulevard. The building embraces 75 units, alternating four and five rooms, the annual rentals of which aggregate $83,000, or a trifle more than 17 per cent on the investment. The site is 77x225 feet.

The grantor in the transaction was Louis Nolte, City Comptroller, who bought the building a year or so ago and who realized a record profit through the sale, according to realty circles. Koplar, who is a real estate operator of the professional order, is reputed to have made $1,000,000 during the last 10 years in building and speculative ventures in the real estate field.

Koplar acquired the building as an investment, rather than a speculation, he declares, and will rest on his laurels for awhile. He formerly owned the Westmoreland Hotel on Pershing avenue, just west of Union boulevard, which he sold at a big profit. He recently returned from a trip abroad and is optimistic in the extreme as to the outlook in the real estate field in St. Louis.

According to real estate circles, Koplar has concluded negotiations for another big building of this type, the papers for which will be filed this week.

BUILDING ERECTED IN 1771 IS SOLD

Structure at 100 North Main Street, Built by Jean Papin, Once Went for "1500 Livers."

Conveyance last week of the stone commercial building at 100 North Main street from the Adolphus Meier estate to the Wahlert-Guntzler Co. drew attention to the history of the building, which was erected in 1771 by Jean Papin, alias Louchausse, and which was transferred by him in August of that year to Joseph Conand for "1500 livers."

Conand, who was a doctor, conveyed it to Sylvester Labadie for "6500 pounds of deerskins—dressed," but whether at a profit or a loss does not appear.

Title Dates From 1766.

The Hunsche-Buder Title Co., which examined the title, found that, according to the city map of 1804, city block No. 9, of which the property was a part, was owned by four members of the Labadie-Vasquez families, under title dating from 1766, 1770 and 1785. The original description of the property was a lot 120 feet in width by 150 feet in depth, bounded on the front by the "first main street," by a depth to the Mississippi River, and on one side by a cross street, and on the other side by one Rene Kercerean.

Sylvester Labadie, who gave Dr. Conand the deerskins for it, died prior to 1803, and his children were members of the then prominent St. Louis families of Pratte, Sarpy and Chouteau.

Owners Have Old Deed.

The present owners have the deed from Labadie to Charles Billon, dated March 6, 1819, which describes it as 31 ft. 8" more or less "English measure," "town of St. Louis (county of St. Louis) Territory of Missouri," "to a corner of a stone house situated on said lot" which terms are now obsolete. This deed was written with a quill, is in a remarkable state of preservation, and contains a consideration of $7000 "current money." The deed bears signatures of Theodore Papin, who was the founder of the firm of Papin & Tontrup; F. M. Guyot, Justice of the Peace, and A. Gamble, familiar names in the city's early history. It also has a notation "filed for record April 5, 1819. A. Gamble, Clerk—Tax 50c, Record $1.25, Certificate—20c, paid." Since that time the property has had its ups and downs in the financial scale. In 1883 there was a deed of trust put on it for $32,000.

Adolphus Meier, ancestor of the present owner, acquired the property in 1843. His grandson, "Clem" Meier of the Heine Boiler Co., signed the deed for the transfer. The elder Meier, with his brother, did a banking business in conjunction with their hardware and general merchandise business.

The Meier interests were represented in the deal by D. N. Kirby of Nagel & Kirby, and Wahlert-Guntzler Co. by Will K. Roth. The consideration was $10,500.

CASH FOR OLD AGE.
A corporation with assets of over $20,000,000 will give you any sum from $1000 to $25,000 in cash for the simple payment of less than 5 per cent interest for 20 years; should death occur in the meantime the contract immediately matures and the lump sum is turned over to your estate; should you lose your health by accident or disease, the interest payments cease and a monthly pension is paid without in the least affecting the amount of the face of contract while the contract goes on toward maturity, just the same as if the interest were being paid. We, or any bank, will loan money on these contracts on the sole security of its equity. What is more pitiable than an old man without a dime? For particulars, Box B-95, Post-Dispatch.

BUSINESS CHANCES

START A STORE OF YOUR OWN

Handle the kind of goods that sell big
Every day in the year,
To rich and poor alike,
Everyday necessities,
At popular prices—
Big variety and big values
For little money.
Start a store that is THE store
For people who spend
In nickels, dimes and quarters.
The kind of a store that yields a larger profit on investment than any other kind of store;
The kind that makes a profit
While other stores are standing still.

WE WILL SHOW YOU HOW

Let us show you how you can start such a store.

$2500 to $6000 will be sufficient capital.

You don't have to be an expert, or a trained merchant.

We will gladly show you
How to get a choice location,
Where to get your fixtures and how to use them,
How to select your stock and how to arrange it,
How to mark your goods and how to make a profit,
How to make simple window trims that will sell goods,
How to get the people inside your store,

In short, we give you the benefit of 45 years' experience in showing men and women how to become successful merchants.

You incur no obligation whatever in requesting details of our plan.

All we ask is that you come in and see us or write us a letter in strictest confidence, telling fully and frankly about yourself, how much capital you have to invest and where you would prefer to locate.

OFFICER CATCHES TWO FOOTPADS IN THE ACT

Sergeant Sees Them Knock Man Down, Nabs Them as They Search Pockets.

Charles Hildebrand, 44 years old, of 8524 Water street, walked past Tenth and Walnut streets at 7:30 o'clock last night with two young men following him closely. Sergt. Martin Flanagan of the Central District observed the young men's movements. He stepped into a hallway and watched. The two men crept up behind Hildebrand and knocked him down. They were searching his pockets when Flanagan ran up. They bolted into an alley.

Flanagan pursued, firing his revolver, and captured both. Somebody telephoned the police station that a policeman had been shot. A lieutenant, sergeants and patrolmen went to the scene.

Hildebrand and the two captives were taken to the station. There Delmar Carroll, one of them, resented being searched and kicked at Flanagan. After he was picked up out of the corner he was docile. He gave his age as 24 and his address as 936 Chouteau avenue. He has been arrested 14 times and has served a term in the workhouse. The other said he was Martin Darmondy, 19, of 1112 South Fourth street. He said he had been arrested in Detroit. Hildebrand's watch and 40 cents were found in the alley.

$650 TAKEN IN COUNTY HOLDUP

Three men armed with revolvers held up the proprietor of a meat market at 1151 Sutter avenue, St. Louis County, at 9 o'clock last night, as he was preparing to close the market, and robbed him of $650, he reported to the University City police. The proprietor, who gave his name as Tennenbaum, said he had the money at the store to cash pay checks for employes of the Wagner Electric Corporation. The robbers entered the store from a rear door, he said, as he was locking the front. Tennenbaum lives over the store.

Ed Staedelm of 6219A Suburban avenue reported to the University City police that he was robbed of $82 by two armed robbers about 9 o'clock last night, at Ann and Suburban avenues. The men drove away in an automobile after the hold-up, he said.

John Broichhaus, a grocer at 1452 North Thirteenth street, East St Louis, last night reported that two masked men robbed him in his store of $560 in cash and $300 in checks from a box that he had concealed. He said the loss was covered by insurance.

The butcher shop of William Diermann, at 2758 Allen avenue, was held up and robbed at 8 o'clock last night by two armed men who entered as Diermann was about to close and took the money from the cash register. The robbers escaped in an automobile.

Men answering the same description robbed two Kroger stores. At 7:25 p. m. they obtained about $45 from one at Tenth and Lami streets, and at 8:30 p. m. robbed another at 3001 Park avenue of $45. The manager was bound by a rope in the latter place and thrown into a rear room.

'BURN CLOTHES,' WOMAN'S WILL

Body, Not to Be Viewed by Public, to Be Cremated Today.

Mrs. Zola Gillham, 46 years old, a rooming-house keeper at 1327A Market street, in her will directed that her body be cremated and the "ashes scattered to the winds." She specified further she did not want a public display of her body and that it was to be viewed only for identification.

Mrs. Gillham died Friday. Her funeral will be held today at the Missouri Creamtory. She left $300 to Kate Seon for faithful service and gave the remainder of her estate, including life insurance, to Hiero G. Tiffany Sr., 3893 Windsor place, who, as executor, is instructed to burn all of Mrs. Gillham's wearing apparel. Attorney Charles A. Smith, who drew the will, said he did not know what property the woman had.

MAN CHARGED UNDER MANN ACT

A warrant charging violation of the Mann act was issued last night by the United States Attorney for Hyman Atlas, 29 years old, of New York, who has been known as Gold at a downtown woman's apparel store where he was employed as a trimmer. He and Ida Glick, 28, of Paterson, N. J., who has been living with him as his wife at 4352A Page boulevard, were arrested. She formerly was employed at the same store in New York as Atlas. St. Louis Jews noted in a New York Jewish paper two photographs of Atlas, who, it was stated, had abandoned his wife and two children in New York. They turned the paper over to the police.

MRS. NANCY JANE COOK, 90, DIES

Mrs. Nancy Jane Cook, 90 years old, died at 9 o'clock last night at her home, 1750 North Thirty-ninth street, East St. Louis, of influenza, following a week's illness.

She was one of the first women to register on the East St. Louis election books in October, 1920, when Illinois women became eligible to vote, and was the oldest person listed on the registration books. Five children survive, one of whom is Judge Silas Cook of the East St. Louis City Court.

'CITIZENS COURT' AT HARRISON, ARK., ENDS SESSIONS

General Chairman Says He Will Welcome Investigation by the State Legislature.

By the Associated Press.

HARRISON, Ark., Jan. 20.—The "citizens' court" which has been questioning strikers on the Missouri & North Arkansas Railroad here regarding alleged depredations along that road recessed tonight, after machinery was set in motion for the complete organization of subcommittees at various towns along the railroad, which can operate alone or be converted, upon the call of the chairman-general, into a "committee of the whole."

W. L. Snapp, general chairman, stated tonight that it has been deemed advisable to form such organizations "for the purpose of protecting the property of the M. & N. A. and in the interests of the people who depend upon the road for their transportation."

Welcomes Investigation.

"Inasmuch as there has been a committee appointed by our Legislature to investigate the acts of the committee which has been in session for the last few days," Snapp said, "I will say that upon notice of the coming of this legislative committee to Harrison I will call a meeting of our committee and will expect all our chairmen and secretaries to be present.

"We assembled for the purpose of correcting a wrong and we invite the closest investigation of this committee from our Legislature."

Harrison assumed normalcy today in a business way for the first time since the "uprising" last Monday. Aside from the white badge displayed by a number of citizens, there are few things to remind one of the strenuous week the town has gone through.

As Harrison now is virtually without a city administration, due to the wholesale resignation of officials, guards are still maintained and will be stationed indefinitely, it was announced.

Judge Replies to Wise.

J. W. Shinn, Judge of the Boone County Circuit Court, replied today to a statement quoting Luther Wise, who, with "Red" Orr, was convicted of arson and sentenced to from seven to 10 years in the penitentiary, who said that they had been "coerced into making a plea of guilty."

"There positively is not one word of truth in Wise's reputed statement," Judge Shinn said. "If the plea had not been unconditional I would have accepted it. They tried to tell me something like that to start with, but I refused to consider such a plea. I told them that there was no need for them to be alarmed about conditions here. I guaranteed them protection and a fair trial, and after deliberation they consented to make the plea they entered.

"I examined the testimony upon which they were indicted and am thoroughly convinced that they were guilty. The evidence was positive."

Prosecuting Attorney Karl Greenhaw joined Judge Shinn in declaring the two strikers were shown every courtesy.

Rector Whose Views Were Shock to Bishop Promises a More Drastic Sermon

"I'll Sweep the Cobwebs Away," Says the Rev. Dr. Grant, of New York, to Demand That He Recant or Resign

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—He is going to preach a sermon tomorrow much more drastic than the one which roused the storm of criticism. This is the answer of the Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant to the persons who have arisen in horror and anger against his description of various church forms as relics of the witch age. "I'll sweep the cobwebs away," says Dr. Grant.

The stormy petrel of the Protestant Episcopal Church in New York is causing no end of concern to his Bishop, to his more conservative fellow-clergymen, to everyone but himself. He doesn't believe in consecrating churches; he doesn't believe Jesus performed any miracles which science and especially autosuggestion, cannot explain; he doesn't see anything sacred about marriage except nobility of conduct on the part of the married; and he believes in the marriage of divorced persons, which is something of which his church thoroughly disapproves.

The Rev. Dr. Grant is, indeed, reported to be still betrothed to the former Mrs. Philip Lydig, who has been divorced twice. He published recently a book of love verses, of which several were dedicated to that lady.

Dr. Grant Unyielding.

Dr. Grant's announcement that he will preach a sermon tomorrow more drastic than was that of last Sunday is regarded as his answer to the demand of Bishop William T. Manning of his diocese that he either accept the faith of the Protestant Episcopal Church or resign from its ministry. Voluntary resignation, hastened by pressure from higher up, is said to be the Bishop's "best bet" as to the solution of the perplexing problem of Dr. Grant, which day by day in every way becomes more and more perplexing.

Bishop Manning made his demand in a letter Friday, after cogitating for some days on Dr. Grant's sermon of last Sunday, in which the rector of the Church of the Ascension uttered statements of belief and nonbelief which his Episcopal superior regards as strong basis for trial and conviction on grounds of heresy.

The Bishop expresses himself as opposed to heresy trials. He much prefers that Dr. Grant, in case the latter finds it impossible to conform to the tenets of the church, should step down and out of his own volition.

It is understood that last Wednesday the Bishop and Dr. Grant had a conference, at the instance of the former, and that Bishop Manning left the presence of the rector far from satisfied.

In his letter to Dr. Grant, the Bishop says, after having called the rector's attention to the fact that at his public ordination he promised solemnly to accept and teach the Christian faith as embodied in the Apostles' Creed, that if he now cannot conscientiously accept and teach this faith he cannot consistently continue to hold his commission as a minister in the church.

Bishop's Ultimatum.

"In my judgment, therefore, you are called upon to follow one of two courses," the Bishop wrote. "You should at once publicly correct the impression given by your recent sermon and state clearly that you do accept the faith of the church as set forth in the creed, or, if you do not accept the faith, you should voluntarily resign from the ministry of this church.

"This in no way restricts or conflicts with your personal liberty or your freedom of thought. You are at liberty to teach whatever you believe, but you are not at liberty to deny the faith for which the Protestant Episcopal Church stands and at the same time to continue as one of her ministers."

The New York public now wonders if Dr. Grant's sermon tomorrow will be the last straw and if it will cause heresy accusations to be laid against the rector. Because of this possibility, and for other and obvious reasons, the sermon is looked forward to with unusual interest.

A picturesque figure is this Episcopalian clergyman who on each Sunday fills the fashionable Church of the Ascension, just off lower Fifth avenue, with capacity congregations.

Notable Figure Anywhere.

Tall, ruddy-cheeked and looking a good deal like an English squire who would enjoy riding to hounds if he were not too busy with pastoral duties, Dr. Grant is a notable figure in any gathering. There is something about his heavy jaw, with its almost sullen expression, which ought to warn adversaries to keep their distance. The sullen expression is belied by brown eyes that often twinkle and that always give you a glance as straight as an arrow. The deeply lined face breaks readily into a smile.

He seems perhaps 50 years old. His somewhat curly brown hair is grizzled with gray. Usually his speech is slow, a trifle drawling, and his manner suits his voice. It is efficient but unhurried, and as nearly imperturbable as is humanly possible.

Since the witchcraft sermon, one of Dr. Grant's fellow clergymen has accused him of being "one of a number of men to whom notoriety is meat and drink." Although he has certainly not shunned the public eye during his long pastorate at the Church of the Ascension, yet Dr. Grant's personality, his handshake and his direct glance gives an impression of sincerity. However, much you may differ from his religious and social views, you cannot escape the idea that he believes in them wholly.

Because he has championed causes unpopular with the conservatives, Dr. Grant has come more than once under the discipline of his Bishop. The late Bishop Burch rebuked him three years ago for "unpatriotic and unchurchly acts." The present Bishop Manning forbade the marriage of the rector to the divorced Mrs. Lydig and ordered the clergymen within his jurisdiction to refuse to marry the couple.

It was on this occasion that Dr. Grant burst forth in a flaming denunciation of the ban of the Protestant Episcopal Church against the marriage of a person who has been divorced. Following this up with the widely read book of love poems, he left high church officials gasping.

Defense of Laboring Man.

Years ago Dr. Grant took up the gauntlet in defense of the laboring man. His own ecclesiastical superiors were inclined to encourage him in this and to congratulate him until he established in the Church of the Ascension a public forum. Dr. Grant preached to his fashionable congregation on Sunday forenoons, and presided at his decidedly democratic forum on Sunday evenings.

Church dignitaries were not sure that it was dignified or reverent to hold a forum in a church, and they became perfectly certain it was not when ideas decidedly radical began to be expressed there. Bishop Manning at last forbade the use of the church for the purpose of the forum. Dr. Grant submitted to the order, but transferred the forum to the parish house.

Pugnacity, as well as sincerity, is an impression which emanates from this energetic rector. And his very pugnacity, no less than his sincerity, endears him to his congregation.

The man who defied his Bishop more than once and set at naught some of the mose precious teachings of his church is the same man, too, who adopted the little waif left one winter night on his doorstep. He did not turn her over to a religious foundling asylum nor to a city institution. From the moment the sickly little girl was brought in by his housekeeper, the clergyman—so fierce in battle—took the infant tenderly to his heart. He named her Faith Grant. He adopted her. He walked the floor with her nights when she cried. He watched by her bed when she lay still. And when she found the fight for life too much, he mourned her sincerely.

Of such contradictions is the battling parson made—or of such consistencies—for his friends would say it is his tenderness in behalf of the oppressed which makes him belligerent toward their foes.

"A lot of times I don't agree with Dr. Grant," admitted a wealthy professional man, a member of the Ascension congregation, "but I attend church there because I think he believes he's right; because I like him personally; because sometimes he really is right—and because he wakes me up mentally."

"And" he added after a moment, "because I like a fight."

WINS SECOND TRIAL AGAINST ACCIDENT INSURANCE COMPANY

Frederick D. Bennett Obtains Jury Verdict for $1827 Based on Accident Policy.

A jury in Circuit Judge Killoren's court yesterday returned a verdict for $1827 in favor of Frederick D. Bennett, 41 years old, a former insurance representative, against the Standard Accident Insurance Co., based on a health and accident policy.

Bennett was declared of unsound mind Oct. 17, 1916, and in the claim against the company it was alleged that his mental condition was due to his accidentally inhaling gas in his room at 5702 Clemens avenue on Sept. 25, 1916.

This was the second trial. Bennett at the first hearing also won a verdict, but the judgment was set aside because of error in the giving of instructions. If the present decision stands the company will be required to pay $25 a week as long as Bennett is insane, as well as the judgment, which was the amount due when the suit was filed.

RUSSIANS TO GET COPY OF PLAN FOR STRAITS

Allies and Turks in Agreement Except on Ottoman Demand for Garrison at Gallipoli.

By the Associated Press.

LAUSANNE, Jan. 20.—After a hasty consultation tonight the allies decided to accede to the latest Russian demand that the Russian delegation at the Lausanne conference be furnished with a copy of the draft of the projected Straits treaty. The opinion is growing among the allied delegates that the Russians have been kept too much in the dark on the Straits negotiations. A meeting of the Straits Commission will be held next week and the Russians will be given a copy of the Straits convention beforehand.

It is stated an agreement has been reached with the Turks, except on one point. The Turks insist on the right to maintain a small garrison at Gallipoli, but it is understood the English delegates are opposed to this.

As the conference approaches what is expected to be its final chapter, all kinds of reports and counter reports are in circulation.

The Turks made it known today that the British delegates had refused to entertain a suggestion that the Mosul dispute be left to the League of Nations. The British retorted that the Turks had never advanced such a suggestion.

The Assyro-Chaldean representatives have issued a lengthy indictment of Persia, accusing that country of torturing and massacreing Assyro-Chaldeans, and insisting that Persia should be invited to the conference to justify her acts. Persia recently protested because she had not been invited to send delegates to the conference.

It is learned here that the American position concerning a special convention with the Ottoman Government remains unchanged; that the United States will not sign a treaty if one is negotiated, and is carrying on no pour parlers with Turkey. But when the conference is adjourned the United States, in keeping with its announced policy, may begin negotiations for a general commercial treaty.

SENATOR REED PAYS TENDER TRIBUTE TO DEAD PARTNER

Says Jacque G. L. Harvey Possessed Rare Judgment and Never Did an Unjust Thing.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 20.—A tribute that brought tears to the eyes of lawyers who packed the Federal courtroom was paid today by Senator James A. Reed to the memory of his former law partner, Jacque G. L. Harvey. Reed's eulogy was one of several delivered at memorial services for Harvey held by the Kansas City Bar Association today.

"In the later years of his young life—for Mr. Harvey died very young," Senator Reed said, "the rapidity of his development in legal grasp and in the power of presentation were to me a gratifying marvel.

"I say here today that there does not live upon this earth a human being who dares say Jacque Harvey ever did an unjust thing in all his life. He possessed the rarest judgment of any man I ever knew. His insight into character and his ability to analyze motives which could control men were remarkable and sometimes almost uncanny.

"He knew me so well that not once, but tens of thousands of times, he has acted for me without consultation and done the very thing I would have done—and perhaps a little better or much better than I would have done.

"I think I felt more toward Jacque Harvey with the mingled devotion of a father and a brother. In the years of my public life," said Senator Reed. "I have not known the details of my law office—its income I did not know, the books of the office I have seen, but I have never opened the covers. Better than I would have cared for them my my partner, Jacque Harvey, att ed to my interests as he did his More close to his heart was th fare of his friend than was hi welfare."

MRS. T. J. D.—Dress-making schools are listed in the telephone directories.

J. K.—Any insurance agent will give you the information you desire.

ALDE.—Printing companies in the city employ beginners at a minimum wage and teach them the trade. Watch the advertisements.

C. M.—The name "Gold Star Mother" is applied to any mother who lost a son or sons in the World War.

J. W. B.—St. Louis covers an area of 61 square miles, Chicago an area of 190 square miles, New York City in its full extent covers an area of 320 square miles in which is included a part of New York Bay and has a length of 35 miles.

J. S.—The tack company is the Atlas Tack Corporation of Fairhaven, Mass. The plant will be erected in St. Louis between Union boulevard and Geraldine avenue, opposite the General Motors Co. plant. Manufacturing operation will begin about March 1.

HONEY-MOON.—Mrs. Henry Kiel's damage suit of $50,000 against the United Railways Co. for injuries received Oct. 17, 1918, when she alighted from a trailer car, was settled Feb. 28, 1922, for $3900. 2. Each laundry has its own process for washing and bleaching the clothes. There are many good soaps on the market which can be used successfully for getting all spots out of clothes which can be tubbed. The following is "Haenkel's bleaching solution": Water 36.15 parts, sodium hydrate 40.22 parts sodium silicate 23.14 parts.

JANE.—Lemon custard pie requires the following ingredients: 3 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 pint of milk, juice and rind of a lemon, 1¼ cup of butter, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon of cornstarch. Cream the butter and sugar together, then add the well-beaten yolks of the eggs, and milk, scalded and mixed with cornstarch. Stir in the grated lemon rind and fold in the whites of the eggs which have been beaten to a stiff froth, with the salt and lemon juice. Fill the pie crust with the mixture, make in a very hot oven, and if the pie begins to brown too quickly, cover with a piece of stiff paper. When it is firm in the center and delicately tinted all over take it from the oven and set in a cool place.

607.—The potato crop should be planted in the spring time when danger of injury by frost has passed. There is no particular sign by which potatoes are planted. This is more or less an old superstition. To plant potatoes the land should be plowed as deeply as possible without turning up the subsoil. The tubers are generally planted in drills wide enough apart to admit of cultivation with the horse hoe, or cultivator, and from 12 to 16 inches apart in the row. The piece of tuber used for planting, called sets, cuttings or seed pieces, are covered about 4 inches deep. Write the Agriculture Editor, College of Agriculture, Columbia, Mo., for pamphlet 64, "Potato Culture for Missouri."

HANDY-MAN.—To refinish a hardwood floor, apply a liquid paint or varnish remover, obtainable in the shops, with a brush. After it has penetrated the old finish, scrape this off with a putty knife. Then wash the floor with benzine. Prepare a solution of oxalic acid, 1 ounce of acid to a quart of either water or denatured alcohol, the latter being a quicker medium. Use the solution to remove spots, cracks, footmarks or dirt. The floor should be scoured with it, allowing 20 minutes to elapse before washing with clear water. The floor is then ready for the filler. Filler is a paste that may be had in many colors or mixed to order in any color at all; powdered burnt umber mixed with plain filler will give in the varying degrees used, different tones of dark walnut; this is modified by the addition of raw sienna and raw sienna alone mixed with plain paste filler results in a light oak tone. Enough burnt umber in the paste filler to result in a medium and pleasant brown is the ideal tone for a hardwood floor. Filler may be thinned with benzine or turpentine, the former having the advantage of drying instantly. The filler may be applied with a brush, then when it becomes chalky rub across the grain of the wood with a cloth removing at the same time any superfluous filler that is not absorbed by the wood. After the grain of the wood is filled, and this is dry, two coats of floor varnish, the best quality that can be obtained, should be applied, allowing a day to elapse between coats. A floor treated in this manner should be cared for daily with an oil mop.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

C. T.—There is no local application which will eradicate wrinkles. Such conditions can be corrected surgically, but a competent surgeon would hardly operate for such a condition from purely a cosmetic standpoint.

READER.—The following is an excellent tonic: Tincture capsicum 6 minimums, tincture nux vomica and tincture calumbae of each 1 ounce, with enough tincture cinchona compound added to make 4 ounces. Take a teaspoonful of the mixture in water after meals. Cod liver is a good tissue and fat builder.

MAY.—A good cold cream or a good face powder is not harmful to the skin, but be sure they are of good quality. For oiliness of the face try the following: 2 drams boric acid, 4 ounces alcohol. Mop with a cloth several times a day or whenever the face is shiny. A superfatted soap containing salicylic acid and sulphur is also useful.

READER.—In cases of such a character, in which the nose is always red, the general health is almost always below par and this should receive careful consideration. Chronic nasal disease and causes that interfere with local circulation should also be considered. The disorder is almost always reflex. Locally the following may be used: 1 dram precipitated sulphur, 5 grains pulverized tragacanth, 1 ounce of rose water and lime. Apply once or twice a day. Exposure to the X-ray is often very efficient.

J. H.—To cure dandruff correct any disorders of the general health. Locally the treatment of dandruff may be summed up in the old word "stimulation." Weekly, semi-weekly and even daily cleansing of the scalp should be practiced. This is best done with the following wash: Saponis virdis 4 ounces, alcohol 2 ounces. Dissolve with heat and filter. After shampooing with this the hair is thoroughly rinsed in clear water and dried and the following applied: Carbolic acid 15 grains, glycerine 2 drams, cologne water enough to make 1 ounce. Mix thoroughly and apply as follows: Make a part in the hair and drop the mixture on the scalp at intervals of an inch and rub in with a soft brush. Cover the scalp by this method, making one part after another. After a time the shampooing may be done less often, but the mixture should be applied faithfully and persistently until the hair ceases to fall or the case must be abandoned as hopeless.

In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Flora Carrico, who died Jan. 22, 1921.
Two long years have passed away

CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In loving memory of our darling mother, Fanny Moehrle, who departed this life seven years ago, Jan. 21, 1916:

A loving mother, true and kind,
No friends like her on earth will find;

In memory of my beloved wife, Amanda Camenzind, who died Jan. 23, 1919.
One precious to our hearts has gone,
The voice we loved is stilled.
The place made vacant in our home
Can never more be filled;
Our Father in His wisdom called
The boon His love had given;
And though on earth the body lies,
The soul is safe in heaven.

In loving memory of my beloved husband and dear father, George Whitmore, who departed this life one year ago, Jan. 19, 1922:
Surrounded by friends, we are lonesome;
In the midst of pleasure we are blue.
A smile on our face, still a heartache aching and longing for you.
There are griefs that cannot find comfort, and wounds that cannot be healed;
There are sorrows so deep in a human heart
That cannot be revealed.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND DAUGHTER.

In loving memory of our dear wife, daughter and sister, Lucille Kingsland Hollander, who departed this life two years ago today.
God's plans like tender leaves unfold
In time revealing the calyxes of gold,
Then be content, dear heart,
And if by patient toil
We reach the land of rest
I know that we will say:
"God knew the best."
Sadly missed by HUSBAND, PARENTS, BROTHERS AND SISTER.

In sad and loving memory of my beloved husband and dear father, Ben Birenbaum, who lost his life one year ago, Jan. 18, 1922.
The month of January is here,
To me the saddest of the year.
It broke my heart, it ruined my life;
It took my two darlings' dearest daddy away.
Just one year ago yesterday,
Beloved husband true and kind,
No friend like you on earth we'll find.
Sadly missed by
His heartbroken wife and children, father, mother, sister and brother, and all who loved him.

In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Casper Audelfinger, who departed this life just one year ago, Jan. 12, 1922.
Today recalls sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest.
And those who think of him today
Are the ones who loved him best.
We never thought that on that day
Our dear father would be called away.
For all of us he did his best
Until the angels took him home to rest.
In silence you suffered with patience your base,
Till God called you home to suffer no more.

USED CAR BUYERS, READ THIS

Before you buy a used car look into the standing of the men who are selling them.

Don't be misled. The cheapest used car is not always the best car to purchase.

A good used car can give you thousands of miles of service and be a source of comfort and pleasure to the whole family.

We have been selling new Chevrolets and good used cars for the past four years and have hundreds of good customers.

We are not buying and selling used cars for profit, but each car offered by us was taken in trade on a new Chevrolet car and thoroughly rebuilt in our own shop.

Why take chances? Buy from us.

Stephen Leacock finds British metropolis has clean streets, admirable sidewalks and excellent water supply—Thames River has much the same breadth and majesty of the St. Jo River at South Bend, Ind.—As to climate, he says that "one night about 4 o'clock in the afternoon," he saw the sun distinctly appear through a London fog.

NUMBER THREE OF THE SERIES

By Stephen Leacock

BEFORE setting down my impressions of the great English metropolis—a phrase which I have thought out as a designation of London—I think it proper to offer an initial apology. I find that I receive impressions with great difficulty, and have nothing of that easy facility in picking them up which is shown by British writers on America. I remember Hugh Walpole telling me that he could hardly walk down Broadway without getting at least three dollars' worth, and on Fifth Avenue five dollars' worth; and I recollect that St. John Ervine came up to my house in Montreal, drank a cup of tea, borrowed some tobacco, and got away with sixty dollars' worth of impressions of Canadian life and character.

But I have since pieced together my impressions as conscientiously as I could, and I present them here. If they seem to be a little bit modeled on British impressions of America, I admit at once that the influence is there. We writers all act and react on one another; and when I see a good thing in another man's book, I react on it at once.

London, the name of which is already known to readers, is beautifully situated on the River Thames, which here sweeps in a wide curve with much the same breadth and majesty as the St. Jo River at South Bend, Ind. London, like South Bend itself, is a city of clean streets and admirable sidewalks and has an excellent water supply.

The city is able to boast of many handsome public buildings and offices which compare favorably with anything on the other side of the Atlantic. On the bank of the Thames itself rises the power house of the Westminster Electric Supply Corporation, a handsome modern edifice in the later Japanese style. Close by are the commodious premises of the Imperial Tobacco Company, while at no great distance the Chelsea Gas Works add a striking feature of rotundity. Passing northward, one observes Westminster Bridge, notable as a principal station of the underground railway. This station and the one next above it, the Charing Cross one, are connected by a wide thoroughfare called Whitehall. One of the best American drug stores is here situated. The upper end of Whitehall opens into the majestic and spacious Trafalgar Square.

Here are grouped in imposing proximity the offices of the Canadian Pacific and other railways, the International Sleeping Car Company, the Montreal Star, and the Anglo-Dutch Bank. Two of the best American barber shops are conveniently grouped near the Square, while the existence of a tall stone monument in the middle of the Square itself enables the American visitors to find them without difficulty.

A little further on one finds one's self in the heart of financial London, that strange and mysterious thing called "the City." Here all the great financial institutions of America—The First National Bank of Milwaukee, The Boatmen's Bank of St. Louis, The Montana Farmers Trust Co., and many others—have either their offices or their agents. The Bank of England—which acts as the London agent of The Montana Farmers Trust Company—and The London County Bank, which represents The People's Deposit Co., of Yonkers, N. Y., are said to be in the neighborhood.

A little beyond the city, and further down the river, the visitor finds this district of London terminating in the gloomy and forbidding Tower, the principal penitentiary of the city. Here Queen Victoria was imprisoned for many years.

Excellent gasoline can be had at the American Garage, immediately north of the Tower, where motor repairs of all kinds are also carried on.

These, however, are but the superficial pictures of London, gathered by the eye of the tourist. A far deeper meaning is found in the examination of the great historic monuments of the city. The principal ones of these are the Tower of London (just mentioned), the British Museum and Westminster Abbey. No visitor to London should fail to see these. Indeed, he ought to feel that his visit to England is wasted unless he has seen them. I speak strongly on the point because I feel strongly on it. To my mind there is something about the grim fascination of the historic Tower, the cloistered quiet of the Museum, and the majesty of the ancient Abbey, which will make it the regret of my life that I didn't see any one of the three.

The Tower of London I most certainly intended to inspect. Each day, after the fashion of every tourist, I wrote for myself a little list of things to do, and I always put the Tower of London on it. No doubt the reader knows the kind of little list that I mean. It runs:

1. Go to bank.
2. Buy a shirt.
3. National Picture Gallery.
4. Razor blades.
5. Tower of London.
6. Soap.

This itinerary, I regret to say, was never carried out in full. I was able at times to go to the bank and buy a shirt in a single morning; at other times I was able to buy razor blades and almost to find the National Picture Gallery. Meantime I was urged on all sides by my London acquaintances not to fail to see the Tower. "There's a grim satisfaction about the place," they said, "you mustn't miss it." I am quite certain that in due course of time I should have made my way to the Tower but for the fact that I made a fatal discovery.

When a Londoner says, "Have you seen the Tower of London?" the answer is, "No, and neither have you."

Take the parallel case of the British Museum. Here is a place that is a veritable treasure house. A repository of some of the most priceless historical relics to be found upon the earth. It contains, for instance, the famous Papyrus Manuscript of Thotmes II of the first Egyptian dynasty, a thing known to scholars all over the world as the oldest extant specimen of what can be called writing; indeed, one can here see the actual evolution (I am quoting from a work of reference, or at least from my recollection of it) from the ideographic cuneiform to the phonetic syllabic script. Every time I have read about that manuscript and have happened to be in Orillia (Ontario) or Hannibal (Mo.), or any such place, I have felt that I would be willing to take a whole trip to England to have five minutes at the British Museum, just five, to look at that papyrus. The first time I went by it in a taxi, I felt quite a thrill. "Inside those walls," I thought to myself, "is the manuscript of Thotmes II." The next time I actually stopped the taxi. "Is that the British Museum?" I asked the driver. "I think it is something of the sort, sir," he said. I hesitated. "Drive me," I said, "to where I can buy safety razor blades."

The Abbey, I admit, is indeed majestic. I did not intend to miss going into it. But I felt, as so many tourists have, that I wanted to enter it in the proper frame of mind. But by bad luck I never struck both the frame of mind and the Abbey at the same time.

But the Londoners, after all, in not seeing their own wonders, are only like the rest of the world. The people who live in St. Louis never go to see the Mississippi River; people in Cleveland don't know which is Mr. Rockefeller's house; and people live and even die, in New York without going up to the top of the Woolworth Building.

No description of London would be complete without a reference, however brief, to the singular salubrity and charm of the London climate. This is seen at its best during the autumn and winter months. The climate of London, and indeed of England generally, is due to the influence of the Gulf Stream. The way it works is thus: The Gulf Stream, as it nears the shores of the British Isles and feels the propinquity of Ireland, rises into the air, turns into soup, and comes down on London.

At times the soup is thin, and is, in fact, little more than a mist; at other times it has the consistency of a thick Potage St. Germain. London people are a little sensitive on the point, and flatter their atmosphere by calling it a fog; but it is not; it is soup. The notion that no sunlight ever gets through, and that in the London winter people never see the sun is, of course, a ridiculous error, circulated, no doubt, by the jealousy of foreign nations. I have myself seen the sun plainly visible in London, without the aid of glasses, on a November day, in broad daylight; and again one night, about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, I saw the sun distinctly appear through the clouds.

The whole subject of daylight in the London winter is, however one which belongs rather to the [illegible]

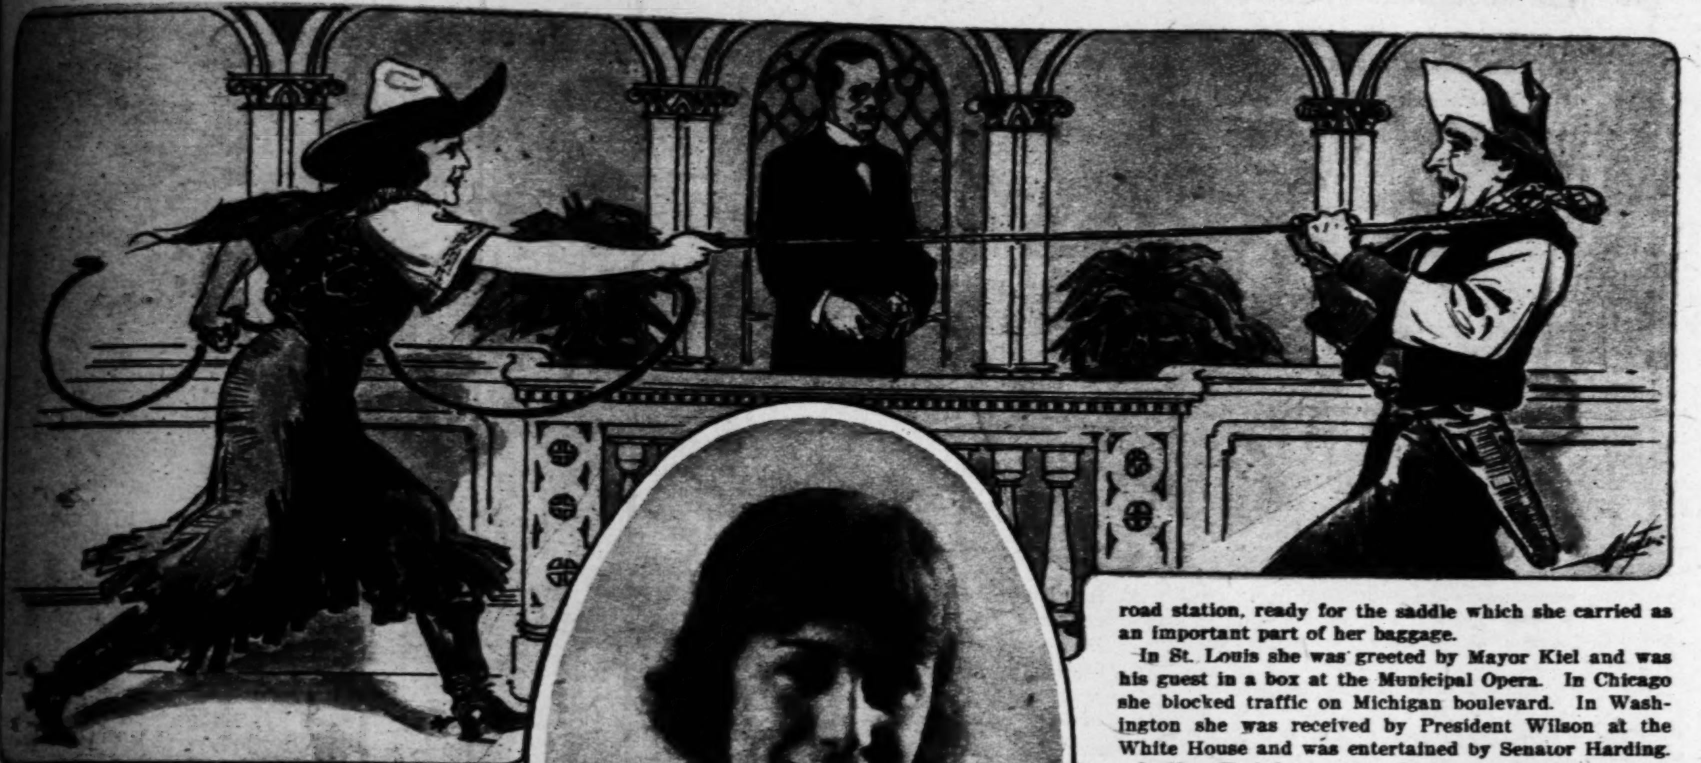
THE UNUSUAL ROMANCE OF "MISS WYOMING" WHO HAS CHOSEN HUSBAND WITH WESTERN BRAND



Was welcomed all over the country as "Miss Wyoming" after a round-up poster had made her features familiar—Received at the White House and entertained by Senators and Governors—Made her biggest hit in New York when she rode her pony into a hotel lobby—Expressed her preference for Western men and kept the faith :: ::

When she was "Miss Wyoming."

THE bronco-busting West has lost its trademark. "Miss Wyoming" is no more. She is "Mrs. Wyoming" now.

Recent press dispatches announcing that Miss Helen Bonham of Cheyenne had become Mrs. Joseph Kremke of Laramie marked the conclusion of an interesting and unusual public career, in the course of which this young woman became known all over the country as the symbol and trade mark of her native State. She was first known as the original of the beautiful cowgirl on her State's official poster announcing its Frontier Days celebration at Cheyenne in the summer of 1920. After the poster had made her famous as the human trade mark of the West, she was introduced to the East when the Governor of Wyoming sent her as his personal representative and courier to extend invitations to Governors of States and Mayors of cities to attend the big "round-up" which was a feature of the Frontier Days celebration.

It was while on this mission that the cowgirl courier said:

"I like Eastern men, but they are altogether different from the ones in the West. They are more clever and they talk more—but when a Western man tells you something you know he has his brand on it, and he means it. When I choose it will be from the West."

She has kept the faith.

Like every other place, Cheyenne has its smart set—and others. It has a fashionable side of town and "across the tracks." Miss Bonham, when not out on the range or competing in some Western rodeo, lived with her aged parents in an humble cottage and had no pretensions to social distinction.

When, in commemoration of the silver anniversary of the famous Cheyenne sports, Wyoming ordered an official poster, an Eastern designer was commissioned to make it.

The artist arrived in Cheyenne with the poster complete except for its principal figure, which was to be that of a cowgirl, "Miss Wyoming," drawing aside a curtain to reveal a bucking bronco and its rider. It had been stipulated that a real Wyoming girl must be the model. Several of the best known society girls of the Wyoming capital were asked to pose, but for one or another reason they refused. Then Miss Bonham, who could qualify as a real cowgirl, was suggested. When the artist saw her he went no further.

The poster was displayed all over the country, and "Miss Wyoming" became famous, greatly to the chagrin of the young women who had refused to pose. This feeling of regret for a lost opportunity was increased later when it was decided that "Miss Wyoming" should be sent to the cities of the East as courier of Gov. Carey to present official invitations to the President, to Governors, Mayors and other notables. Visions of receptions at the White House and at gubernatorial mansions brought forth protests.

"She is not socially prominent," said some of those who had let the chance slip through their fingers. "One of us should be made 'Miss Wyoming' now." But the choice remained unchanged.

The Governor, State and round-up officials saw Miss Bonham off.

She wore her cowgirl regalia as the official uniform of Wyoming's ambassador. At every city, by pre-arrangement, she found a cow pony waiting at the railroad station, ready for the saddle which she carried as an important part of her baggage.

In St. Louis she was greeted by Mayor Kiel and was his guest in a box at the Municipal Opera. In Chicago she blocked traffic on Michigan boulevard. In Washington she was received by President Wilson at the White House and was entertained by Senator Harding.

In New York her entry and reception were most spectacular. The waiting crowd was so great that her pony was taken to the back entrance of the Pennsylvania station to avoid it, and even then it took the combined efforts of police and a husky cowpuncher escort to clear a way to the McAlpin Hotel, where again the crowds almost mobbed her in their enthusiasm and curiosity. Like a true Westerner, she wouldn't leave her pony to the mercies of the stampede outside, and, taking the sidewalk at a jump, she rode pell-mell through the doorway and up to the desk, with the crowd at her pony's heels.

Before she could dismount, it caught her, to her dismay, but an open elevator offered refuge, and into it went horse and rider.

"Up," she said to the astonished operator, who managed only to stammer out:

"How far?"

"All the way," was the reply, and up they went, girl and bronco together, all the way to the roof, out on which she rode for her first view of the metropolis from the saddle, 26 floors above Broadway!

The stunt captured New York's imagination and love of the bizarre as thoroughly as did Miss Wyoming personally. Gen. Coleman Dupont entertained her, Mayor Hylan met her in the middle of City Hall Square to offer her the freedom of the city. Society, fashionable women's clubs—everyone demanded her, until it was necessary to install a social secretary to sort out her invitations. The Girl Scouts gave a field day in Central Park in her honor, and she could not move out of the hotel without instant recognition and the gathering of traffic-blocking crowds. In fact, for several days her ponies were kept stabled in the McAlpin checkroom, as it was impossible to mount outside without the aid of the police, and she would get on in the lobby and ride out the front door.

Her success was repeated at Pittsburg, where she was appointed an honorary member of the City Council after a reception by the Mayor, and given a desk at its meeting.

But nothing in the East compared with her reception when back in her own country. In Denver the Governor of Colorado welcomed her as the West's most illustrious daughter, and in Cheyenne her home town turned out en masse.

And all this was but a beginning. She was naturally queen of the famous Frontier Days roundup, and, fulfilling the inscription on her poster, official greeter of the many celebrities attending it. She was constantly called upon to represent her State at celebrations and official affairs. The American Legion had her as its guest to represent the West at its annual convention in Kansas City last year. The Kiwanis Clubs took her to its convention in Toronto in the same capacity, and still the requests for her presence everywhere poured in.

Of course, there were suitors, dozens of them, all aspiring to the one remaining role in this modern Cinderella's romance. Joseph Kremke was among them.

The young Westerner had seen her pictures, scores of them, in the papers. He went to Cheyenne, saw her at the roundup, and the original looked better to him than the pictures. Typical Western modesty pre-

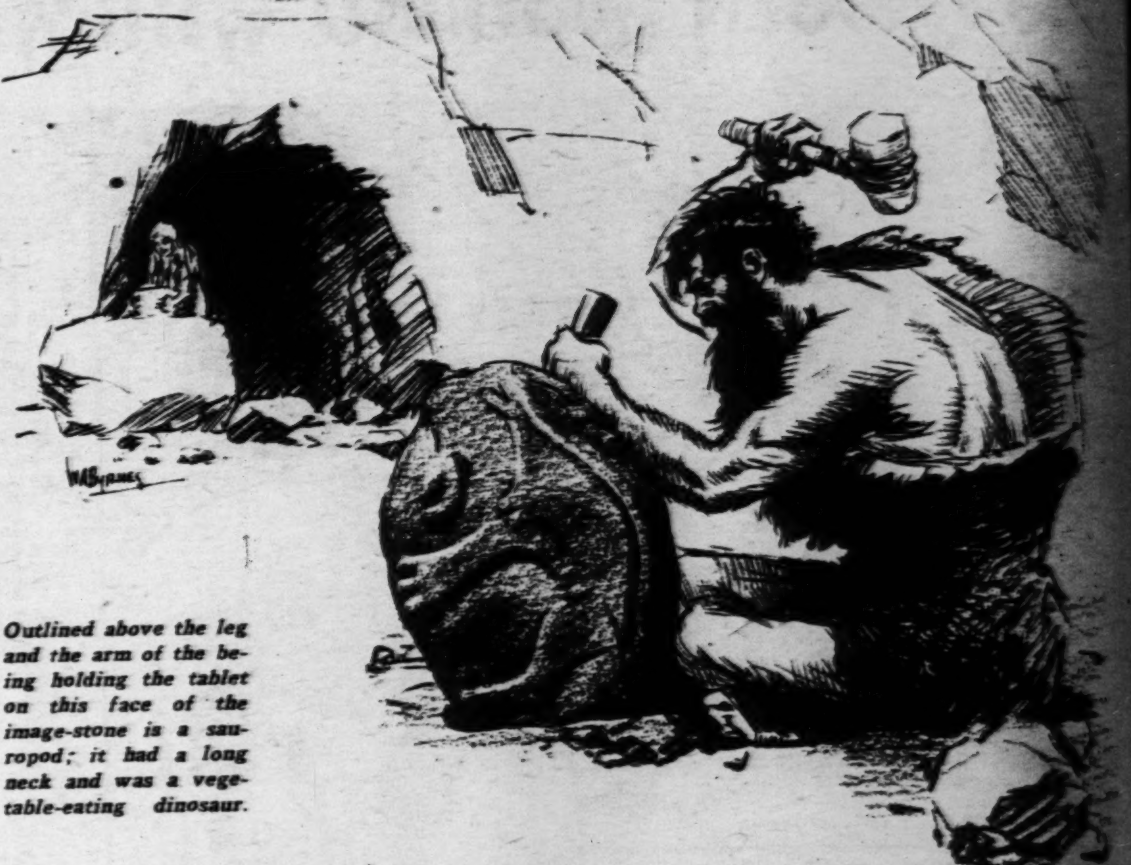
The Sphinx-Riddle of the Colorado Rock

Is this carved stone dug up near Denver the greatest archeological "find" made in America, or is it a clever fake like the Cardiff giant?—Scientists unable as yet to say whether it antedates the oldest known records of prehistoric man or is merely a "plant" :: :: ::



Outlined above the leg and the arm of the being holding the tablet on this face of the image-stone is a sauropod; it had a long neck and was a vegetable-eating dinosaur.

WHETHER the flat-faced, flat-nosed gentleman of the solemn smile, seen herewith as the slanting upper surface of a big chunk of blue granite, is a carving by prehistoric man or merely another fake "plant" like the celebrated Cardiff Giant, science not yet has determined. Savants are busy about the matter. They want to know. They have eager thirst for the truth. They are delving deeply, therefore, into the lore of archeology, in the hope of learning definitely whether this most recent and possibly most remarkable "find" is a mere modern fake or a super-ancient fact extraordinary.

The stone-image face, with, of course, the rest of the stone, was unearthed recently by W. L. Chalmers on his home place in the Grand Lake district in Colorado. Chalmers was enlarging an irrigation reservoir on his homestead when the pick struck this carved stone, about six feet below the surface.

The pick made no imprint. There was not the slightest chipping, not even a faint scar. Scientists who have examined the granite image declare that through changes in its consistency the rock had become harder than steel.

"It would be impossible," aver geologists who have seen it, "to make these carvings today by rubbing or chipping with flint instruments; the granite is quite too hard for that process to be successful."

This is an argument for the antiquity of the image, which is 14 inches high, nine inches across the tablet seen below the human face, and about 12 inches through to the back. Its 66 pounds make a hard lift for the average ditcher. It was one of the average ditchers who first struck pick against the granite and told Chalmers that he had dug up a queer-looking rock with peculiar carvings on its several faces.

"Some baby, too!" panted the digger as he heaved the stone up out of the excavation and turned it over and over.

"And quite probably," said Homesteader Chalmers, whose mind has a scientific slant, "a very old, old, old baby, at that."

After the discovery of the mystery stone Chalmers lost interest for the time being in his irrigation reservoir. Waters could wait, but inquiry into the authenticity of this prehistoric visitant from a most remote past in the prehistory of the human race must go forward forthwith. The homesteader began spreading the news of his unexpected pick-up. Serious-minded men not only in Colorado scientific institutions, but at far-distant points, took immediate and avid interest. Presently the carved block of granite was the subject of eager inquiry from many important quarters.

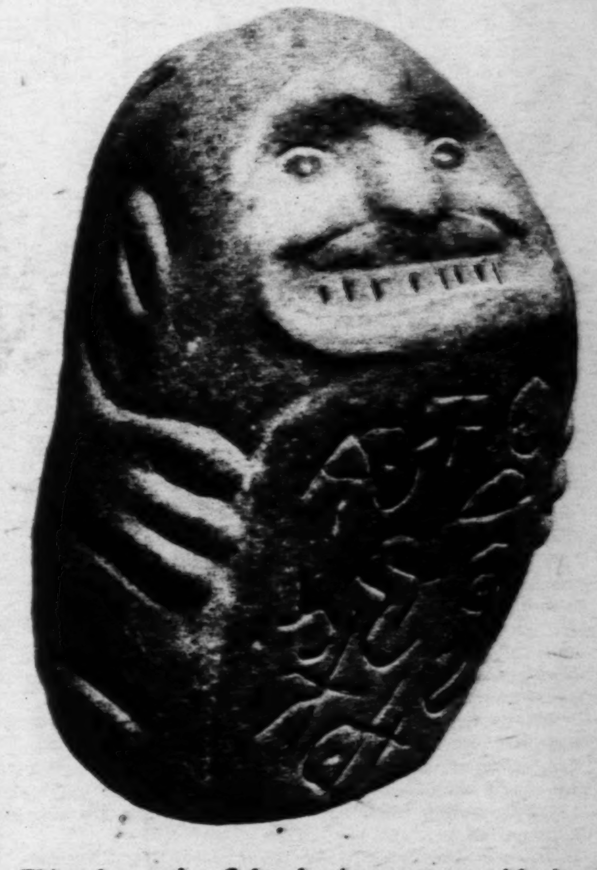
One of the natural-history experts who have had early opportunity to study the stone is J. Allard Jeancon, curator of the Colorado Historical and Natural History Society. Formerly he served as special archeologist for the Bureau of American Ethnology at Washington.

"If this stone can be proved genuine," said Jeancon, "it is the biggest find in all anthropological research, and antedates anything on the American continent going to establish the remote antiquity of man. I never have seen such remarkable outlines of dinosaurs and mastodons."

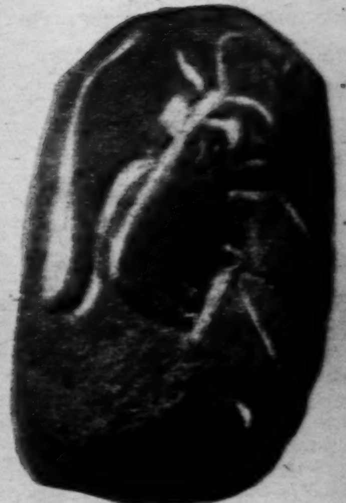
This allusion is to the carvings on the elongated sides of the stone. One of these represents a sauropod, according to Jeancon; this animal, when it existed millions of years ago, had a long neck and was a vegetable-eating dinosaur. The figure is seen above the arm and leg of the being that holds the rock tablet portrayed by the carver. There is also a figure of a carnivorous dinosaur of the American Cretaceous period, having a long tail. Beneath it is engraved a huge mastodon. This beast lived in a period later than that of the dinosaur.

Curator Jeancon's appraisal of this stone as "the biggest find in all anthropological research," predicated, of course, upon the assumption that the relic is genuine, no doubt will find disputants amongst scientific men. But his additional statement that, always providing it be genuine, the stone "antedates anything on the American continent going to establish the remote antiquity of man" is not so difficult of acceptance, according to those who know something about such evidences of the human past.

If the Jeancon observation thus expressed in superlatives be accurate, it means that this Colorado rock carving is older than the huge dunes heaped up on the site of St. Louis and across the river by the races known as the Mound Builders; older than the builders of the cave dwellings and the mesa cities in the southwestern part of the United States; older than any of the various marvels of antiquity found in Mexico, Peru and other countries to the south.



This shows the Colorado image-stone with its Sphinx-like human face, beneath which are hieroglyphic characters not known to savants.



This carving on the rock shows a carnivorous dinosaur of the American Cretaceous period, having a long tail; beneath is a huge mastodon, which lived in an era later than the dinosaur.

According to erudite men who have seen the Colorado stone, it represents early man sitting and holding a tablet with his hands that have but three fingers. Was man in those ancient ages a three-fingered animal? That is one interesting query aroused by the carving. On the tablet are hieroglyphic cuttings which, in some degree, resemble signs of the Aztecs of Mexico, the Ute Indians of Colorado and the Mormon Gentiles of Illinois, Missouri and Utah.

"If the rock is genuine," scientists say, "then all these are copied from the symbols made by preglacial man; if not, then the imitation is unusually compelling."

Well, who knows? Nobody, for sure. However, that is not to insinuate that nobody ever will know for sure. Chalmers says that scientists in New York, Washington and Santa Fe, the latter being a most important center for American archeological and ethnological inquiry, are trying to decipher these hieroglyphlike characters from photographic reproductions.

Just here is introduced a most engaging speculation, carrying a thrill for the layman as for the adept. Are these characters the very first to be found of a kind of human writing as old as or older than the hieroglyphic records carved and painted on relics of ancient Egypt? Those characters, finally deciphered just a century ago last year by the diligent young Frenchman Champollion, are read now with comparative ease by all competent Egyptologists; and they have opened to modern knowledge a vast field of information with regard to the Egypt of 3000 to 5000 years ago, which until a brief hundred years ago was a sealed volume.

Can it be that the mysterious cuttings on one of the surfaces of this Colorado image stone hold the key that may unlock to modern minds a mass of definite knowledge of the prehistoric human race on the American continent? If so, will the revelations go to prove that, as some students contend, the human race had its beginnings in what we know as the New World, instead of in the Old World? If the queer characters can be deciphered, what revisions of American archeological works must be made? What readjustments must take place in the minds of scientists the world over? The line of conjecture is virtually limitless both as to length and the interesting offshoots along the way.

The mammoth animals outlined in the Colorado stone were contemporaneous with the Cro-Magnon period. It is idle to attempt to place that period with any great degree of accuracy as to the number of millions of years ago that it ended. It may be stated that it came along at about the end of the Pleistocene period. In France there is a cave called Cro-Magnon. There, in 1858, were discovered incomplete skeletons of a man, a woman and a child—apparently the whole family. Archeologists and ethnologists who studied those skeletons and of others found later not far away were in fairly friendly agreement as to the general position of the Cro-Magnon people with regard to the million-yeared era in which they lived. They were long-faced and flat-nosed. In respect to flatness they resemble the human face carved on the Colorado stone. Curator Jeancon says that the flat nose generally is associated with a race preceding the Aztecs.

Years ago there was a most persistent query, "How old is Ann?" Now there bids fair to be a no less persistent

Running Away From a Quarter of a Million a Year

Pearl White who has provided screen thrills for nine years now thinks a little rest would be better than much wealth—Has her own philosophy about the burden of a large income—Where a movie actress' money goes—How the tradesman and the publicity promoter cut in on the big salaries

Pearl White, ready to sail for Europe where she hopes to find rest.

PEARL WHITE, whirlwind heroine of the screen, is going to "get away from it all," including a galling contract which she says has netted her $250,000 a year for the last five years. She is packing up her things and will soon be off for Europe, leaving her high-salaried job behind her. Though she will no longer sign her name to one of the fattest payrolls ever paid to a woman screen star she says she will not regret the passing of those golden paydays and will welcome the first chance she has had in nine years to take a rest. A woman correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine here records her impressions of the vivid Pearl, gained in a recent interview.

By RUTH WATERBURY

I SOUGHT out Pearl White to learn from her what nine years of fame and fortune may mean to a woman. About her apartment, which is located in that section of Manhattan usually termed its "heart," though, actually, it is much closer to its spinal column, Fifth avenue, there was none of the grandeur that might have been expected.

On the ground floor was a modiste's shop. Beside the door was a cluster of nondescript looking bells. In answer to my ring, one of those clicking doors admitted me.

The hall was dingy. It belonged to the golden oak period. The stairs which I climbed for two flights were dully carpeted. I knocked at a grimy door and a maid, Swiss, I should judge from her accent and glacial exterior, told me I might wait in the kitchen.

I waited, together with the butcher and the milkman. Pearl regarded us, I feel sure, as an assortment of necessary evils. The door into her bedroom stood ajar and I could catch glimpses of tumbled clothing, mahogany furniture and velvet carpets. I looked for evidences of the engulfing of that yearly two hundred and fifty thousand. There were several of them.

There in the kitchen, fixing me with her baleful eye, was the Swiss maid. In the bedroom was another, very French, this one, sewing as rapidly as skilled fingers could move. The kitchen was elaborately tiled and every conceivable type of aluminum cooking utensil was hanging about. The bedroom was littered high with boxes, hat boxes, suit boxes, shoe boxes. A wardrobe trunk, spilling highly colored contents, stood open. There was a dressing table, powder-drenched, with a triple mirror. There was a full-length pier glass. Despite these things, however, the room remained strangely unfeminine.

Suddenly there was a stirring in the outer hall. Pearl was approaching. The butcher and the milkman and I sat very still. The door opened and she whirled in.

She is amazingly girlish, straight and slim and seeming smaller than she does on the screen. She wore a straight box coat suit of blue serge, slippers with [illegible] heels, a diamond anklet under a stocking of [illegible] gauze, a tiny red toque and scarf. She looked at me with eyes as hard and glittering as sapphires.

"Come in, butcher," she called as she moved to her bedroom.

The butcher entered the presence. He presented his bill. Two hundred-dollar notes exchanged hands and he left. The milkman followed him. Another hundred-dollar note and he disappeared. She held the door open for me and grinned. "Enter," she said. "Get it off your chest and make it snappy." She brushed a hat box off a chair and waved a permissive hand toward it.

"What do you do with your money?" I barked.

"Well, you've seen," she retorted, striding up and down the room. "What those sharks don't get, the Government does. I've been getting big money for five years now, but those were the five years when the Government sank its teeth into us the hardest. Gee, I'd like to know how this country would have financed itself without Hollywood. I got $250,000 a year, all right, but the Government gets about 65 per cent of it. You might make the income tax, but when you have to pay a State tax, too, you're finished. Taxing a banker on income isn't so bad—he's got his principal behind it—but with us movie stars, principal and income are the same thing and with the taxes we can't ever have either [illegible]

"That's the big item, but next you've got to remember that none of us ever had anything before we got on the screen—at least no one I know of—none of the big ones, certainly. Well, here we go and acquire this huge earning capacity, and the size of our heads begins to match it. You begin to think, 'I certainly am the original knockout,' and when somebody comes along and asks for a thousand for this or a hundred for that do you hesitate? You do not. You hand it out with all the magnificence of one of the Pharaohs tossing a jewel to the mob, and you feel so important you ought to be hit with a brick.

"Then you go to shop. Take yourself. If you want to buy a pair of shoes for $5, you can. I can't. Some clerk spots me and says, 'Those shoes are $25, Miss White,' and what do I do? I buy 'em. If I don't I get the rep all over of being a tightwad. It costs me, or any other big movie star, 10 times as much for the simplest things as it would for the average person. Our salaries have been advertised so much—sometimes they are right, often they are exaggerated—but, anyhow, everybody that comes in contact with us decides to get theirs while we still have a flicker left in us.

"Advertising. Think of that. Some idiot is always getting up a book or a magazine or something and blowing in and saying: 'I can put your picture in this for a thousand dollars.' And if you refuse the thousand, they leave your picture out but take up the space panning you."

"But now I am out of it," she cried, raising one hand high above her head. "Do you realize that this is the first time in nine years that I haven't had my name signed to a piece of paper tying me up to someone for something? Free! I can't believe it's true.

"I'm leaving for France just as soon as I can. I'm nearly blind with Kleig lights. I don't know whether I'll get my sight back or not. But anyhow, I'll get a rest.

"You remember Eve La Valliere? She deserted Paris and the burning bulbs, you remember, and went into a convent. Maybe I'll be like her. She's never come out, and she's nearly blind, too.

"They want me to do a play in London—Charlie Cochran, of course. I may. I don't know. I don't know anything except that I'm free. Get this straight, old dear, the 250,000 yearly bucks aren't all gone. I've got enough to live on for the rest of my life if I live easy. Otherwise, I'd have to stick it with the movies, and that would drive me crazy. If I had to do another month of them I'd be stone blind.

"Then Arthur Hopkins is talking about my coming back here and doing a play under his management. I'd like that. But I want to rest." She jerked back and forth across the room. The maid intruded and she hurled a mass of French at her discreet back. The maid fled. I observed Pearl's great four-posted bed. It was 5:30 in the afternoon, but it was still unmade. It was a tumbled mass of linen and silk. On either side of it stood two huge altar candles. Over the head of it hung an enormous crucifix, fully four feet in length.

From the outer rooms of the apartment came voices, high-pitched, shrill, laughing, the usual troop of hangers-on of a celebrity. All waiting, I presumed, for interviews of one sort or another. Heavy clouds of cigarette smoke floated in over the black-brown hangings at the door. Pearl was still hurling herself back and forth, kicking impatiently at boxes that got in her way. The telephone rang sharply and she jerked the receiver down, shouted, "You've got the wrong number," and slammed it up again.

"I'd like to play with Hopkins," she repeated, "but I'm not sure. If I do a play in London, of course, they won't let me act. All they will want is American pep. I'd like to do a Pauline Lord sort of thing, but no chance of that over there.

"Pep—pep—that's all anybody wants of Pearl White. And I'm so tired. Tired of the whole outfit. Tired of being swung from cliffs and dropped from burning houses down into sewers. Tired of interviews and photographers. Tired of butchers and milkmen and fool maids. Gee, there's nothing I'm not tired of.

"Money! I've had it and it doesn't mean much of anything. Rest and contentment, that's all there is in the world.

"But, say, gosh, I'm sorry to rush you this way. I'd like to talk to you and you're nice to bother with me. You don't need to go out the kitchen way. Come out the front. There's a jam yelping in there for me, too, or I wouldn't let you go this instant. It was a shame, parking you out there in the back, but that maid doesn't know anything. That is another thing that takes my money. But come and see me again some day."

I made my way out, fumbling in my pocket for a nickel. The little side street seemed fairly cloaked in a cathedral silence. Overhead the stars were twinkling serenely. I felt a sudden contentment. All things are relative. What is wealth, anyway?

LONDON'S NEWEST CRIME MYSTERY

First victim was Gen. Sir William Horwood, Chief Commissioner of Metropolitan Police, who ate one piece of candy and almost died from arsenical poisoning—Now the new Home Secretary in Bonar Law's Cabinet has received a death-package addressed in the same hand :: ::

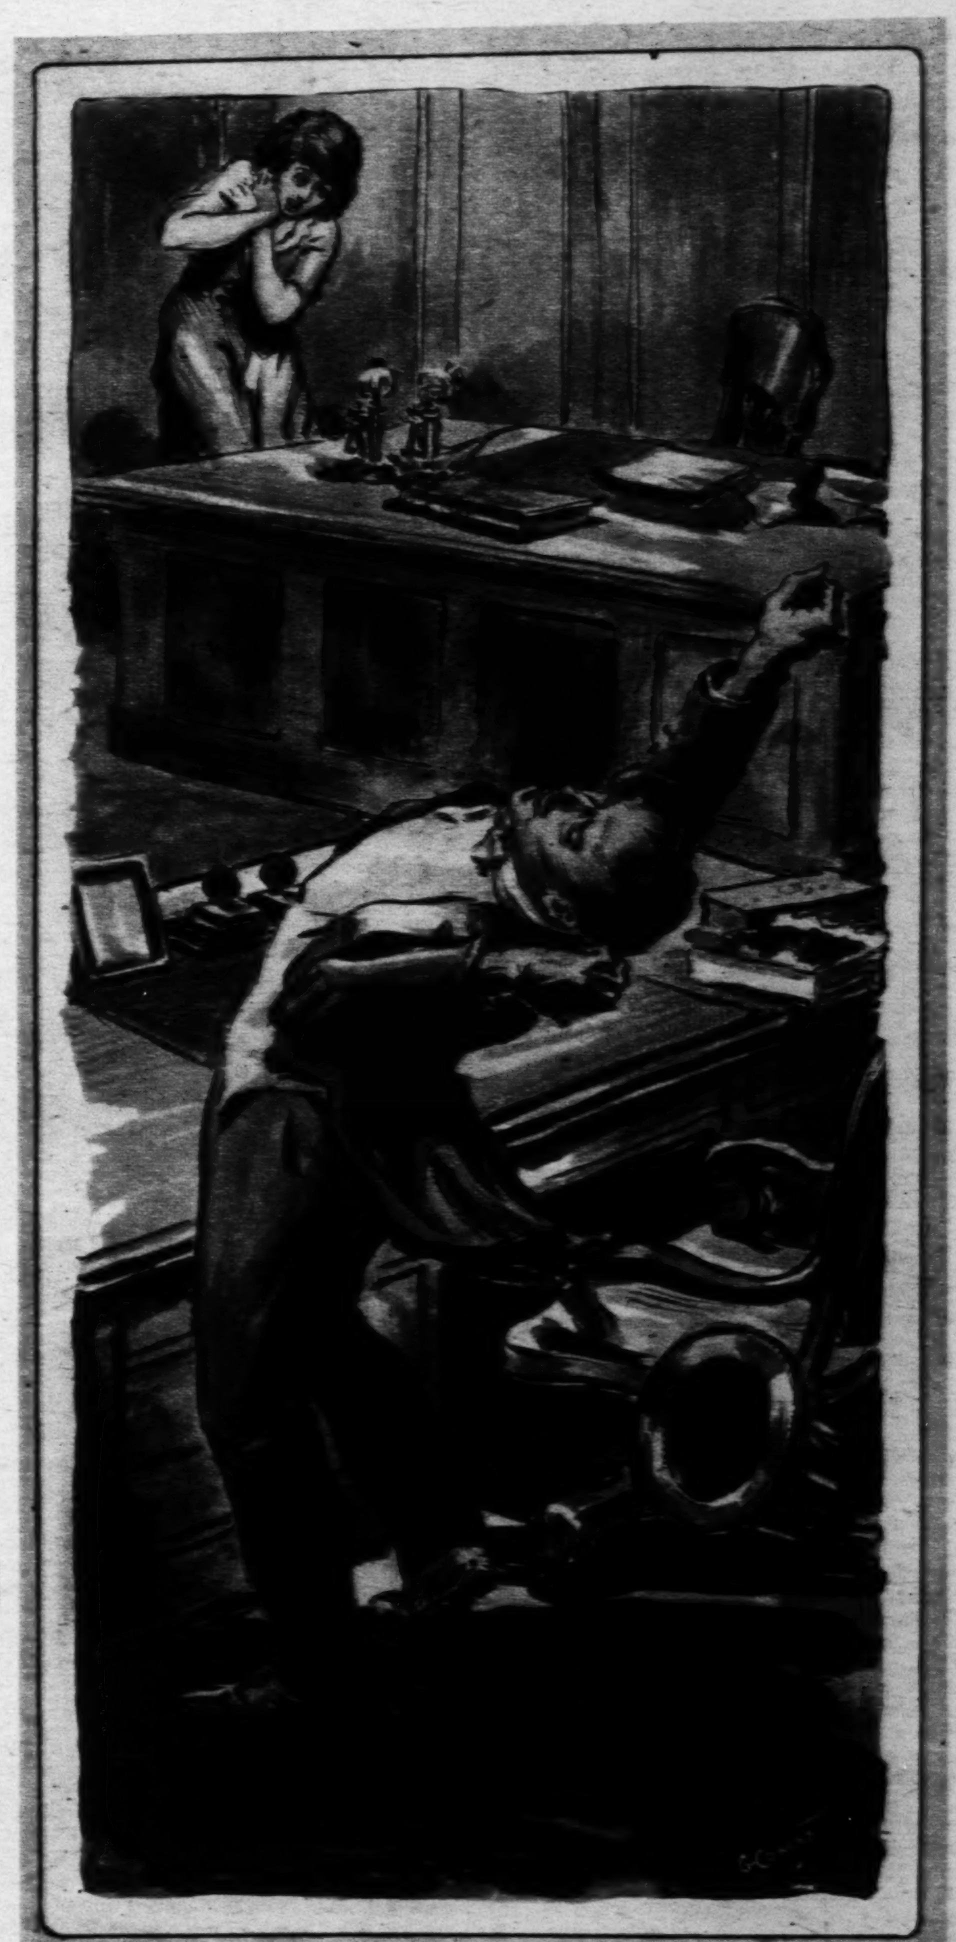
WHEN Sir Basil Thomson, former head of Scotland Yard, was in St. Louis last month, telling the public how comparatively easy it is for the astute operatives in England's famous official detective bureau to solve crime mysteries, Scotland Yard for several weeks had been mystified completely by a crime which very nearly deprived the metropolitan police force in London of its distinguished chief.

Moreover, on almost the very night that Sir Basil was entertaining St. Louisans with comparisons between the actual crime solutions of Scotland Yard men and the fictional ones of Sherlock Holmes, the same person who sent poisoned chocolates to Gen. Sir William Horwood, Commissioner in command of the metropolitan police, was mailing another box of poisoned chocolates to the Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, Home Secretary in the Cabinet of Andrew Bonar Law, England's new Premier.

Sir William Horwood ate one of the chocolates posted early in November, collapsed in his office chair at Scotland Yard, and for nearly a month was so ill from arsenical poisoning that doctors despaired of his life. The Home Secretary, having nothing officially to do with the police, was warier than Sir William. Mr. Bridgeman, instead of sampling his packet of sweets, anonymously contributed, sent the unsolicited gift to Scotland Yard for use in further pursuit of a solution for the mystery.

Analysis of the candy showed in each case that the chocolate exterior of each piece had been opened at the bottom, enough arsenic inserted in the sugary interior to kill several men and the openings resealed somewhat clumsily.

Since the first posting of poisoned chocolates more than two months ago, with its well-nigh fatal results, set Scotland Yard by its ears and caused all prominent British officials to stop, look, listen and make full inquiry before they ate, a number of similar packages have been mailed to other prominent men in England.



When Sir William Horwood, dressed for the Lord Mayor's banquet, collapsed from arsenic poisoning after eating a chocolate mailed by "Molly." His private secretary, Miss Enid Drysdale, looks on with horror.

Apparently just one definite fact has been adduced from the mystery. Exceedingly simple is that fact. Neither Scotland Yard detectives nor the marvelous Sherlock Holmes had to be called in to isolate that simple fact, which is merely that the similar handwriting on the outside of the several packages of poisoned candy indicates that one and the same person prepared them all.

There is, to be sure, some evidence to the effect that two mysterious females, a young woman and a young girl, had to do with the mailing of the poison packages. The young girl, it may be said, has emerged out of the midnight murk of the mystery to the point of taking a rather vague, indefinite form, so that Scotland Yard may hazard a guess at her age which will not fall short of or overreach the mark by more than a couple of years.

Beyond these trifling clews Scotland Yard appears to have discovered nothing of importance looking toward solution of the baffling case. Dr. Conan Doyle, when "The Adventure of the Poisoned Chocolates" began, was at sea on his return home from the United States, where he had been chasing spooks, fairies and American dollars, and so Sherlock Holmes was not called in consultation.

Scotland Yard, ordinarily reticent until a mystery has been solved, is extraordinarily reticent in the present instance. In fact, the impression is abroad that Scotland Yard is considerably miffed, not to say peeved, because of its apparent inability to go out and get the girl—or whoever it was—that mailed the sweets which almost carried off the distinguished and decorated soldier at the head of the metropolitan police.

Incidentally, persons in England who receive through the mails or otherwise packets of confectionery or other titbit edibles have become exceedingly careful since the poison-chocolate mystery began to spread the fear of horrible death the land.

Before the end of November admitted at Scotland Yard police were at a dead end in vestigations. An appeal for the general public was sent headquarters. "Find the the girl." The general last accounts, had not found "Find Molly for us," pleads Yard; "we can't, it seems."

"Molly" is the sole That name was used in a sage of sardonic good cheer in one of the poison packages.

Gen. Sir William Horwood, Scotland Yard Chief, who ate a poisoned chocolate.

Miss Drysdale, who handed it to her chief. Sir William did not partake of the confection at once. He laid the package aside. In the evening, after he had dressed to attend the Lord Mayor's banquet at the Guildhall, he reappeared in his office, where he ate one of the chocolates.

The hero of many battles in the World War narrowly escaped death by means of an apparently harmless piece of candy. Shortly after he swallowed the sweet he was attacked with convulsions. He fell to the floor. Officials who rushed into the room found him apparently at the point of death. The chief surgeon and the chief physician to the metropolitan police were summoned by telephone. At first they attributed the Chief's seizure to an attack of heart disease. Miss Drysdale was present, but did not associate the seizure with the box of candy, so the medical men had no means of knowing that their patient had, quite unwittingly, taken poison. Sir William himself was unable to explain; in fact, it appears that when his terrible pains began he did not attribute them to the chocolate.

The doctors decided that even to remove Sir William from his office room would endanger his life. They began an all-night battle against impending death. At times it seemed that the victim was on the very edge of dissolution. From hour to hour the physicians expected the worst. Measures for relief of his terrible pain were taken, opiates being administered. Through the long night a group of doctors and attendants worked steadily, the patient lying upon a couch. The heart-failure theory still was the only one considered.

After daylight the stricken Commissioner was removed in a motor ambulance to a hospital, where for weeks he lay struggling for life. Finally he began to improve and the danger passed. The first day at the hospital evidence of poisoning was discovered. Then Scotland Yard detectives got busy right at home. They interviewed Miss Drysdale. She had taken one of the chocolates out of the box, she said, but after tasting of it threw it away; it tasted bitter. She had not suspected, however, that it contained poison. When Sir William at last was able to talk, he told the detectives about the sweet he had eaten.

Then the investigation widened. What cunning criminal had dared to pit his or her wits against those of all Scotland Yard? Who could it be that had dared to try to destroy the head of the metropolitan police by such a method?

It developed that Sir William had not known about the chocolate cake sent to his two assistants. Those gentlemen simply had sent the package to the chemist and dismissed the matter from their minds for the time. Chemical report on it had not been received up to the time of Sir William's receipt of the confection addressed to him.

The layman is inclined to marvel that the head of London's police force partook, as would a simple-minded child, of the contents of a package of candy sent through the mails anonymously. Is it not to be assumed that a man capable of managing the police affairs of the world's next-to-largest city should know better? But there are extenuating circumstances. First, Gen. Horwood is a soldier rather than a policeman. His splendid record at the front in the World War brought him into such prominence that the officials of London selected him to head the metropolitan police, in the belief that a military executive was needed there. Second, Sir William had been expecting a packet of candy through the mails. A near relative had written that she was intending to send him, as a little birthday token, a box of chocolates. Consequently the arrival of the anonymous package did not arouse his suspicions.

Scotland Yard reports that when Miss Drysdale handed the parcel-post package to her chief, having opened it, he offered her one of the chocolates. She was not fond of that kind of candy.

"She put it to her lips and just bit it," according to the official report. "Then she put it on her desk and said: 'I won't eat it now, my lunch is on the table.' Then she forgot all about it."

As stated already, Miss Drysdale was present again in the evening when Sir William appeared in evening dress for the banquet. When he was eating his well-nigh fatal confection he remarked to her:

"This chocolate tastes funny."

"Perhaps the walnut is a bit musty," she replied. Then, alluding to the box of chocolates, she asked: "Are they all right?"

"Oh, yes," replied Sir William.

The simple lay mind may be inclined to wonder just why Miss Drysdale did not suspect at once that it was something in the chocolate her chief had eaten that laid him low. She had tasted one, earlier in the day, and found it bitter. Well, like Sir William, the fair secretary is not a detective. When Gen. Horwood suddenly crumpled to the floor in agony she was so upset that for the time she was unable to reason things out. Besides, hadn't the chief said the chocolates were all right?

He had in mind, as told later, the chocolates promised by his relative. So the laugh really is not on Gen. Horwood; if on anybody, it is on Scotland Yard as a detective organization. The unsolved mystery deepens as time flies. Mysterious "Molly" becomes still more mysterious.

The addresses on the several packages of poison, including the one sent more recently to the Home Secretary, were chiefly in hand-printed characters, the writer apparently hoping thus to give no clew as to her handwriting. No doubt is entertained as to the accuracy of the assumption that one person wrote all the addresses. Even in hand-printed characters an undoubted similarity in execution appears.

All handwriting experts are aware that even when a person prints instead of writing words, certain similaritis between the printed and the written character by the same hand are bound to be present. Scotland Yard, being highly competent to have cognizance of this interesting fact, has tried to find a handwriting bearing marks of similarity to the printed addresses. Study of the chirography of various women very hazily suspected in the case has developed exactly nothing. The chirography of "Molly" remains an enigma. That is to say that Scotland Yard has not found a specimen of the ordinary writing done by "Molly." In other words, "Molly" is somebody other than any of the women thus hazily suspected.

Gen. Sir Wyndham Childs, successor to Sir Basil Thomson as Director of Criminal Investigation, which is the detective end of Scotland Yard, has said this:

"I am not at all sure that we are not up against a lunatic, but I am sure that anybody of notoriety or importance should be very careful about parcels which may be received. I do not know what we are up against, but there is no doubt that a lot of persons whose names come before the public in some connection or other are today receiving, if not begging letters, letters threatening their lives. Parcels also are being sent to a large extent, and I am very careful not only to examine the contents of a parcel but the actual opening process itself.

"I do not know whether it was merely a coincidence, or a devilish cunning, that the box of chocolates arrived at the exact moment when the Commissioner was expecting such a birthday present."

The Commissioner's birthday, date of which does not appear in connection with his biographical sketch in "Who's Who," was two days before the poisoned candy reached him. It is interesting to note that the chocolates announced by the relative arrived a few hours after Sir William had partaken of one of the poisoned candies and was in the throes of what seemed for the time his death agonies.

"At the moment," said Sir Wyndham Childs, some weeks ago, "there is still left one little line of inquiry which may result in an arrest."

The public still looks to Scotland Yard for solution of the mystery.

GREATEST EXPLOITS OF CELEBRATE DETECT

IV.—A SCRAP OF PAPER

By William Nelson Taft

"RUBBISH," exclaimed Bill Quinn, tossing aside the section of the Sunday paper devoted to submarines of the more sensational stories from abroad. "Bunk! That's all it is—pure bunk!"

"What's the matter now?" I inquired, wondering what had caused the former secret service operative to become so wrathy. "Somebody claiming that Sherlock Holmes was a better detective than Chief Wilkie, or have they discovered a way to disprove fingerprint evidence?"

"Neither," replied Quinn. "It's just the way they're writing about this Frenchman who killed half a dozen of his wives—referring to him as 'the modern Bluebeard,' 'the criminal of the century' and all that rot."

"Isn't he entitled to any distinction he can get out of such compliments?" I asked. "A jury found him guilty of some 10 or 12 murders and then he went to the guillotine. What more do you want?"

Quinn regarded me for a moment in silence. Then, with a snort that indicated that I didn't know what I was talking about, he asked: "Did you ever hear of Herman W. Mudgett, otherwise known as H. H. Holmes, alias A. C. Hayes, alias George Gordon, alias half a dozen other names? 'Modern Bluebeard'? 'Criminal of a Century'? If those titles were ever earned and paid for by any one man they certainly were by Holmes—for that was the name by which he was best known."

Quinn's monologue had struck a responsive chord in my memory and, rising, I went over to the far wall of his den, or criminal museum, to look at a tiny newspaper clipping which occupied a prominent place in the detective's gallery of relics relating to famous criminal cases—clews, most of them, which had led to the solution of mysteries which had puzzled the police of two continents.

"You're right," chuckled the former Government agent, "that's the one I was referring to. Read what it says."

"'Philadelphia, Oct. 8,'" I read. "'The body of B. F. Perry, a patent attorney of 1316 Callowhill street, was today formally identified as being that of B. F. Pitezel of St. Louis. The identification was completed by H. H. Holmes of Chicago, and the company in which Pitezel had been insured paid the sum of $10,000 to a St. Louis attorney for the dead man.' Not much there," I added.

"No, there isn't," Quinn agreed. "But it proved to be the strongest link of evidence against a master murderer. If it hadn't been for that scrap of paper it is probable that the man who was responsible for the deaths of more than a score of persons would have gone unpunished—that one of the outstanding figures in the catalogue of crime would have failed to meet his just reward. And yet," mused the old detective, "they say there's no such thing as chance—or justice."

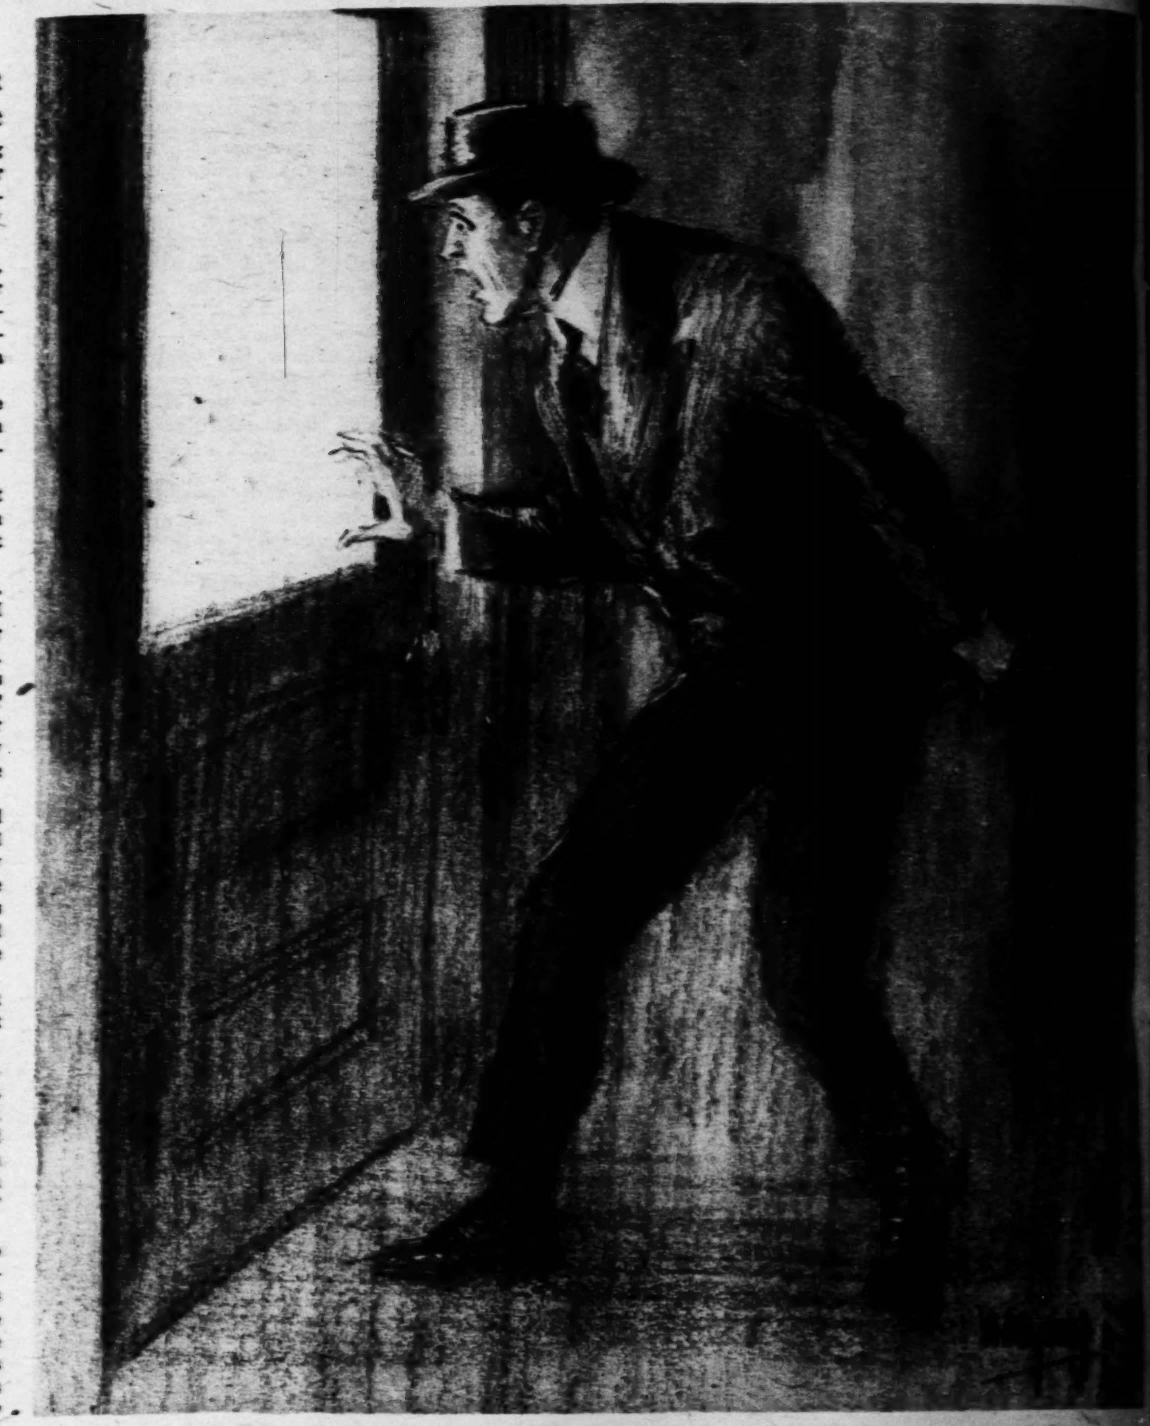
Quinn then settled back in his big armchair and told me the "Holmes story."

* * * * * * * *

To get the proper perspective on the whole affair we'll have to cut back, as they say in the movies, to a month before the Holmes case began to attract nation-wide attention. On Callowhill street, in Philadelphia, between Broad and Thirteenth, there appeared at the time the sign of a man named B. F. Perry, whose placard, "Patents Bought and Sold," sufficed to inform passersby of his business. One morning a man who had an appointment with Perry knocked at the door of his office and received no reply. Puzzled, he knocked again and, still receiving no response, peered through a scratch in the frosted glass and caught a glimpse of a scene which sent him hurrying for the police.

When the door was broken open it was apparent at a glance that some sort of an explosion had taken place. A broken bottle lay beside the body of a man, charred beyond recognition. The end of a burned match was still clutched in the blistered fingers, while the face had been almost totally obliterated by the force of the explosion. Medical examinations showed that death had been practically instantaneous, due to paralysis of the involuntary muscles, and the strong odor of chloroform in the stomach led to the verdict of the Coroner's jury that Perry had met with an accidental death through inhaling flame or chloroform, presumably from bringing a match too close to a bottle containing the anesthetic. After lying in the morgue for 11 days the body was finally buried at the expense of the city, Perry having apparently left no estate beyond a few silver coins in the pockets of his clothes.

Scarcely had the interment taken place, however, when one of the Philadelphia insurance companies received a letter from a St. Louis lawyer, claiming that the man who had been known as B. F. Perry was really B. F. Pitezel of St. Louis, who had been insured in the company to the extent of $10,000. The attorney offered to come to Philadelphia to make the necessary identification and his suggestion was immediately accepted by wire. Then, as an examination of the records showed that Pitezel had taken out his insurance in Chicago and that the only person who had known the dead man when he lived in that city was a certain H. H. Holmes, he, too, was asked to be present at the distinterment of the body.



Puzzled, he knocked again and, still receiving no response, peered through a scratch in the frosted glass and caught a glimpse of a scene which sent him hurrying for the police.

Holmes was the first to reach Philadelphia, and, calling at the office of the insurance company, gave a detailed description of Perry—or Pitezel, as he had known him—laying special emphasis upon a peculiar growth on the back of the man's neck and a blackened, malformed thumbnail. The following day the attorney arrived from St. Louis, accompanied by Alice Pitezel, a daughter of the dead man, who stated that her father had disappeared several years before, and added that she supposed his adoption of the name of Perry had been due to financial difficulties. The next morning Holmes and the attorney met, presumably for the first time, at the mortuary at Potter's Field and Perry's body was exhumed for their inspection.

The medical examiner employed by the insurance company at first claimed that he could find no trace whatever of the identification marks to which Holmes had previously referred and which the lawyer had also mentioned in detailing how Pitezel might be identified.

"May I borrow your knife for a moment?" replied Holmes, stepping forward and pulling up his sleeves in a manner that indicated that he knew precisely what he was doing. Then, after putting on a pair of rubber gloves, he proceeded to remove a warty growth from the neck of the dead man and also called attention to the blackened thumbnail of which he had spoken.

The man who had discovered Perry's body on the floor of his office was also in the little group around the remains, and, as Holmes moved about, this man kept his eyes fixed on the Chicagoan with the tense expression of one who tries to recall a face to his memory. It was not until several days later, however, that he succeeded in catching the thought that had eluded him—Holmes reminded him strongly of a man he had seen in Perry's office several days before the patent attorney had come to his death.

But meanwhile, the insurance company had accepted the identification and a check for $10,000 had been given in full settlement of the claim. The lawyer went back to St. Louis. Holmes departed supposedly for Chicago and the case, to all intents and purposes, was closed by the appearance of an item in the St. Louis papers to the effect that "Perry" had been identified as Pitezel and that the insurance mentioned had been paid to the latter's lawyer.

But, behind the walls of the St. Louis prison there was a man who was destined to offset the calculations of all concerned and to turn an ordinary, commonplace affair into one of the most celebrated cases in the annals of criminal history.

On the evening of the day that the item appeared in the St. Louis papers word was brought to the Warden of the prison that Marion Hedgepeth, a convict who was serving a 20-year sentence for train robbery, wished to speak to him on a matter of the utmost importance.

At the time that this took place it was no easy matter for a man with Hedgepeth's reputation for brutality to gain an audience with the Warden of a prison, no matter on what grounds he might request it. But the convict in question insisted that he had something

THE stories in this series deal with the exploits of 12 world-famous detectives, presented in narrative form, but with all the details of their solutions of baffling crimes precisely as they occurred. They are built around the experiences of such men as William J. Burns, Chief of the United States Secret Service; Supt. John Shore and Inspector Kendall of Scotland Yard; Capt. Grant Williams, Chief of the Bureau of Missing Persons of the New York police; George S. Dougherty, Deputy Commissioner of Police in New York; Inspector Byrnes and Dr. Balthazard, the famous European criminologist. Through the entire series runs the vein of serial interest supplied by the reminiscences of Bill Quinn, lately of the United States Secret Service, who tells these stories in his den.

RATED DETECTIVES: CURIOUS CLEWS WHICH SOLVED BAFFLING CRIMES

which he wished to communicate to the prison authorities and, as he intimated that his news might be the means of gaining wide fame for the man to whom he told it, he was finally admitted to the office of the Warden and roughly ordered to "tell his story and be quick about it."

"What's this you've got up your sleeve, anyhow?" demanded the Warden. "Some poppycock tale about an intended jail break or have you discovered gold under the floor of your cell?"

Hedgepeth's beady eyes shifted as he hesitated. Then, [illegible] overcoming a feeling of hatred for the men who ruled the prison, he growled: "Did you happen to read this morning's paper, Gov'ner?"

"Yes, I did," was the response. "What about it?"

"I just wanted to know if you saw this item, that's all," Hedgepeth answered, producing a crumpled clipping from the inner recesses of his striped suit.

But even after reading the few lines of type several times, the governor of the prison was still at a loss to understand why the convict considered the short Philadelphia dispatch of such great importance.

"Where do I come in on this?" demanded the prison official. "Was this man Perry an escaped lifer or something of the sort? I don't remember ever having heard of him."

"Don't guess you did, Gov'nor. I never did myself. He's not the one I'm thinking about, anyhow. It's the other guy—the one the paper speaks of as H. H. Holmes that I'm interested in."

"Well, what about it? Don't beat around the bush all day! Come to the point."

"Do you remember a feller who was in here last summer under the name of H. H. Howard?" Hedgepeth asked.

"Doin' time for a fraud case, wasn't he?" asked one of the prison guards.

"That's the man," Hedgepeth went on.

"He was in with me for a while an' he told me about a plan he had for beatin' an insurance company out of $10,000, and he promised me"—here the convict's eyes narrowed until there was only the barest slit perceptible—"that if I would give him the name of a lawyer who would help him out he would see that I got $500 out of the deal.

"I told him I didn't want to get mixed up in anything more, because I didn't want to take a chance of losin' my time off for good behavior. But this feller Howard said that he would not only give me the $500, but that if I would put him in touch with the right kind of a man to help him he would see that my wife and kids was properly taken care of when he got outside. My wife," Hedgepeth gulped, "died a couple of months ago because she hadn't been able to get anything to eat an' my kids are in an orphans' home somewhere."

"But what's that got to do with this clipping?" queried the governor, though not quite as impatiently as before.

"It's got this to do with it," and Hedgepeth's eyes fairly snapped with the intensity of his hate. "This man H. H. Howard and the H. H. Holmes the paper speaks of is one and the same!"

"How do you know that?"

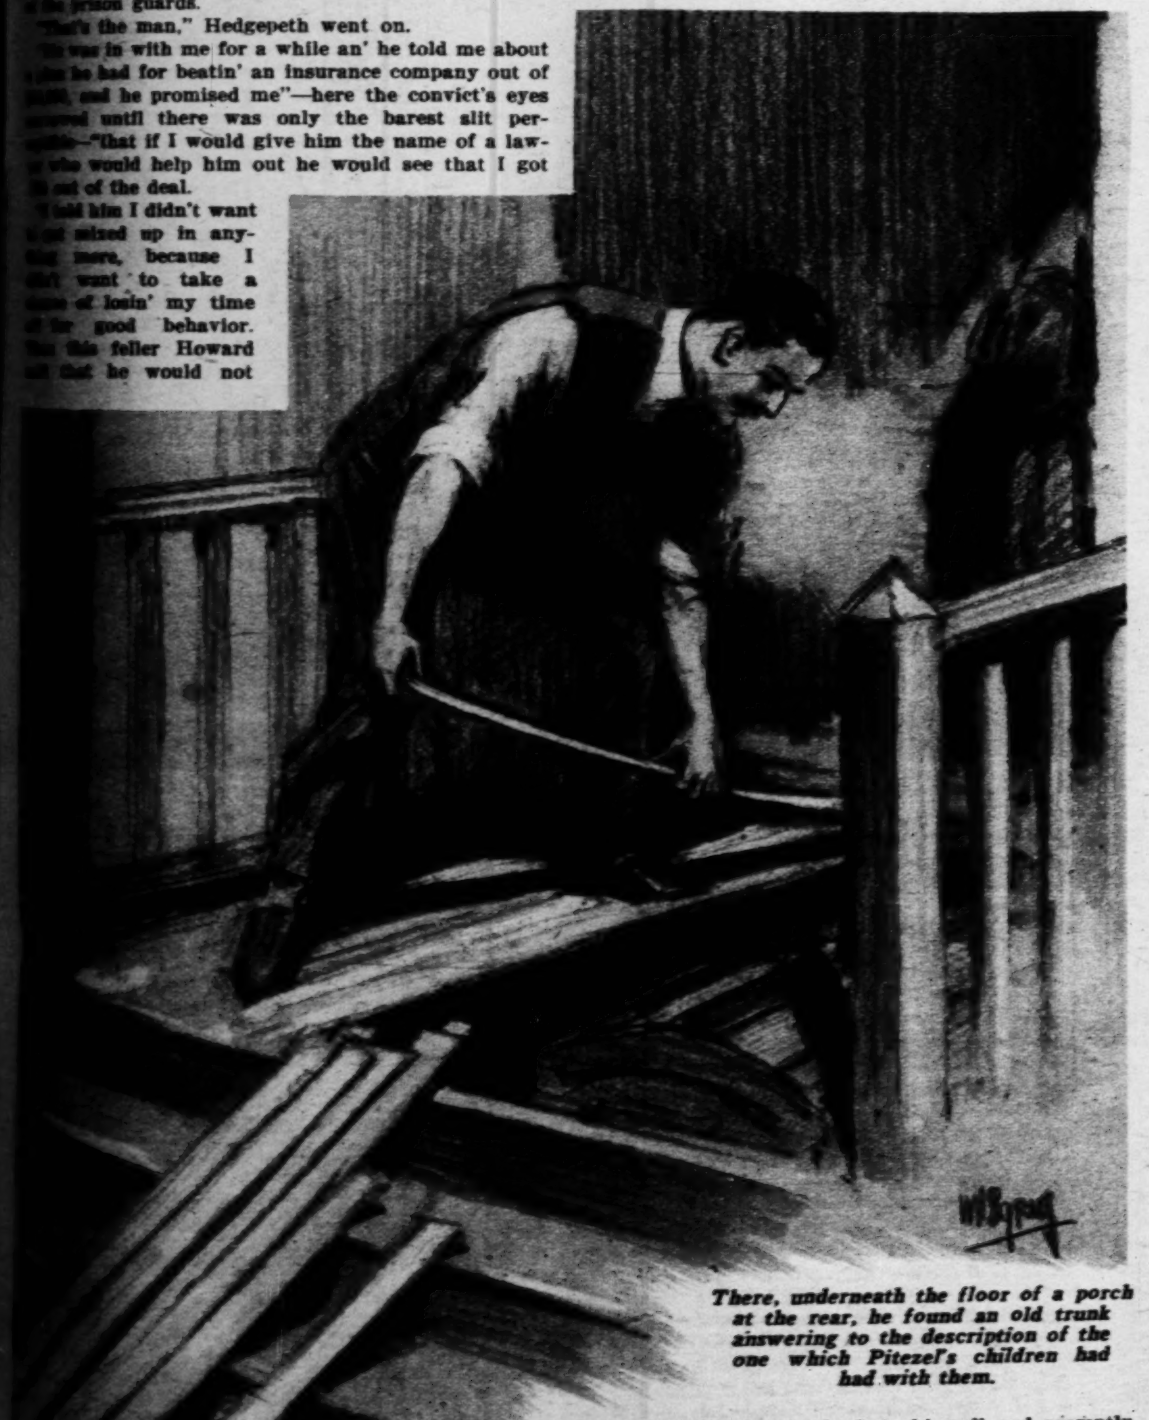
"Because the lawyer whose name I gave to Howard was the same lawyer mentioned in this dispatch from Philadelphia and, what's more, the plan that Howard outlined to me was just such a one as this. He was goin' to get somebody he knew to take out insurance in such a way that all the money could be collected by a lawyer without too much trouble. Then he was goin' to croak th' guy in such a way that it would look like an accident and collect the $10,000."

The governor of the prison chewed reflectively upon the end of his cigar for a moment. Then he said:

"You mean that this whole affair is nothing less than a murder plot?"

"Just that. And a mighty good one, too, if anybody should happen to mention it. Holmes seems to have gotten away with it pretty well, all things considered."

With the assurance that the case would be taken up with the proper authorities and that Hedgepeth's part in the matter would be made the basis for an application for a reduction of his term, the governor of the prison sent the convict back to his cell and promptly wired the gist of his story to Philadelphia, where the insurance company, in spite of the fact that they were inclined to doubt Hedgepeth's statements, placed detectives on Holmes' trail. He was finally located at his father's house in Gilmanton, N. H., where he was taken in custody on the minor charge of conspiracy to defraud.



There, underneath the floor of a porch at the rear, he found an old trunk answering to the description of the one which Pitezel's children had had with them.

Inquiry into his past life very soon indicated to the detective assigned to the case that the Pitezel mystery was only one of a number of shady incidents in which Holmes had been implicated.

Some time before, he and Pitezel had acquired certain property in Fort Worth, Tex., and had opened a real estate office there, only to be forced out of town because of several transactions that would not have borne the strictest investigations. The Fort Worth property, however, had been obtained from a Miss Minnie Williams, who seemed to have disappeared rather abruptly from Holmes' life and whose connection with his previous career was not, at the time, apparent.

Pitezel had had a wife living in St. Louis, and five children—three girls and two boys, the youngest of them a baby in arms. Mrs. Pitezel was located, with her eldest daughter, in a house which Holmes had rented for her in Burlington, Vt. She also was arrested on a charge of being implicated in the insurance fraud, and Holmes, after thinking the matter over for a time, finally admitted his share in the conspiracy, saying that he had secured the body found in the Philadelphia office from a doctor in New York and that he had packed it in a trunk and sent it to Philadelphia, where Pitezel himself had placed it in the position in which it was eventually found.

"Where's Pitezel now?" asked Jim Geyer, the detective who had been assigned by the Philadelphia District Attorney to take charge of the case.

"Holmes shrugged his shoulders as if to indicate that the matter was not of the slightest interest to him and replied: "He told me that he was going to South America with three of his children—Alice, Nellie and Howard."

"Why didn't he tell his wife about this?" Geyer demanded.

"Why don't a married man tell his wife a lot of things he intends doing?" was Holmes' retort, and nothing the detective could force out of him at the time served to throw any further light upon the case.

The principal points appeared to be that the body of some man had been found in Pitezel's office and that Pitezel himself, together with three of his children, was missing. But whether this was the outcome of a deliberate murder plot, as indicated by the testimony of the convict in the St. Louis prison, or whether it had been nothing more than an accident, was more than Geyer could determine at the moment. Accordingly, he saw to it that Holmes was held on more bail than he could possibly raise, and he then determined to devote himself to digging back into the antecedents of this strange mystery—for Geyer had a feeling, which in a woman would have been labeled as an intuition, that there was a whole lot more to the Holmes case than appeared upon the surface. There was the shady real estate deal in Fort Worth, for example, and there was also the strange appearance and, even more strange, disappearance, of the woman who was known as Miss Williams.

Who was she and what had been her connection with Holmes?

Was she the only woman connected with the case (outside of Mrs. Pitezel), or were there others whose shadows could be found intermingled with the dark and tortuous past of the man who had so cold-bloodedly admitted his connection with the insurance fraud?

Then, too, why had Holmes confessed his part in this plot, when there was no evidence against him save the testimony of a convict half-way across the continent? Had he been actuated by a desire to escape from investigations along other lines?

These were some of the questions which Geyer put to himself and which he determined to answer before pressing the charge on which Holmes was held.

So it was that he started upon an investigation which is practically unparalleled in criminal history—an investigation which forced him to cover several thousand miles of ground and led to results of which even Geyer didn't dream.

Starting with the search for the missing Pitezel children, for Geyer had no doubt whatever in his own mind that the body which was buried in Potter's Field, Philadelphia, was that of Holmes' former associate, who had been done to death by his partner, the detective commenced his work by trying to locate Alice Pitezel, the girl who had gone to Philadelphia with the St. Louis lawyer to identify her father's remains. Geyer found that from Philadelphia the pair had gone to Indianapolis, but, in the meantime, Holmes had visited St. Louis and had taken Nellie and Howard away with him upon the pretense that their father had wished to have the three of them join him in the East.

Traces of Holmes and the three children were found comparatively easily in Indianapolis, but the quartet had stayed there only a day or two and had then gone on to Cincinnati, where, as Geyer discovered, a man answering Holmes' description had rented a house at 305 Poplar street, giving the name of of A. C. Hays.

"It's funny how many people who try to adopt aliases usually stick to the same last initial," Geyer thought to himself. "But it makes them much easier to trace, after all."

But something had evidently happened to scare "Hayes" away from Cincinnati, because, after the rather unusual purchase of a second-hand stove, he had given up the house which he had rented and had retraced his steps toward Indianapolis. After staying

SCIENCE'S LATEST ANSWER TO THE QUESTI[illegible] OUR

The Abbe Theodore Moreux, French astronomer, declares it is difficult to believe that the sun is "a privileged star," and alone among hundreds of millions possesses a satellite which carries living beings on its surface—But he eliminates the other seven planets of the solar system, because of their excessive heat or cold, or lack of atmosphere or lack of moisture :: ::

By ARTHUR BENNINGTON.

FROM time immemorial, man has gazed into the heavens at night and wondered in his heart if those starry worlds he sees above him are merely tiny lamps to mitigate ever so slightly the darkness of moonless nights, or if they are the homes of living beings, beings like unto ourselves, perhaps.

Since astrology gave birth to astronomy and man learned what in fact the stars and planets are, how vast their distance, how gigantic their size and of what elements they are composed, writers on astronomy have speculated and guessed about this cosmic problem.

Much that has been published is nothing but the dreams of highly imaginative writers, without any standing among real men of science.

Among the practical working astronomers who have ventured to express definite opinions on this subject is the Abbe Theodore Moreux, director of the observatory at Bourges, France, one of the greatest mathematicians in Europe and author of several classic books on astronomy and mathematics.

Some years ago he wrote a book, "Are the Other Worlds Inhabited?" This he has finished revising in the light of the most recent discoveries. The new edition has just appeared in the Paris bookstores—its title page bears the date 1923—and is being devoured avidly by French lovers of science.

This interesting and entertaining book sets the problem before us in a purely scientific way, almost without speculation, and arrives at perfectly definite conclusions. It is entitled "Les Autres Mondes Sont-ils Habites?" and is published by Gaston Doin, Paris.

"The earth is a planet, one of the eight principal planets which ceaselessly roll around their sun; would it not be strange if the tiny grain of sand upon which humanity has swarmed for thousands of years were the only one habitable?" asks the Abbe in his introduction.

He then goes on to consider what conditions are essential to life—not to the life of man or even of the lower animals, but to that of the primitive cell, the essential component of all life. All living cells have almost exactly the same composition. All have nitrogen, carbon, oxygen and hydrogen as the basis of their protoplasm and nucleus, and these elements may be combined to form water, hydrates of carbon, fats and albuminoid matter, varying with the species and the tissue.

Every living cell, no matter how primitive, is a very complex organization, especially when looked upon in the light of atomic theory. This complexity explains how it is that a cell cannot live except under certain conditions.

In a general way, no cell can live in a temperature below freezing and above 112 degrees Fahrenheit. It may exist for a short while at a temperature far below or slightly above these limits, but it is in a state of suspended animation and not in function as a living thing. Man alone forms an exception, as his climatic adaptability is very great.

No living organism can live at a temperature of 212 degrees Fahrenheit, for at that point all the albumin in it has coagulated. Only a few of the bacteria and their spores can stand a temperature anywhere near boiling point, and that only for a brief time.

Another atmospheric condition necessary to life depends on air pressure and upon oxygen. In air compressed beyond a certain point, oxygen kills even the microbes, and life in the rarified air of high altitudes is impossible because of the absence of oxygen. Again, life cannot exist without water. Nitrogen is no less indispensable; vegetables absorb it from the air, and animals obtain it by devouring the vegetables.

Thus, for the existence of life on any planet, the following conditions are necessary: a prevailing temperature of between freezing point and 115 degrees, without too sudden variations; an atmosphere containing nitrogen, oxygen and water vapor; the existence of oceans of water; a certain quantity of light.

"Consequently," writes the Abbe Moreux, "life is possible only on extinct stars revolving about a central sun which furnishes light and heat. In addition, that the surface temperature may not vary too greatly, the orbit must be only slightly eccentric and must approach a circle. Thus, the comets are discarded, even if their physical makeup were adapted to receive living beings.

"These conditions, which doubtless will seem very drastic to those who have vulgarized to the limit the idea of the habitability of the worlds, are, however, only the expression of our present-day science in what it knows with certainty. We have no right to imagine a life different from that which is presented to us by the cell, but, if some astronomical romancer wants to divert us with fairy stories, we see no great objection. But he must not impose his divinations, however poetic, upon us in the name of true science."

The moon, first of all, must follow the comets into the discard. That there is neither atmosphere nor water vapor upon our satellite is proven by the utter absence of shadow intermediate between the absolute blackness of the parts untouched by sunlight and the absolute brilliance of the parts that are so touched.

The spectroscope also reveals that there is on the moon no element which in any way modifies the solar light. Again, when the moon passes between the earth and a star, there is not the slightest refraction of the star's rays as it passes behind the moon's disc and emerges therefrom.

"Thus, then, no air on the moon; consequently, no water, since in a vacuum this substance evaporates and gives rise to an atmosphere of vapor. No condensation, never a cloud. * * * Does this mean that all the elements of the terrestrial atmosphere, including water vapor, have never existed on this neighboring world? Not at all.

"Man lives in time. How long is the duration of humanity in comparison with the thousands of centuries necessary for a planet to traverse the stages of its astral life? The worlds may be inhabited, yes, but what folly it would be if we were to endow them with inhabitants, animals or organisms, living exactly at the same epoch, at the same moment!

Moreux says the ground there, during the long lunar day, has a temperature of that of boiling water, and, in the equally long lunar night, of more than 260 degrees below zero. There is not a living organism which could resist these extremes of heat and cold.

To those who have described certain appearances which they believe are signs of vegetation on the moon, he asks where they get the moisture, without which it is impossible for the simplest cell to exist. And he points out that the ultra-violet rays of light reach the moon without being filtered out by an atmosphere and, as they are absolutely fatal to every germ or bacterium, none can exist. No life could exist on earth if our atmosphere did not act like a screen to most of these rays.

After the moon, Mercury. What of it? It is only 58 million kilometers from the sun, while the earth is thrice as far. Its temperature averages about 200 degrees Centigrade above zero, but its orbit is so elongated that in the summer when nearest the sun, its temperature reaches about 240 degrees Centigrade. Many things which are solid with us are liquid or gaseous on Mercury. Its rivers are of sulphur and tin. If it ever had any water, this has boiled away long ago.

It is believed that Mercury always turns the same face to the sun, as the moon does to the earth. The temperature of this face would reach about 400 degrees Centigrade, at which lead and bismuth are liquid. The temperature of the side away from the sun would be 265 degrees below zero, Centigrade. And all observations agree in proving that Mercury has no atmosphere: it is exactly in the condition of the moon, except that this has lost its heat while Mercury still retains it.

Conditions such as these are incompatible with life.

Now let us jump to Jupiter. It is so far away that the sun looks only one-fifth as big as it does to us. If it were dependent on the sun alone for its heat, its surface temperature would be 141 degrees Centigrade below zero! But Jupiter, though 1340 times as big as the earth, weighs only 317 times as much, which means that its substance is far away lighter than ours.

When we take into account the tremendous pressures which compress its interior parts, it is evident that it must be little else but a globe of gas. Jupiter has not yet cooled down; it is not yet extinct; once it shone with its own brilliance, today it is a sort of a semi-sun. Through the clouds that enshroud it, glimpses of its red-hot surface can be seen through a telescope.

Jupiter may be habitable some day, when it shall have cooled off, but that day is still far distant.

As for Saturn, it has not yet cooled off to the temperature of Jupiter; it has not the density of water; it is only a ball of blazing gas. No life possible on either of these.

Nor does it seem probable that there ever will be, for the reason that no cell will be able to develop in the intense cold which prevails at such vast distances from the sun.

Remain, then, Venus and Mars, our near neighbors in the universe. Venus is about the same size as the earth, and the densities and volumes are nearly the same. Venus has an atmosphere and might be habitable were it not for one fact—not absolutely proven but generally accepted—that it revolves on its axis in just the same time that it circles about the sun; thus, it always turns the same face to the sun.

This must result in eternal torrefaction on one side and eternal congelation on the other. From all sides winds rush to the center of heat, giving rise to terrific cyclones and electric storms.

In the borderlands, where the rays of the sun shine feebly, life might be possible if it were not for the perpetual cyclones and torrential rains which are the inevitable result of the division of heat and cold.

Mars alone is left. Everyone is familiar with the accounts of canals on this planet, first discovered by Schiaparelli and described most minutely by Prof. Lowell from his observations at Flagstaff, Arizona. It is upon the apparently artificial nature of these canals that all the theories about Mars being inhabited are based.

It is their geometrical straightness and the way they intersect, evidently bearing the waters from the melting ice at the poles to arid districts about the equator, which make some distinguished astronomers cling to their theory.

We see the results of their labor aiding nature; we perceive the effects and we divine the causes.

"Without the Martians, Mars is inexplicable. The artificiality of the canals, on the contrary, explains everything; therefore the Martians exist, and the planet, though dying, still nourishes intelligent beings."

A word of homage to Prof. Lowell, and the Abbe comes to criticism of his theories.

"A hypothesis is proven only when it is certain that no other can be substituted which will explain the fact. Even more, of two hypotheses equally satisfying, we must choose the simpler.

"Is the geometrical form of the canals an indubitable fact? Not at all. This special form is denied by nearly all the observers of Mars."

He then goes on to discuss the visibility of very small objects at great distances and points out that at considerably inside the limits of visibility any object, no matter what its shape, seems perfectly round, and a line, even if quite irregular, becomes perfectly straight. This optical fact may easily explain the apparent straightness of the canals and circularity of the oases.

"In reality, the canals should be composed of a series of irregular spots, juxtaposed, probably separated from one another, each too feeble sufficiently to impress our eyes. Besides, recent observations with the great telescope at the University of Meudon, with the great glasses of Lick and Yerkes, with the great telescope at Mount Wilson, by observers as skilled as Lowell, have not corroborated his manner of seeing: the canals appear distinctly irregular in form and intensity.

"The photographs of Mars obtained in the last year or two do not at all corroborate the geometrical forms presented by the Flagstaff design. All correspond to the representations which the best designers of all countries give to them."

But, even if the canals are geometrically straight, that does not prove their artificiality. The geologist can show you stratification as straight; the astronomer will show you on the face of the moon markings that run hundreds, even thousands, of kilometers in a straight line.

And he presents to us a few facts about the atmosphere of Mars which militate strongly against the probability of life on that planet. Mars is about seven times smaller than the earth. Gravitation is much feebler and its density is less, so it would take 10 globes the size of Mars to make one earth. A mass weighing 1000 tons on the earth would weigh only 380 tons on Mars. If our atmosphere surrounded Mars the barometric pressure at sea level would be 285 millimeters, instead of 760, as it is with us. And the atmosphere, far less compressed than ours, would extend to a far greater height.

However, we have no reason to believe that the atmosphere of Mars is anything like so voluminous as our own, and many facts and calculations lead to the belief that the atmosphere of Mars is actually 12 times more rarified than that of the earth, and that the barometer at sea level would register 64 millimeters. A LUXURIOUS BUT LONELY JOB OF RULIN A SOUTH SEA ISLAND

White men to fill such posts are rare, despite excellent pay, light duties, wonderful climate and scenery and numerous comforts of the bungalows—Managers of cocoanut plantations supervise the natives who make copra, going on daily inspection tours and giving out flour and canned goods—Perhaps the isolation of the life is too great, although vacations last three months :: ::

By Charles B. Nordhoff

A typical group of residents on a South Sea island planted with cocoanut trees. The natives are employed to make copra.

HOW would you like to be the ruler of a South Sea Island? How would you like to live far from the bustle and fret of civilization, among scenes so beautiful that artists travel from all parts of the world for the privilege of painting them, in a climate of perpetual springtime, where colds and grippe and rheumatism are unknown?

Would you like to exchange your present home for a palm-thatched bungalow, with smiling brown servants to wait on you—to tidy the house, to serve your meals, to wash and iron your suits of fresh white drill; to light your cigar, to put a new record on the phonograph, to bring you tall glasses of amber rum punch while you lounged in a steamer chair in the moonlight?

If you chance to be a prohibitionist, the glasses would contain the milk of sweet young cocoanuts, and the island, of course, would be dry. If you felt lonely, after a time, and had a hankering for the lights on Broadway, or for a chat with the folks in your home town, there would be three months out of every 12 when you would be at liberty to go wherever you pleased—and you would have plenty of money to travel in style! How would such a life strike you, and how would you like to be paid for doing all this?

The qualifications are not difficult: a taste for tranquil solitude, the knack of handling men, and enough facility in languages to pick up a smattering of the native tongue.

Your duties? Most men would call them light. During nine months of the year, your life would be made up of a quiet routine: up at daybreak, a plunge in the clear water of the lagoon, breakfast, a round of the plantations to see that the work was going satisfactorily, an hour or two of fishing (and such fishing as only millionaires can enjoy at home), lunch, a nap on your veranda, cooled by the trade wind, another round of inspection in the afternoon, and, when dinner was over, an evening of smoking, music or books.

Now and then there would be flour and canned goods to check out to your subjects from the storeroom; at times you would have to settle the mild disputes which arise even among the best-natured people in the world.

At the end of nine months you would begin to watch for a sail, and finally a day would come when the expected schooner was sighted, far out to sea. Presently she would drop anchor off your house, and her skipper would come ashore for a yarn with you while the heaped-up bags of copra were being lightered out. You would glance indifferently through his bundle of stale newspapers, with their stories of treaties and wars and politics—distant and unreal as things remembered from a dream.

Finally you would close your house, lock the storeroom and go aboard the vessel with those of your people who wished to leave, bound for one of the small island capitals scattered over the South Pacific—Apia, Suva, Vavau, Avarua or Papeete. There, at the headquarters of the trading firm which had planted your island, a handsome check would be awaiting you: nine months' pay in a lump. You would have your choice of a trip to real civilization, or of loafing about a South Sea hotel—seeing the picture shows and hobnobbing with chance-made friends until it was time to return for another nine months of copra making.

You are thinking, no doubt, that there must be a dozen applicants for every job of this kind, but the truth is that men to fill these posts are rare. Perhaps the loneliness is too great; perhaps men of the necessary qualifications are less common than one would suppose.

Here and there in the South Pacific Ocean, from the Paumotu to the Solomon Group, and north to the line, there are islands of this kind—owned or leased by trading houses, planted with cocoanuts, and each one in charge of a white man, with a dozen or 20 native families to make the copra. Not long ago, I visited one of these islands, with a friend who was going out to take charge.

We traveled in a small native schooner, propelled by a set of patched sails, and a wheezy two-cylinder motor of immense age, built in San Francisco shortly after the principle of internal combustion had been discovered. Taylor had ordered provisions for a stay of many months, and the decks were littered with cases of salmon, kerosene and bully beef. His Kanaka copra makers lay around the hatches—a score of huge, brawny fellows, gathered from islands scattered over a thousand miles of sea: the Marquesas, the Societies, the Gambiers, the Paumotu Group. Their women were huddled in the cockpit; some nursing fat, brown babies, others with black-eyed children clinging to their skirts.

Taylor's island is an atoll—a series of five low islets set at wide intervals along a 20-mile oval of reef. His village is on the largest of these islets; the others are inhabited only by wild pigs and wilder chickens—remote cousins of the Plymouth Rock; lean, rangy birds that flush like partridges with a cackle and a whirr, to speed away between the boles of the palms. The [illegible] bined area of the five islets might be 2000 acres, and Taylor told me that they were planted with [illegible] trees.

I did a bit of quick mental arithmetic: [illegible] palms will produce a ton of copra a year, and copra was selling at $75 a ton—the lowest price since the war. Even deducting all expenses, the owner of such an island would not escape the income tax.

At noon, when we were about 10 miles off, we sighted the land—a faint horizontal blur above the sea. The southeast trade was blowing fresh and strong; our venerable motor, which seemed to run more from force of habit than for any other reason, chugged steadily along, forcing the schooner through whitecaps which showered her decks with spray. The line of the palm tops rose higher and higher; another line appeared, seemingly miles away; two more rose above the horizon—and another, still more remote. The five islands were in sight, some of them hull-down on the horizon, the nearest one now plainly visible—the [illegible] on the reef, the snowy beach, the dark-green bush beyond.

We changed our course to head for the boat landing on the leeward side, and as we neared the reef the water shoaled under us, turning from deep blue to shades of amethyst and green.

"Get your line overboard," said Taylor; "you're sure of a fish along here."

I had with me a hundred yards of heavy line and a big muskallonge spoon, made for trolling in the northern lakes—a huge nickel-plated thing, armed with a formidable hook. We were doing six or seven knots an hour, and as I paid out the line I could see the spoon flashing and zigzagging through the water. Then the line snapped taut in my hands, and I was fast to the first of a dozen enormous fish: cavally, [illegible] and the giant barracoota of the South Seas.

With a small boat and a rod and reel, it would have been royal sport; as it was, there was nothing to do but derrick them out with a heave. The natives crowded aft, exclaiming—as each big fellow came aboard—at the magic of the white man's bait.

There is no entrance to this lagoon. Though the reef is awash at all tides, its line is continuous, and one has to go ashore through the surf on the outer edge. Off the landing place the sails were furled, and the [illegible]

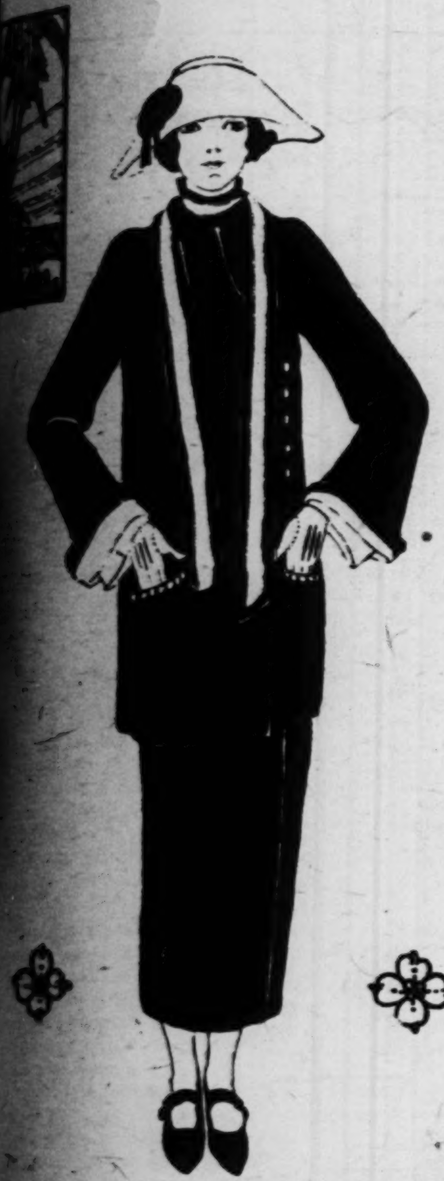
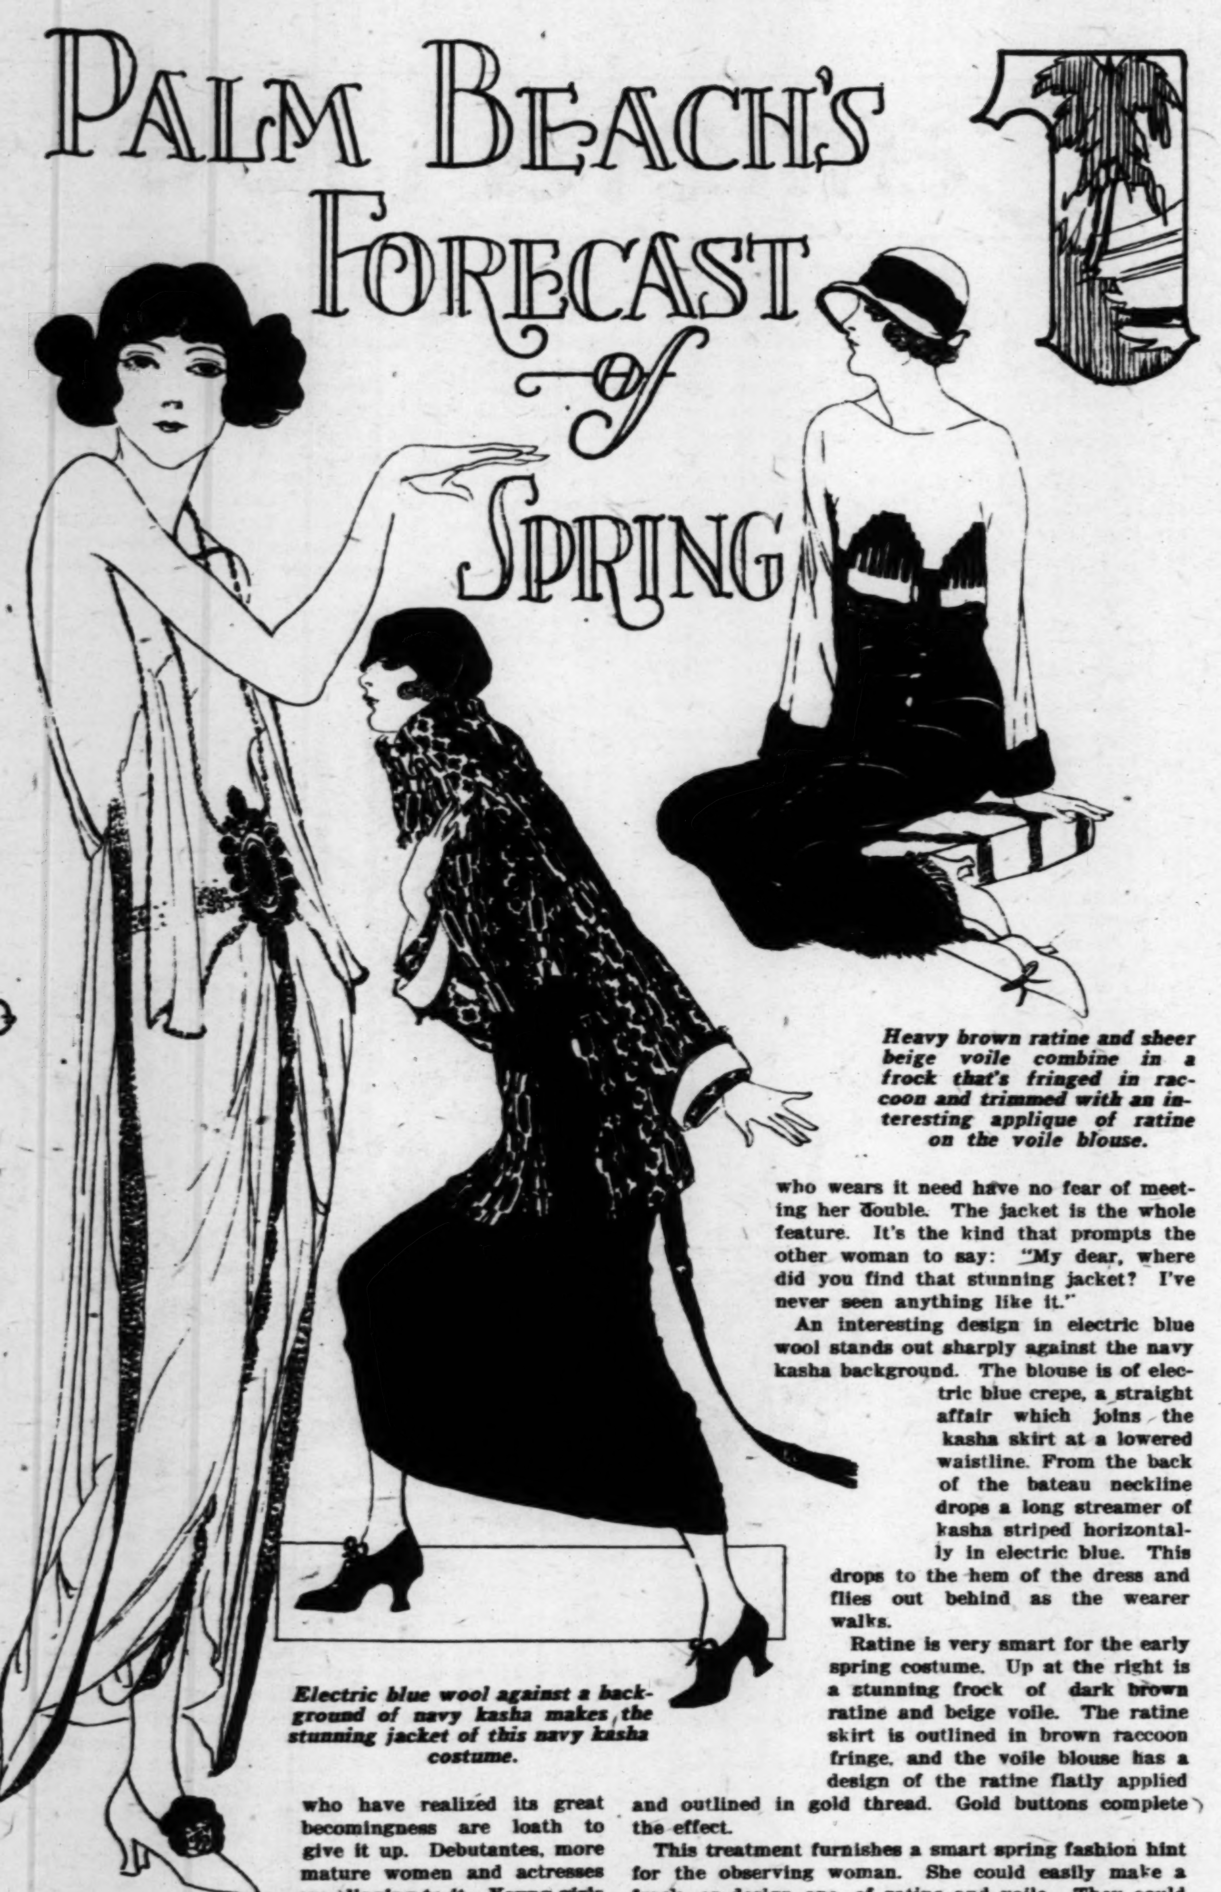
PALM BEACH'S FORECAST of SPRING



The kasha costume has a blouse of gray and is lined in gray, piped with powder blue.



Glittering rhinestones trim this evening gown of white crepe over white satin.

Electric blue wool against a background of navy kasha makes the stunning jacket of this navy kasha costume.

Heavy brown ratine and sheer beige voile combine in a frock that's fringed in raccoon and trimmed with an interesting applique of ratine on the voile blouse.

In white or gay colors—Kasha, ratine or sheer crepe, they find favor among the smart women who set the styles :: ::

By MME. FRANCES.

IF YOU are planning to invade Palm Beach this season, of course you'll have to do a lot of beforehand thinking about clothes. At first it seems a little difficult to concentrate on things to wear where balmy breezes blow when you're still in a country that's icebound and freezing cold. But an inspection of the shops that are showing things especially for Palm Beach will dispel all feeling of this kind.

You find yourself surrounded on all sides by such alluring frocks and suits and things that you hardly know where to start buying, and most of all where to stop.

There's a particular appeal that clothes with the first feeling of spring about them at a time when you're still dressed in the heavy garments of winter. Soft fabrics, lighter colors and gay styles all make you long to change from things you've grown too accustomed to into garments that give you a whole new personality.

If you aren't going to Palm Beach this season the Palm Beach showings will interest you just the same. For the things that are worn there are simply advance models of the real spring showings. You can know you're seeing the same type garments that will be in the spring offerings. And if you are ready to choose the things for early spring now, you can get them in their pristine freshness.

Another thing, the Palm Beach season is yearly growing more important as a forecaster of fashions in this country for the spring and summer seasons which follow on its heels.

The shops watch with interest the fashions that are launched. If a thing is taken up with enthusiasm at Palm Beach, its success for the year to come is assured.

For instance, last year white was the predominating color at Palm Beach. All the best-dressed women included white costumes in their repertoires. Its appearance in morning beach costumes, in afternoon frocks and for evening made one realize all over again how truly becoming it is—and the trick was turned. Not for years has white played such an all-important part in costuming. And, by the way, it will probably be much worn at Palm Beach again this season. Those who have realized its great becomingness are loath to give it up. Debutantes, more mature women and actresses are clinging to it. Young girls who are making their debuts realize the appropriateness of white and silver for evening, while it seems to me that never before have so many stage people, both in musical comedy and the drama, worn white to enhance the charm of their parts.

I'm showing one charmingly youthful evening gown here—the one on the large figure. It's of white crepe, made over a foundation of satin and trimmed with narrow bands of rhinestones. The bodice slopes down almost to the waist in the back, while a sheer little cape drops from a high neckline in front to slope down long at either hip and be held by a jeweled ornament at the front. It's transparent enough to reveal the natural waistline beneath, which is marked by a band of rhinestones.

I am continuing to exploit kasha. It's one of the most appropriate fabrics for soft, wearable costumes, and one of the most favored by the woman who knows. Up at the left is a becoming suit of rose kasha lined in gray, which is bound down by narrow bands of powder blue. This becoming gray is revealed at the turnback cuffs and again where it lines the long, slender band which continues from the narrow collar. This crosses over snugly at the back and drops its ends carelessly at the front. The buttons are gray, as is the crepe blouse that joins the rose kasha skirt.

The other kasha costume is at the right of the large figure. This is an adaptable outfit that's appropriate for sports wear or for the more formal occasion. This is one of my most individual costumes, and the woman who wears it need have no fear of meeting her double. The jacket is the whole feature. It's the kind that prompts the other woman to say: "My dear, where did you find that stunning jacket? I've never seen anything like it."

An interesting design in electric blue wool stands out sharply against the navy kasha background. The blouse is of electric blue crepe, a straight affair which joins the kasha skirt at a lowered waistline. From the back of the bateau neckline drops a long streamer of kasha striped horizontally in electric blue. This drops to the hem of the dress and flies out behind as the wearer walks.

Ratine is very smart for the early spring costume. Up at the right is a stunning frock of dark brown ratine and beige voile. The ratine skirt is outlined in brown raccoon fringe, and the voile blouse has a design of the ratine flatly applied and outlined in gold thread. Gold buttons complete the effect.

This treatment furnishes a smart spring fashion hint for the observing woman. She could easily make a frock, or design one, of ratine and voile. They could be of the same color or contrasting, as you choose, with an interesting cut-out design in ratine applied horizontally through the voile blouse.

There are so many interesting things which we look to the Palm Beach season to settle.

Will hats be large or small?

Will evening gowns favor brocade, beads or simplicity?

And how about shoes?

Of course, there will be frocks that cover all these descriptions, but the exclusive woman will find that she chooses to hold one in preference above the others.

Along with the favoring of white, it is predicted that clear, bright colors will find themselves more in preference than ever before.

The American woman is finding that she likes colors immensely and that they are very becoming to her.

What could make a more appropriate setting for colors galore than the blue ocean and the sand shimmering in the golden sunshine? One is bound to feel some of the gaiety of the surroundings, and to want to dress in something bright to show the joy of her inner feelings.

And to want this is to effect it, for on all sides there's a riot of bright, clear color to choose from. There are oranges and browns and reds, ranging from the brightest Chinese tones to the dullest lacquer reds. And if you want brocaded materials you can find those which embody all these colors. If you want a forecast of what will be good for spring, don't forget to watch the straw vote at Palm Beach!

Camera Joe ~ by ~ William Slavens McNutt

WHEN Joe Kelly was 10 years old he was as dirty and tough as any kid of his age in the dirty, tough, Middle Western town on the banks of the Mississippi in which he lived.

He was the last and most neglected of the 10 children who kept Peter Kelly, the freight brakeman, and his wife in debt and other trouble.

One summer day, at a picnic of the McHenry Plow Works Employes' Association, at Suttler's Grove, he saw Pete Molesky, a boy of his own age, with a small black box in his hand.

"What you got?" Joe inquired.

"Kodak," Pete replied.

"How'd you get it?" he asked, wistfully.

"Bought it," said Pete. "Where'd you suppose?"

"Bought it!" Joe repeated, incredulously. "Where'd you get money to buy one o' them?"

"Cuttin' lawns," said Pete.

The starter's pistol spoke, the runners leaped away, and Pete snapped the shutter of his kodak.

"They don't cost much," he admitted. "A little one like this one I got is only $3; that's all."

Joe trailed home with Pete after the picnic and, fascinated, watched him remove the film from the black box in the dim light from the red-shaded lamp and wash it in a pan of developer. When the job was done Pete held the film up, and Joe saw, fixed upon it, the scene he had witnessed in the afternoon at Suttler's Grove—the starter with the pistol raised, the runners leaping away from the mark. They were bad negatives, but to Joe Kelly they were the evidence of a miracle performed before his eyes. The next morning Joe was up and dressed before breakfast was ready. He ate hurriedly, rushed from the house and ran across town to what was known as the nice residence district. By nightfall he had earned 50 cents.

He got home too late for supper, went directly to bed, and thought the matter out. At the rate he was going it would take him five more days to amass the $3 necessary to buy a little kodak like Pete Molesky's. In the heat of his sudden overwhelming desire, five days seemed identical in length with 5,000,000 years, in that it was utterly impossible for him to wait that long.

Shortly after midnight he slipped out of bed and dressed. He slipped out of the house unheard and headed for the business section of the town.

At 1 o'clock a policeman cornered him in Knowlton's drug store.

"How'd you get in here?" the policeman asked.

Joe indicated a small broken transom over a high door in the rear. "Through that," he said.

"What are you doing in here?"

"Lookin' for one o' them kodak things you take pitchures with," said Joe.

"What are you going to do with that?"

"Take pitchures with it," Joe explained, simply.

"I guess you won't need anything to take pictures with for a few years," said the policeman. "Judge Garvey'll send you to a place where you won't have any time to be taking pictures."

Then and then only Joe Kelly began to cry.

Judge Garvey committed him to the reform school until he was 21, explaining to him that he might be released on parole sooner if he proved to be a very good boy.

In the history of the reform school to which he was sent, Joe Kelly's behavior stands as the record for good conduct.

At the expiration of one year he was released on parole.

It took him nine days to amass the needed sum.

He didn't take the outfit home. He took it to a vine-masked cave in the side of a cliff on the river bank. He deposited his developing material there, set a roll of film in the kodak and returned to town.

All day long he wandered around with the box under his arm, but he did not take a picture. Early the next morning he started again. An intoxicated farmer was kicked out of Cutter's saloon. He got up to his feet and began cursing loudly. A policeman hurried up and arrested him. The befuddled farmer resisted in a futile drunken way. A crowd gathered. In the front line of the crowd was Joe Kelly. He clicked the shutter of his kodak for the first time.

It was a week before he used the kodak again, although he carried it with him all the while. Then he made five pictures of various athletic events at a picnic at Suttler's Grove.

Gradually little Joe Kelly and his kodak became the subject of humorous comment about town. Someone called him "Camera Joe," and the name stuck. He discovered that there were cameras to be had that would make better pictures, and started in to make money enough to get one.

Whenever anything happened in town, Joe was there to take a picture of it. Policemen chased him and cuffed him when he got in their way at the small riots that occurred when the employes of the plow works were on strike. Firemen stumbled over him and cursed at him whenever there was a blaze.

When Joe was 14 he got a job in the plow works and continued to spend all his spare time and money on his hobby. In the spring of his seventeenth year the big flood came.

Old Mississippi kicked up his heels, put his tail in the air and went on a rampage. The town in which Joe lived was inundated and cut off from communication with the outside world for two days and nights. They were days and nights of terror, death and destruction, and during those days and nights Camera Joe Kelly was busy as he had never before been busy in his life. He began taking pictures with the beginning of the flood. As the waters rose he salvaged his outfit from his home, carried it through the streets on the rapidly rising flood in a rowboat to a four-story stone and steel building in the center of town, and established himself in a deserted law office on the top floor. From there he sallied forth and took pictures while the flood raged. At night he went out in his boat, constantly menaced by the swift-drifting wreckage that swirled about him, and took flashlights.

On the morning of the third day he was taking a picture of the wreckage in Main street when a tall, bored-looking young stranger with a big camera slung over his shoulder stopped and spoke to him.

"Who you with?" said the stranger.

"What?" said Joe, not understanding.

The stranger's eyes brightened. "You local?" he asked.

Joe stared. It was all Greek to him.

"Are you a photographer?" the stranger said, impatiently.

Joe nodded.

"Got any good pictures of the flood?"

"Sure," said Joe. "Lots of 'em."

"Sell them?" asked the stranger.

"Sell 'em!" exclaimed Joe. "Sure! You want to buy 'em?"

"Let's see them," said the stranger. "Where are they? Come on, I'm in a hurry!"

Joe led him to the law office on the top floor of the stone building where he had camped during the disaster, and showed him the prints and plates he had made. The stranger was almost hysterical with delight, as he went through the collection. "What'll you take for 'em—all of 'em?" he said, excitedly.

"What'll you gimme?" Joe countered, amazed.

"Two hundred for the lot," said the stranger. "All you've got; every negative and print you've made while the flood was on. What do you say, kid? Talk quick."

"Sure," said Joe, stupidly. "Sure thing!"

The stranger stripped the money from a plethoric role, handed it to Joe, and began wrapping up the collection, muttering excitedly to himself the while.

"What's your name, kid?" he said, as he prepared to depart.

Joe told him.

"Who you with, here in town?"

"The McHenry Plow Works," Joe replied.

"Plow works!" the stranger exclaimed. "[illegible] along with me and I'll get you a regular job!"

"What doin'?" said Joe.

"Photographing, you fool!" said the stranger. "[illegible] on, talk quick! I got to be moving!"

"Sure!" said Joe.

"Come ahead!" said the stranger.

"[illegible]grapher!" Mr. Potter sniffed. "I thought [illegible] it was somethin' like that."

[illegible] was no photographer in Millertown. To Mr. [illegible] understanding, a man who took pictures was [illegible] with gypsies, gamblers, medicine-show men, [illegible] small gamblers and others who lived chiefly [illegible] wits.

"[illegible] tellin' you what's what," Mr. Potter said [illegible] "You ain't goin' to get away from here without [illegible] back what you've cost us!"

[illegible] Joe $3 a week for his current room and [illegible] took the remaining nine on account of the [illegible] he had made up for the time Joe had been [illegible] his house.

[illegible] evening, after he had been clerking at [illegible] store some two weeks, Joe was stretched [illegible] lawn, resting. Mr. Potter was sitting [illegible] near by, reading.

"[illegible] Frenchman, Clemenceau, is a funny-look[illegible] ain't he?" he said, to no one in particular. "[illegible] here in the paper. He looks like some [illegible] an animal of some sort."

"[illegible] can talk English as good as you or me," [illegible]

"[illegible]" said Potter.

"[illegible] guy at that," Joe went on, musingly. "[illegible] a vest-pocket kodak one day an' got a [illegible] the old guy an' that Wop, Orlando, an' President Wilson that I wasn't supposed to make. Wasn't a bad picture, either. Run into this Clemenceau guy afterward at the Crillon, and he gave me a nice tumble on this picture I'd got. He had a copy of it in his hand, an' when he seen me he come over an' shook his finger in my face, an' he says to me: 'That is a good picture,' he says.

"'You like it?' I says to him.

"'I do not,' he says. 'I think you should be shot for making it; but if I were the editor of your paper,' he says, 'I would think you should have a medal for it.'"

Joe laughed reminiscently. Lying on his back on the lawn, he could not see the faces of his audience and did not realize the astonishment he had created.

Only Jennie believed. She sat forward on her chair, her lips parted, her eyes wide with the wonder of it.

At length Mr. Potter cleared his throat and rustled his paper. "I suppose you was real well acquainted with Gen. Pershing?" he said, heavily sarcastic. "I don't doubt a mite that you've spoke to Lloyd George many's the time."

"Yeah," said Joe, yawning, not aware of the sarcastic intent of the speaker. "Pershing's hard. He ain't a bad guy. He'll stand for a picture when there's a gang to shoot him coming out of some big shindig or somethin' like that, but he's hard to do business with on exclusive stuff. This Lloyd George guy's a darb. He'll stop, turn around, an' take off his hat an' smile or do anything you want any time you catch him anywhere. He ain't a bad guy at all."

"Well, of all things!" Mrs. Potter exclaimed. Some of the children snickered.

Mr. Potter folded the paper and smiled grimly. "Of course you're well acquainted with President Harding, I suppose," he continued.

"Sure," said Joe, still not catching the incredulity in the man's tone. "I knew him first in Washington when he was in the Senate. Then I was out at Marion with him for a few weeks round election time, an' down in Florida on that trip when he went fishin', just after he was elected; an', of course, I covered the inauguration. I remember one time, just after he was elected, he went over to Columbus in an automobile to play golf. I went over ahead o' him and I was on the links waitin' for him when he come. He laughed when he seen me waitin' there, an' he says: 'Well, Joe,' he says"——

It was as far as Camera Joe got in his narrative. Mr. Potter interrupted with a roar of laughter. Mrs. Potter and the Potter children chimed in.

Joe sat up and stared at them.

"I'll say one thing for you," Mr. Potter said. "When you start in to lie, you lie big. You don't tell no little lies 'bout knowin' the Governor or havin' shook hands with the President once, or anything like that. No, siree! You just swim right out where the water's deep an' splash round!"

Joe started to protest, and stopped. He scrambled to his feet, shrugged and walked slowly, aimlessly, down the street, the laughter of the Potter family in his ears. A few blocks away Jenny caught up with him. Her small, pinched face was pale.

"Don't you fret!" she said, tensely, falling into step with him and catching his arm. "Don't you care how they act. I told them what I thought about the way they laughed at you. I don't care if they do give me a home! They're just mean; that's what they are. Just mean! That's what!"

Joe looked at her curiously. "You're a funny little hick," he said, with an air of casual patronage. "Did you believe what I said?"

She stared at him, eyes round with wonder at his question. "Why, of course," she said, simply.

Joe laughed and squeezed her arm. "You ain't a bad little gal," he said. "Not half bad."

They walked together in the deepening dusk, and Joe talked to her; talked of places where he had been and people he had seen; talked intimately of world-famous battles, historic gatherings and the men and women who make history. He told her then of the manner of his fall.

"But you're not drinking now!" she said, excitedly.

"No," said Joe. "I seem to have got it out of my system while I was lying in bed here, waiting for them bones to heal. I haven't got any yen for it any more at all."

"Then why don't you go back?" the girl cried. "Oh, you must! To think of a man like you, that's done the things you have, sitting here in a poky little hole like this, clerking in a store!"

Joe sighed. "I'm afraid I've lost out," he said, regretfully. "I got a pretty bad name before I was through with it. I fell down on a lot of assignments along toward the finish. In the newspaper game they don't want a guy that can't be trusted. I don't know if I could hook on again with the reputation I got now."

"But you must!" the girl insisted, tearfully. "You must!"

Joe laughed and patted her shoulder. "You're a funny little hick," he repeated with a note of approval in his tone. "You ain't a bad little gal at that."

The next day Joe found himself the target for the town wits. Mr. Potter had talked. One after another, the rural jesters came into the grocery and did their comic stuff.

And then one morning came the word that the President's special would stop for five minutes at Millertown on its way through, and the President himself would say a word to the people.

"Well, Joe," said Mr. Potter, coming into Brubaker's store, "I see your old friend the President's goin' to be in town this afternoon. I su'pose you'll go down to the station and have a nice little talk with him."

"I don't suppose any of the rest of us will have much of a chance with Joe there," Henry Stonington, the local banker, put in.

"Will you introduce me to him?" another called. And then the storm of ridicule broke around Joe's head afresh.

All the stores in town closed their doors as the time for the special's arrival drew near, and when Brubaker shut up his place Joe walked off alone toward the Potter residence, while the crowd in the streets called jibes after him.

When he reached home Jenny Potter met him at the door. "Ain't you going?" she demanded.

"No!" said Joe disgustedly. "What do I care what they think?"

"Well, I care," Jenny declared. "I been standin' up for you an' tellin' 'em you wasn't a liar, an' they been laughin' at me about it. You told them you knew the President. If you'd go down an' meet him they'd know you weren't lyin'."

Joe flung the money in Potter's face. "That's all I owe you, an' then some," he snarled.

"Sure, I know him," said Joe, wearily. "I've took his picture a thousand times, but so's a thousand other guys. What do you think? He's goin' to come down off the train an' kiss me just because I used to take pictures of him? Have sense!"

"It'll make me out a fool if you don't go," she said, beginning to cry. "I don't care so much about that, either, but I want these people that have been makin' fun of you to know that you been tellin' the truth."

"All right," said Joe, impatiently. "Don't bawl! I'll go. But don't be silly. I said I knew the President, and I do; but I'm nothin' to him. He probably don't even remember my face."

That was where Joe was wrong. His face, many times seen, was not easily forgotten. The President, standing on the rear platform of the shiny special, spied him and smiled. He not only remembered his face, but he remembered his name. "Hello, Joe!" he called to him, cordially. "Where have you been? We've missed you. I was asking some of the boys about you just the other day."

"Hello, Mr. President," said Joe, sheepishly, advancing and reaching up to take the proffered hand. "I—I—oh, I been around."

The President smiled and patted him on the shoulder and turned to the business of greeting others.

Two photographers Joe used to work with hailed him, talking fast. The United Press reporter stepped up, grinning, and shook his hand. The manager of a great press syndicate elbowed his way through the crowd and clapped Joe on the back.

"Hello, Kelly," he said, brusquely. "What are you doing?"

"Nothin'," said Joe.

The manager looked him over carefully. "You ain't lookin' bad," he said. "You off the hooch?"

Joe nodded.

"I been on the wagon for months."

"Want to go to work?" said the manager.

"Sure," said Joe.

The engine whistled a warning. The manager spoke fast. "Want to go to Europe for us?" he said. "Looks like they were going to have another get-together at Genoa. Use you for that if it comes off. They're beginning to loosen up a little in Russia. Think it's about ripe for a good man to get in there, with a chance to make a get-away with some crackajack stuff. I'll be in New York Wednesday of next week. Will you meet me there then?"

Joe started to speak, hesitated, flushed. "Oh!" said the manager. "Need any dough?"

"Yes," said Joe. "I'm clean."

The manager dug in his pocket, fished out a roll and peeled off three $100 bills and some smaller ones. "Enough?" he asked.

"Sure!" said Joe.

The train began to move. The manager started to run. "See you in New York Wednesday, kid," he called back over his shoulder. "Good-by!"

The two photographers swung on to the train and called out their farewells to him. The Associated Press reporter, standing on the rear platform, near the President, waved to him. The President caught Joe's eye. "Not coming with us, Joe?" he called back.

"No, sir!" Joe answered him, raising his voice to be heard as the train gathered speed. "Not this time!"

"Good-by!" the President called to him. "Good luck!"

"Good luck," said Joe. "Good luck, sir!"

The train rolled away down the track, faster and faster.

The figures on the observation platform became invisible to the eyes of the watchers around the station. Joe drew a long breath, looked down at the bills in his hand, folded them and shoved them into his pocket. He looked about and became aware that he was standing alone in the center of a circle formed by silent, awed residents of Millertown. A voice from the outer edge of the circle terminated the silence.

"Well, I'll be damned!" it said softly.

And then Joe heard Jenny Potter. She was grasping her uncle by his coat lapels with frantic fingers and shouting into his face. "I told you so!" she said, hysterically. "I told you! Didn't I tell you? I told you!"

Brubaker, the grocer for whom Joe was working, stepped forward, abashed, and extended his hand. "I'm sorry, Joe," he said, awkwardly. "I kind o' had a suspicion all the time you was tellin' the truth."

Henry Stonington, the local banker, was next in line. He took Joe by the arm and spoke to him in a low voice. "We all owe you an apology, Mr. Kelly," he said, solemnly. "We are mighty glad to have you here in town. If you'd consider opening a photographer's shop here in Millertown, Mr. Kelly, I'm sure we could arrange to let you have the money for it. We ought to have a photographer here. We're big enough. And a man like you, with your experience and reputation"——

Joe raised his hands and looked at the banker. "You take your hands off my arm," he said, in a level voice. 'You low-down, corn-fed, hay-pitchin' piker, you. Take your hand off my arm an' get out o' reach o' me, or I'll hang one on your jaw that'll bend you lopsided."

As the banker backed away, Mr. Potter approached, grinning, nervous, conciliatory. "Well, Joe," he began, in a fawning tone, and got no further.

Joe reached into his pocket, brought forth the money the manager had left him, peeled off several bills, crumpled them in a wad in the palm of his hand, and flung it in Potter's face. "That's all I owe you, an' then some," he snarled. "If you think I'm grateful to you, you're crazy! You let me into your house when I was all busted up because Jenny talked you into it, an' you let me stay there because she promised to take care o' me, while she was doin' all the rest of the dirty work around your place for nothin' but a lot o' cross words an' mean looks! I don't owe you nothin' now but a poke in the snoot, and if you don't back away from me quick I'll pay that!"

He spoke, then, to the crowd in general. "You're a bunch o' hicks," he said, scornfully. "I come into your town down an' out an' all busted up, an' you give me the horse laugh. Well, here's the horse laugh back at you. I'm goin' back home where I come from. Back to my old job, an' back there the only place where we ever seen people like you is in the funny papers. Funny! That's what you are, the whole bunch o' you. Just funny!"

He searched the crowd with his eye and he found Jenny Potter, walked over to her and took her by the arm. "Come on, kid," he said, grandly. "You're the only regular guy in town! Come on up with me to your uncle's dirty old barn that he calls a house, while I pack my stuff."

Together they walked up the street as conspicuous as a pair of white seagulls among a flock of crows.

"I knew you'd show 'em," Jenny Potter exulted as she stood by while Joe packed his meager effects. "And you're going back to Europe, ain't you?" She was ecstatic with excitement.

"You ain't a bad kid," said Joe, patronizingly. "You been good to me, all right. Say, listen, kid! You lead a dog's life here. I know a guy in Chicago that runs a hotel—swell joint. I could get you on there at some kind of work or other."

"Oh, I don't know," she said, hesitatingly. to, but I don't know. I'll get along." And then, a wistful note in her voice: "Will you write sometimes from—oh, some of them places you're to in Europe?"

"You bet I will," said Joe, as he finished his "You ain't a bad gal at all. Comin' down to the with me?"

"I don't think so," Jenny said. "There'll be crowd that I might as well say good-by to you

Joe put his arms around her and kissed her casually. "Good-by, kid," he said. "Be good!"

"'By, Joe," she called after him, happily. awful glad!"

Joe walked down the street toward the station, his meager effects in a bundle under his arm, softly, well pleased with the world. So well was he that he condescended to nod to the ances that he met on the street occasionally, who have jeered at him the day before, and now to his slight greeting overeagerly. Nearing store, where he had clerked, he felt in his pocket a cigarette, stopped and swore. He patted his pockets, glanced at the clock over the Farmers' Building, turned and hurried back toward the home. He remembered leaving his cigarette case on the bureau while he was packing.

The front door of the Potter house was open. rushed in and stopped in the hall. He heard a crying in the parlor, crying with a wild abandon frightened him. He tiptoed softly to the door looked in. Jenny Potter lay face down on the her body convulsed with grief. Joe crossed the and laid his hand on her shoulder. "Say," he began.

The girl screamed and sat up. Her eyes were and swollen, and the thin face streaked with tears.

"Go 'way," she said, angrily. "What are you back here? You went away once, didn't you? didn't you stay away? What did you come back for? Go 'way; oh, go 'way, and let me be, I tell you! I— hate you! You didn't have no business comin' when you left. You go 'way an' leave me be!"

"Well, I'll be damned!" Joe said, gently.

"Go 'way," she commanded, angrily. Suddenly wrath forsook her; she collapsed on the couch, shaking with sobs. "Oh, oh, what did you come back for?" she wept. "I didn't mean to cry. Please go away, please, please!"

"Well, I'll be damned," Joe repeated to himself walked softly out.

He went slowly down the street and entered the post-office. While he was in there addressing a letter the train to Chicago whistled in, stopped, started, whistled out again. Joe dropped the letter in the walked across the street to the Farmers' Bank.

Henry Stonington, the president, rose from his behind the desk in the corner with an air of alarm. "It's all right," said Joe, soothingly. "I'm sorry I off my mouth at you down at the station. I was for a minute."

"Ch, that's quite all right," said Stonington, ing. "I don't blame you a bit. Not at all. Won't you sit down?"

"No," said Joe. "You said something to me down at the station about loaning me some money to start a photograph gallery?"

"Why, yes," said Stonington, surprised. "I thought you were leaving us. I thought you were"——

"No," said Joe, flushing. "I was, but I ain't. I'm going to get married and settle down here. You know this ain't a bad little town. Not half bad."

THE LAND HAS TIDES, JUST LIKE THE SEA

THE sea has no monopoly on tides, according to Walter D. Lambert of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, who points out that the land rises and falls in the same manner that the water does.

"The same attraction of the sun and moon which raises tides in the ocean must also raise tides in the so-called solid earth itself," he says, "for an absolutely rigid and unyielding body is merely a mathematical fiction. In observing ocean tides we necessarily refer them to the earth, so that what we get by observation is the difference between the tide in the water and the earth tide at the same point.

"If we could determine from a rigorous mathematical theory what the water tide would be on the hypothesis of an absolutely unyielding earth, we could then compare the tide actually observed with the theoretical tide and the difference would represent the yielding of the earth, or earth tide. Only in a few simple cases can we predict the water tide by mathematical theory alone.

"One such case is that of the so-called long-period tides, tides whose periods are about a fortnight or a month. The observed long-period tides are found to have about two-thirds of their theoretical values, an indication that the earth yields somewhat more than a globe of steel would do.

"Another case where the tide may be predicted from theory alone is that of the diurnal or semi-diurnal tide in a small and not too shallow body of water. Such a body might be anything from a trough a hundred feet long or so up to a body of water like Lake Superior. The tidal forces cause small changes in the direction of the plumb line and the water surface adjusts itself so as to remain always perpendicular to the instantaneous direction of the plumb line directly.

"Its motion is very small and an apparatus called the horizontal pendulum has been used to render the motion accessible to observation. When a water surface is observed it is more satisfactory to use an artificial body of water than a natural one; this was done by Drs. Michelson and Gale, who observed the minute tides in a horizontal pipe some 500 feet long.

"These tides were measured by a very delicate apparatus perfected by Prof. Michelson that depends on the interference of light waves from two different sources and is called the interferometer. The work of these two scientists represents the most accurate measurements of earth tides that have yet been made."

There are difficulties in interpreting some of the results of observation on the diurnal or semi-diurnal earth tides as observed with a horizontal pendulum or in a horizontal pipe, says Mr. Lambert. Observations made at several places not far from the Baltic Sea seemed to indicate that the earth is more rigid in an east-and-west than in a north-and-south direction. Many explanations have been given of this phenomenon, all but one of them more interesting than satisfying.

The most reasonable explanation is that the effect is due to the ocean tides, even though the ocean may be many miles away. As the water in the ocean moves in response to the tidal forces, its attraction on the plumb line varies; furthermore, the shifting load of water causes a variable tilt in the earth's crust and this, too, affects the plumb line by affecting the point of support.

The ocean tides are known only close to land; the tides in the open sea are matters of inference, but calculations based on the best data obtainable indicate that the supposed difference between the east-west rigidity and the north-south rigidity noticed in Europe may be adequately explained as the effect of ocean tides. Recent work on earth tides has tended toward higher values for the rigidity of the earth. One recent determination would make the effective rigidity of the earth as a whole about twice that of steel.

The range of the semi-diurnal lunar earth tide would be about 10 inches at the equator; the minimum range of the diurnal earth tide, which occurs in latitude degrees, would be about the same and the range of the solar tide at the equator would be about half as much.

Sent to Prison for Breaking Into Jail

IT HAS often happened that a man has broken out of jail and after being recaptured has been sent to the penitentiary for the crime of jail-breaking. Now comes Eminence, Mo., to claim the much rarer distinction of sending a man to the penitentiary for breaking into jail.

W. B. Powell, a Shannon County Deputy Sheriff, recently seized a moonshine still and placed it in the county jail for safekeeping. One night the jail bars were cut from the outside and the still was stolen.

Suspicion rested on Charles Lambrum and he was arrested and put in jail, where, it so happened, a friend of Lambrum also was a prisoner.

The Sheriff hid where he could hear conversations of the prisoner friends and in this way he learned that the still had been hidden in a pile of sawdust at a nearby sawmill.

Lambrum pleaded guilty to a burglary charge and was sentenced to the penitentiary for two years.

In the cellar chimney were the remains of a body of a boy of about the age of Howard Pitezel! Armed with this damning evidence, Geyer returned to Philadelphia prepared to face the man who was held on the minor charge of trying to defraud an insurance company.

In the meantime, however, the police in other parts of the country had been making interesting investigations into the past life of the mysterious Mr. Holmes, and one result of these was the discovery in Chicago of the building referred to as "Holmes' Castle." It was here that the man of many aliases had conducted his legitimate business of pharmacy. In a stove in the cellar were found charred portions of human bones, and in a secret room, located well down in the foundations of the structure, was a large dissecting table soaked with blood, under which was a locket later identified as having belonged to the Miss Minnie Williams, whose property Holmes had administered in Forth Worth.

Inquiries showed that Miss Williams had come to the "castle" as a registered nurse and that, some months later, she had invited her sister Nannie to be present at her wedding to Dr. Holmes. Nannie had come to Chicago, but there the trail ended. The two sisters had vanished completely and the only traces that remained of them were the gruesome remains in the cellar of the Chicago building—remains that were also supposed to include those of a man named Conner, who had previously been in Holmes' employ, his wife and a typist by the name of Emily Cigrand, who had been recommended to Holmes by Benjamin Pitezel.

Conner and his wife had both entered Holmes' employ some years before, only to disappear mysteriously, just as had the others who came into the Holmes' castle. In their case, however, the matter had occasioned little comment because of the fact that their home was at a distance and because the proprietor of the castle had casually informed his neighbors that the pair had gone back to Canada, a statement which may or may not have been true.

In connection with Emily Cigrand, however, a man who had worked for Holmes some three years previously testified that the pharmacist had accidentally opened the door of his secret workroom, displaying the skeletons of no less than 10 persons, while the figure of a woman answering to the description of Miss Cigrand was still stretched upon the dissecting table.

"It is extremely doubtful if any of these mysteries—and Holmes later confessed to having committed 27 murders in the course of his career—would ever have been solved had it not been for the fact that a convict in the St. Louis prison happened to see a five-line newspaper dispatch from Philadelphia," concluded Bill Quinn, tapping his pipe on the edge of the hearth with an air of finality.

"There are those who quote the old saying that 'murder will out' with a great air of wisdom, but the fact remains that murder is 'out' in the majority of cases only because of chance or the exceptional work of some routine detective whose ability to stick to a case until it is solved beats the genius of Sherlock Holmes and other fictional sleuths all hollow. The Holmes case is only one of a dozen of its kind—and we can assume that for every one discovered there are at least a score that go unpunished. Crime is a fine thing to theorize over, but when you come down to cases it is, as someone has remarked, 'something else again.'

"Hedgepeth didn't get a day off as reward for his assistance in landing the greatest of murderers.

"Holmes went to the gallows as the result of his failure to live up to a promise made to an obscure convict whose existence he had probably forgotten, just as the man who was responsible for the theft of the 'Eyes of Buddha' bungled an almost perfectly planned robbery through not noticing that his wife used a distinctive and unusual perfume."

"'The Eyes of Buddha?'" I asked. "What case was that?"

"One which resembled the Holmes matter in that perseverance and determination played a much larger part than the scientific deductions and infallible good luck of the detectives who figure so prominently in novels," the retired Secret Service man answered. "We'll have to save that story for another occasion, though, for the 'Eyes of Buddha' were gems of sufficient value to entitle them to separate consideration."

The sheep-gland diet as a remedy for certain subnormal minds is not new. Chinese physicians used it 5000 years before Christ. Among their prescriptions were directions for preparing soup from the thyroid glands of sheep. The secret was apparently lost and rediscovered by the Occident about 1870.

According to T. M. Van Tuyl, professor of geology at Colorado School of Mines, glaciers still were active ...down the Rocky Mountains as recently as a ...thousand years ago. Van Tuyl had not seen the image stone when he made that statement, but he had found in the Denver mountain parks, near the place where the stone was dug up, alternate dark and light-colored banded rocks which he believes date back to the Archaean period, close to the creation of the world—otherwise, the beginning of the globe's shaping into form out of the primeval chaos and black night. Certain geologists find in these discoveries by Van Tuyl, and in the numerous uplifts in the Rockies, several times nearly worn away by glacial pressure, reasons for their contention that the Colorado stone may date back thousands or even millions of years.

Chalmers is receiving requests from museums and research societies for the privilege of taking plaster-cast impressions so that they may study the image stone under strong glasses. Some of the enthusiasts have sought to borrow the stone for such experiments. Chalmers, consequently, is almost as much at sea as to its final disposal as are the scientists as to its true status as a fake or a find extraordinary.

...The "village" is set close to a maraa, or ...temple: a long platform of coral blocks on which, in the old days, the rites of human sacrifice were performed. The island must have been thickly populated at one time, for the ruins of houses were everywhere, as well as the earthworks surrounding ancient taro beds. There is a story that the Bora Bora people raided the place, killing the men and carrying the women off into captivity; perhaps this is true—at any rate, the last of them was dead a hundred years ago. In the course of time, the island fell into the hands of a family of native royalty, and from them was acquired by the trading firm which owns it now.

Leaving the small children in the shade to be cared for by larger ones, the women made at once for the empty houses. I saw them sweeping, dusting and installing their bedding and sea chests, with the tight lips and far-away air which come to all women—white or brown—on moving day. Presently the smoke began to rise from half a dozen native ovens—our fish was cooking for the evening meal.

Taylor's servants had opened his house and were setting out mats and steamer chairs on the veranda, dusting the living room and carrying armfuls of books out to air in the sun. As we sat down for a moment, I glanced at the scene on which the Englishman's eyes would rest morning and evening for nine long months: the dense green palms of the island, the other islets, far off across the shimmering green of the lagoon; the snowy curve of the reef, the empty blue sea, stretching away beyond. It was a lonely prospect.

"Well," remarked Taylor, with a smile, "how would you like this sort of a life?"

I shook my head; there is a limit to an ordinary man's capacity for loneliness. The beauty of the place, and the sense of isolation brooding over it, were overpowering.

The sun was low and the shadows of the palms were long when I said good-by. We got the cable aboard and the mechanician began to tinker with the engine as the schooner drifted offshore. Taylor was standing on the reef, a strong, buff figure, naked save for a kilt of scarlet cloth about his waist. His voice floated out to us over the thunder of the surf.

"Cheerio!" he shouted. "See you next year!"

find a similar barometric pressure on the earth it is necessary to ascend to a height of more than 12 miles above ground. At such heights there is so little oxygen that none of the higher animals could live.

It is not impossible that there might be plant life in such conditions, but it would be just as unscientific to deny the possibility as to affirm it.

The physical law of Stefan enables us to prove that the average surface temperature on Mars is 27 degrees below zero, Centigrade. At the poles the temperature may rise several degrees above freezing point, quite enough to melt the snows, while at the equator it would rise considerably higher. But the atmosphere is so rarified that it would permit a tremendous radiation from the surface at night, and the variations of temperature between day and night would be at least 100 degrees.

"A detestable state of affairs for maintaining life!" remarks the Abbe.

Another fact. Just as a saucer of water turns into vapor when placed under the bell of an air-pump, and the pressure is diminished, so water on Mars rapidly turns to vapor. Although Lowell has asserted that there are no clouds on Mars, the Abbe Moreux has actually watched them form in sufficient quantity to conceal parts of the ground. And he has seen fogs existing for weeks at a time.

He says the water is evaporated during the day and falls as snow at night, and sometimes the rays of the sun are not powerful enough to melt all the snow or disseminate all the fog.

Now, these fogs and snows would naturally lie most thickly in the valleys, and would leave the high edges of the valleys clear on each side. And these clear sides, with fog-filled valleys, may easily be the "double canals" which some astronomers assert they have seen.

The Abbe Moreux asks how the Martians, in their stupendous irrigation work, could prevent or overcome this evaporation or could capture from the clouds the water necessary to the success of their projects.

Again, the conditions of an atmospheric circulation are such that they give rise to very violent winds, so violent that they whirl into the air clouds of dust which are sometimes visible through telescopes.

"These," writes the Abbe, "are the brilliant clouds which certain astronomers have presented as veritable signals of fire launched by the Martians to their brethren in space."

Again he says:

"A sojourn, even of brief duration, in this essentially desert climate has, therefore, nothing that might tempt representations of earthly humanity, and if in former days thinking beings have inhabited this spot—admitting at least an incredible faculty for adapting themselves to such an inhospitable climate—it is quite a long time since animal life, at least in its higher manifestations, disappeared forever from this planet, where cold reigns as absolute master.

"Mars presents to us a condition intermediate between the earth and the moon, and the phenomena at which we assist from afar are probably only the last manifestations of a life that is dying. Slowly, very slowly, time has done its work; it is anesthesia by cold which puts the worlds to sleep and gently speeds the road to death."

As for the stars, they cannot be inhabited, they are all red-hot or white-hot suns. But have planets—dead stars—circulating about our sun, there is no reason for denying that ets may be inhabited.

"How suppose that among these hundreds of of suns, ours is alone in possessing planets exist the delicate conditions necessary to the ing of life? It is, without a doubt, very diffi lieve a priori that the sun is a privileged star, he alone possesses an earth carrying living upon its surface.

"The contrary seems to us more in conform reason, and perhaps with sentiment."

nique of astronomy than to a book of description. In practice, daylight is but little used. Electric lights are burned all the time in all houses, buildings, railway stations and clubs. This practice, which is now universally observed, is called Daylight Saving.

I have neglected so far to say anything about the mind of London. This is a thing that is always put into any book of discovery and observation, and I can only apologize for not having discussed it sooner. I am quite familiar with other people's chapters on "The Mind of America" and "The Chinese Mind" and so forth. Indeed, so far as I know, it has turned out that almost everybody all over the world has a mind. Nobody nowadays travels, even in Central America or Thibet, without bringing back a chapter on "The Mind of Costa Rica" or on the "Psychology of the Mongolian."

It is quite obvious, then, that there is such a thing as the mind of London; and it is all the more culpable in me to have neglected it, inasmuch as my editorial friend in New York had expressly mentioned it to me before I sailed. "What," said he, leaning far over his desk, after his massive fashion, and reaching out into the air, "what is in the minds of these people? Are they," he added, half to himself, though I heard him, "are they thinking? And if they think, what do they think?"

I did, therefore, during my stay in London, make an accurate study of the things that London seemed to be thinking about. As a comparative basis for this study I brought with me a carefully selected list of the things that New York was thinking about at the moment. These I selected from the current newspapers in the proportions to the amount of space allotted to each topic and the size of the heading that announced it. Having thus a working idea of what I may call the mind of New York, I was able to collect and set beside it a list of similar topics taken from the London press to represent the mind of London. The two placed side by side make an interesting piece of psychological analysis. They read as follows:

THE MIND OF NEW YORK—WHAT IS IT THINKING?

1. Do chorus girls make good wives?

THE MIND OF LONDON—WHAT IS IT THINKING?

1. Do chorus girls marry well?
2. What is red hair a sign of?
3. Can a man be in love with two women?
4. Is genius a sign of fat?

Looking over these lists, I think it is better to present them without comment. I feel sure that somewhere or other in them one should detect the heart throbs, the pulsations of two great peoples. But I don't get it. In fact, the two lists look to me terribly like "the mind of Costa Rica."

The same editor also advised me to mingle, at his expense, in the brilliant intellectual life of England. "There," he said, "is a coterie of men, probably the most brilliant group east of the Mississippi (I think he said the Mississippi). "You will find them," he said to me, "brilliant, witty, filled with repartee." He suggested that I should send him back, as far as words could express it, some of this brilliance. I was very glad to be able to do this, although I fear that the results were not at all what he had

Let me tell you about the remarkable discovery which removed my superfluous hair at once—then forever

To look at my face today—to see my skin as free from hair as a baby's and as clear and rosy looking as that of a young girl—you would not believe that I was once literally a "bearded woman" with hair on cheeks, skin and lips, and with a skin coarse and blemished.

A Woman's Experience

The transformation has been marvelous—all through a truly wonderful discovery of Science which immediately banished every vestige of the hair and gave me this perfect complexion. This, after I had suffered from embarrassing hair growths for years, and tried numerous ways to relieve the condition—even the painful electric needle.

Now I want every woman who suffers from unsightly, embarrassing hair growths, to know about this discovery which removes the hair at once, and with a few applications removes it permanently. I want to tell women how they can use this method themselves, in the privacy of their homes, and prove, without risking a penny, that it is all I claim for it.

I say that this discovery will remove superfluous hair permanently, and that it is the only method that I know of which will do this.

The discovery which Science brought to me is unlike anything else you have ever tried. It is not a powder, not a paste, not a wax, not a liquid, not a razor, not electrolysis. It causes no pain—no burning, no itching, no scarring. It not only removes the hair—it gives the skin a new beauty—makes it soft, clear, rosy, free from pimples, roughness and other blemishes. It does not have to be applied by a beauty specialist. You use it yourself. It's the simplest, easiest way you can imagine.

My Free Book Tells the Secret—Send for It

I have written a book which tells how I came to discover this amazing method and how any woman can get rid of superfluous hair, and know that it is permanently gone. Don't send a penny—don't make any promise. Just write to me. The book is free. A post card brings it.

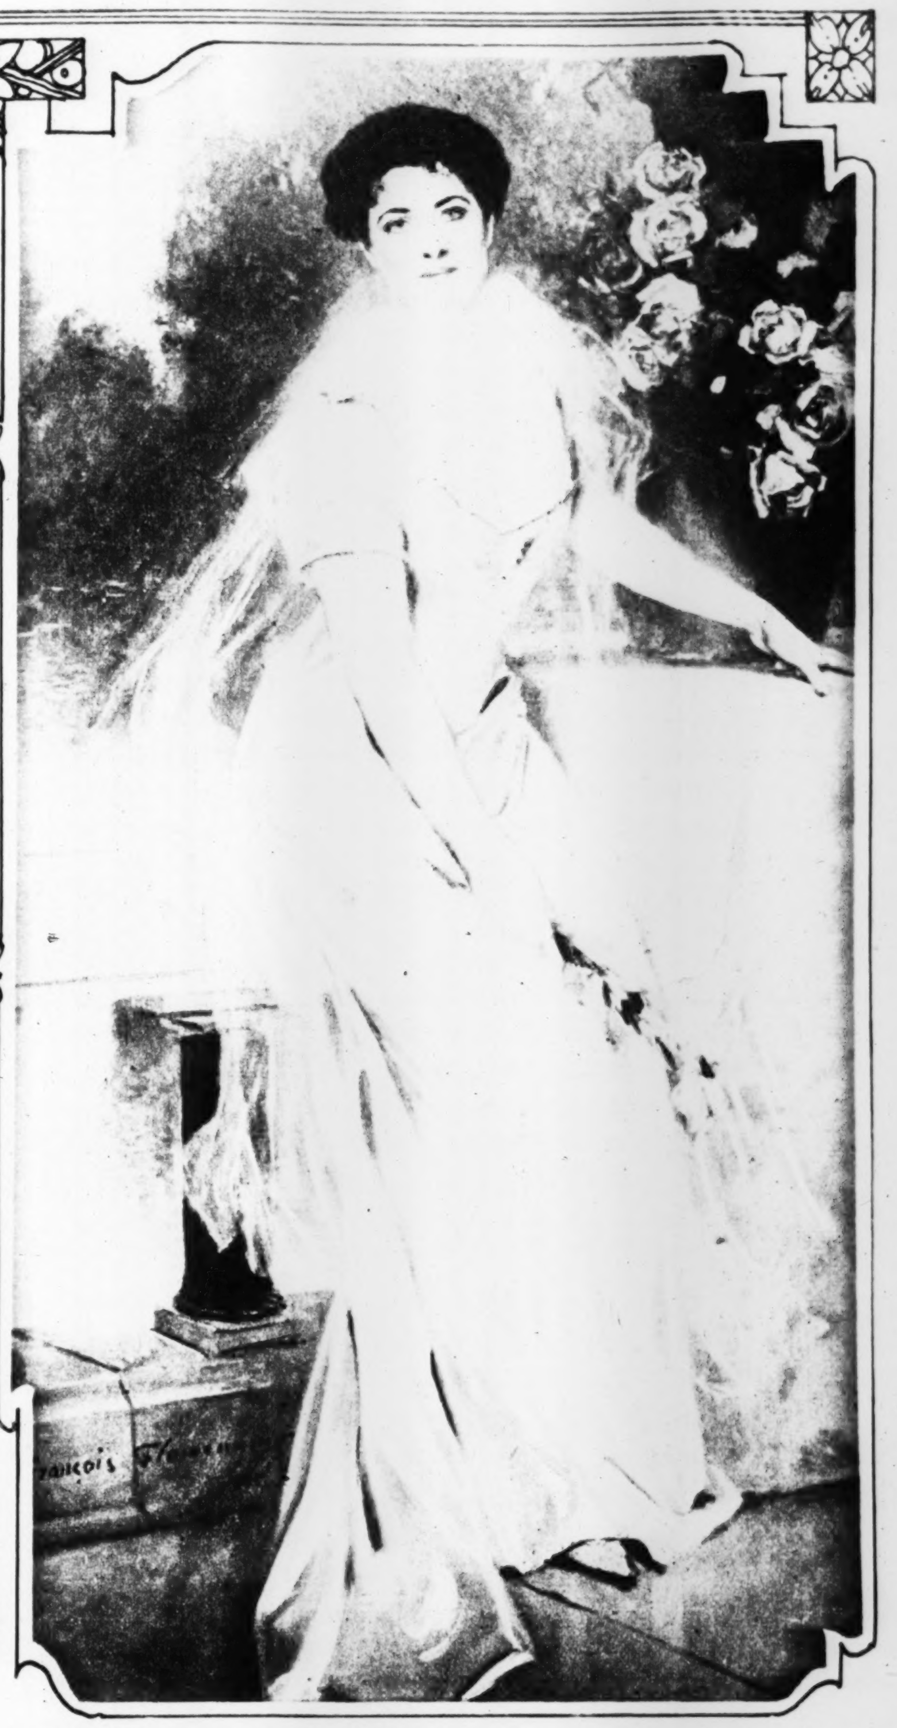
These two lions were killed in Africa by the gun-and-camera men led by H. A. Snow, seen here with his black carrier, Dwano.

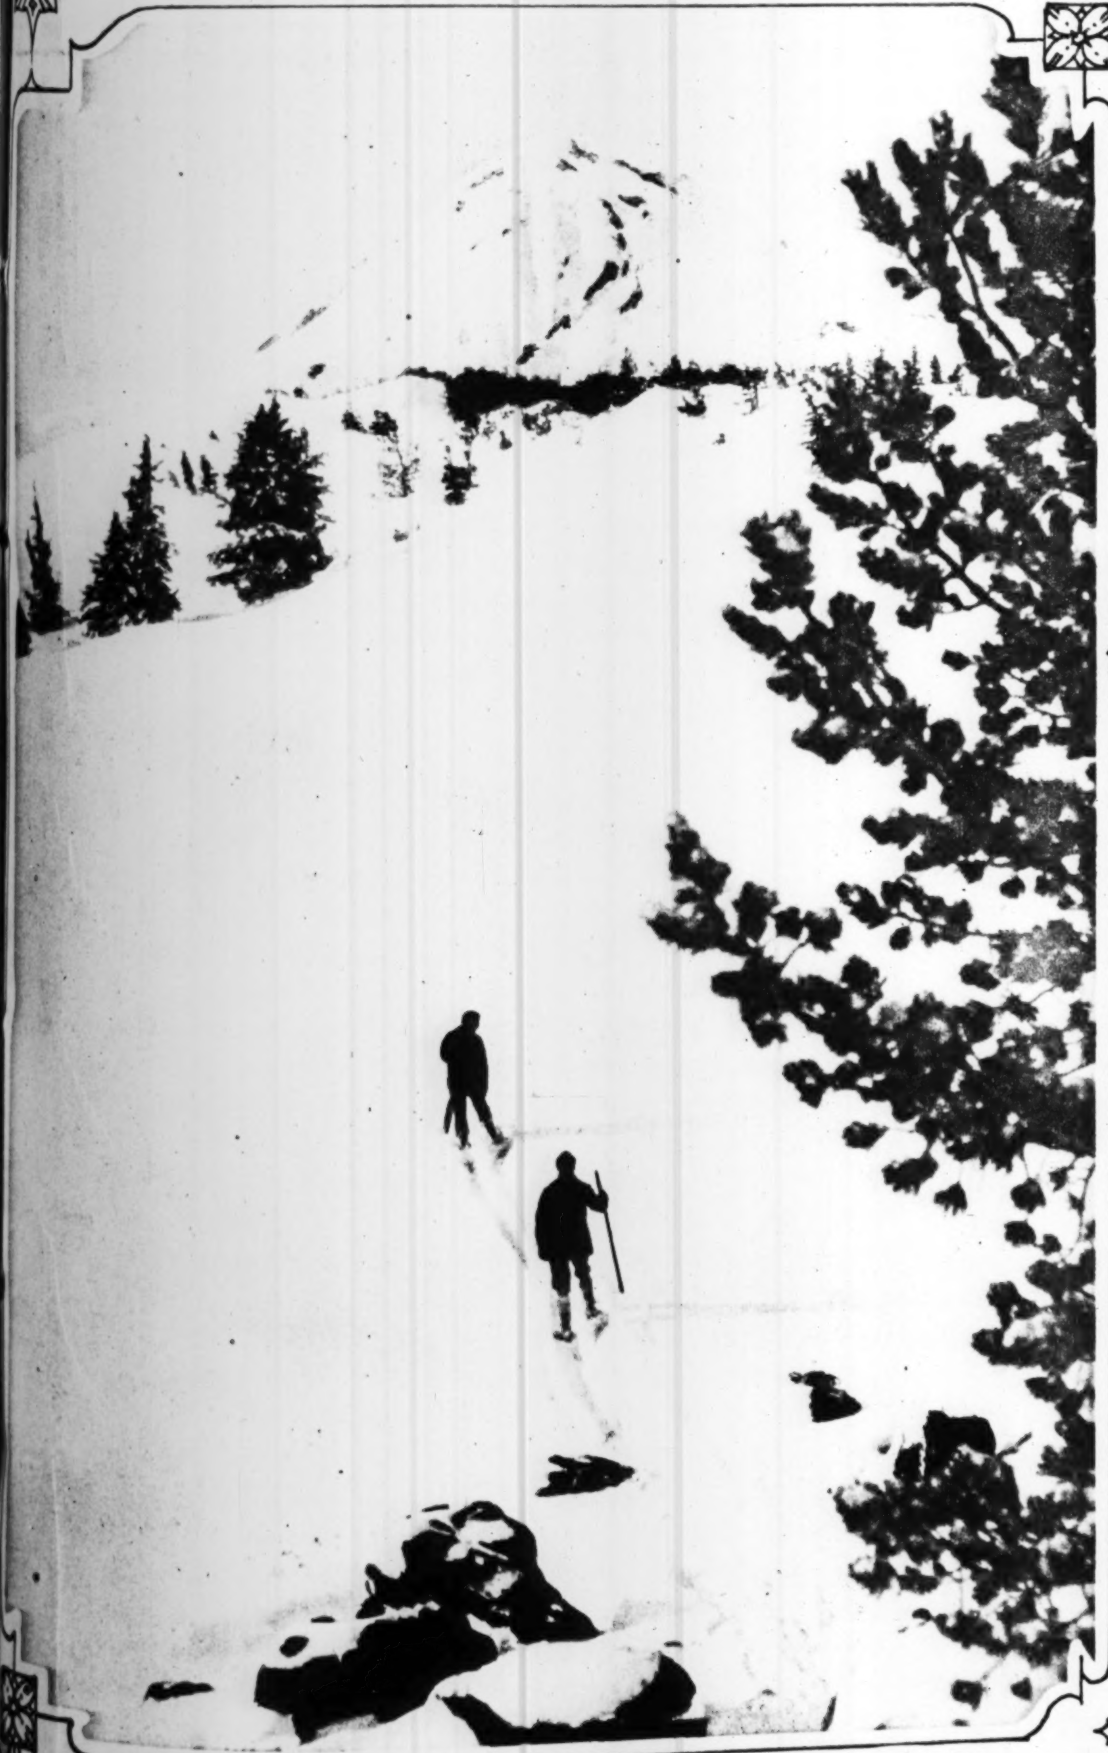


Photograph of an oil portrait of Mrs. Sidmon McHie of New York, daughter of John F. Mulhall of St. Louis. Mrs. McHie, who says she never has been photographed, and who has an aversion for the camera, recently made a will whereby she is to give all her estate to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. A hospital for dogs and other animals is to be built and maintained from the fund.

—Underwood & Underwood.

For the second time Mlle. Bineur, seen here, has won the French prize as the most nearly perfect mannequin, or, in plain English, dressmaker's model.

—Kadel & Herbert.



Summit and slope of splendid Mount Hood, in Oregon, clad in winter dress. Note the climbers toiling through the snow. Hood is one of America's most beautiful peaks.

—Wide World.

This "long timber wolf" will worry no more cattle in California. His pelt is worth $20.

Minneapolis has plenty of ice-boating this season, being considerably colder than St. Louis. Here is seen Miss Loretta Shea of the Northern city, enjoying a ride on the framework of her craft.

Above: A cheta killing a deer in Baroda Stata, India. This beast, which is a leopard, is trained and used by hunters. Until the actual kill is to be made, it is kept under control. When let loose, it creeps up and strikes swiftly. At the right a cheta is seen riding to the hunt.

In sight of the Capitol at Washington, members of Congress, and others, are voting unofficially on prohibition. The man casting the ballot is Congressman Richard N. Elliott of Indiana. The girls said he voted dry. Standing by is Congressman John Philip Hill of Maryland, a wet.

"Miss Canada," otherwise Miss Phyllis Venables, at the recent opening of the Winter Carnival at Mount Royal, Montreal, took it easy on her skis, as you see here.

At the left, and above, are shown tapestries by Lorenz Kleiser of New York, for the Senate lounge in the Missouri State Capitol at Jefferson City. Each is 5½ by 11 feet, and each cost $1900. There are four tapestries, depicting resources upon which the prosperity of the State is founded. With their installation, the decoration of the lounge has been completed. "River Traffic," at left, and "Lead Mining," above, are shown here.

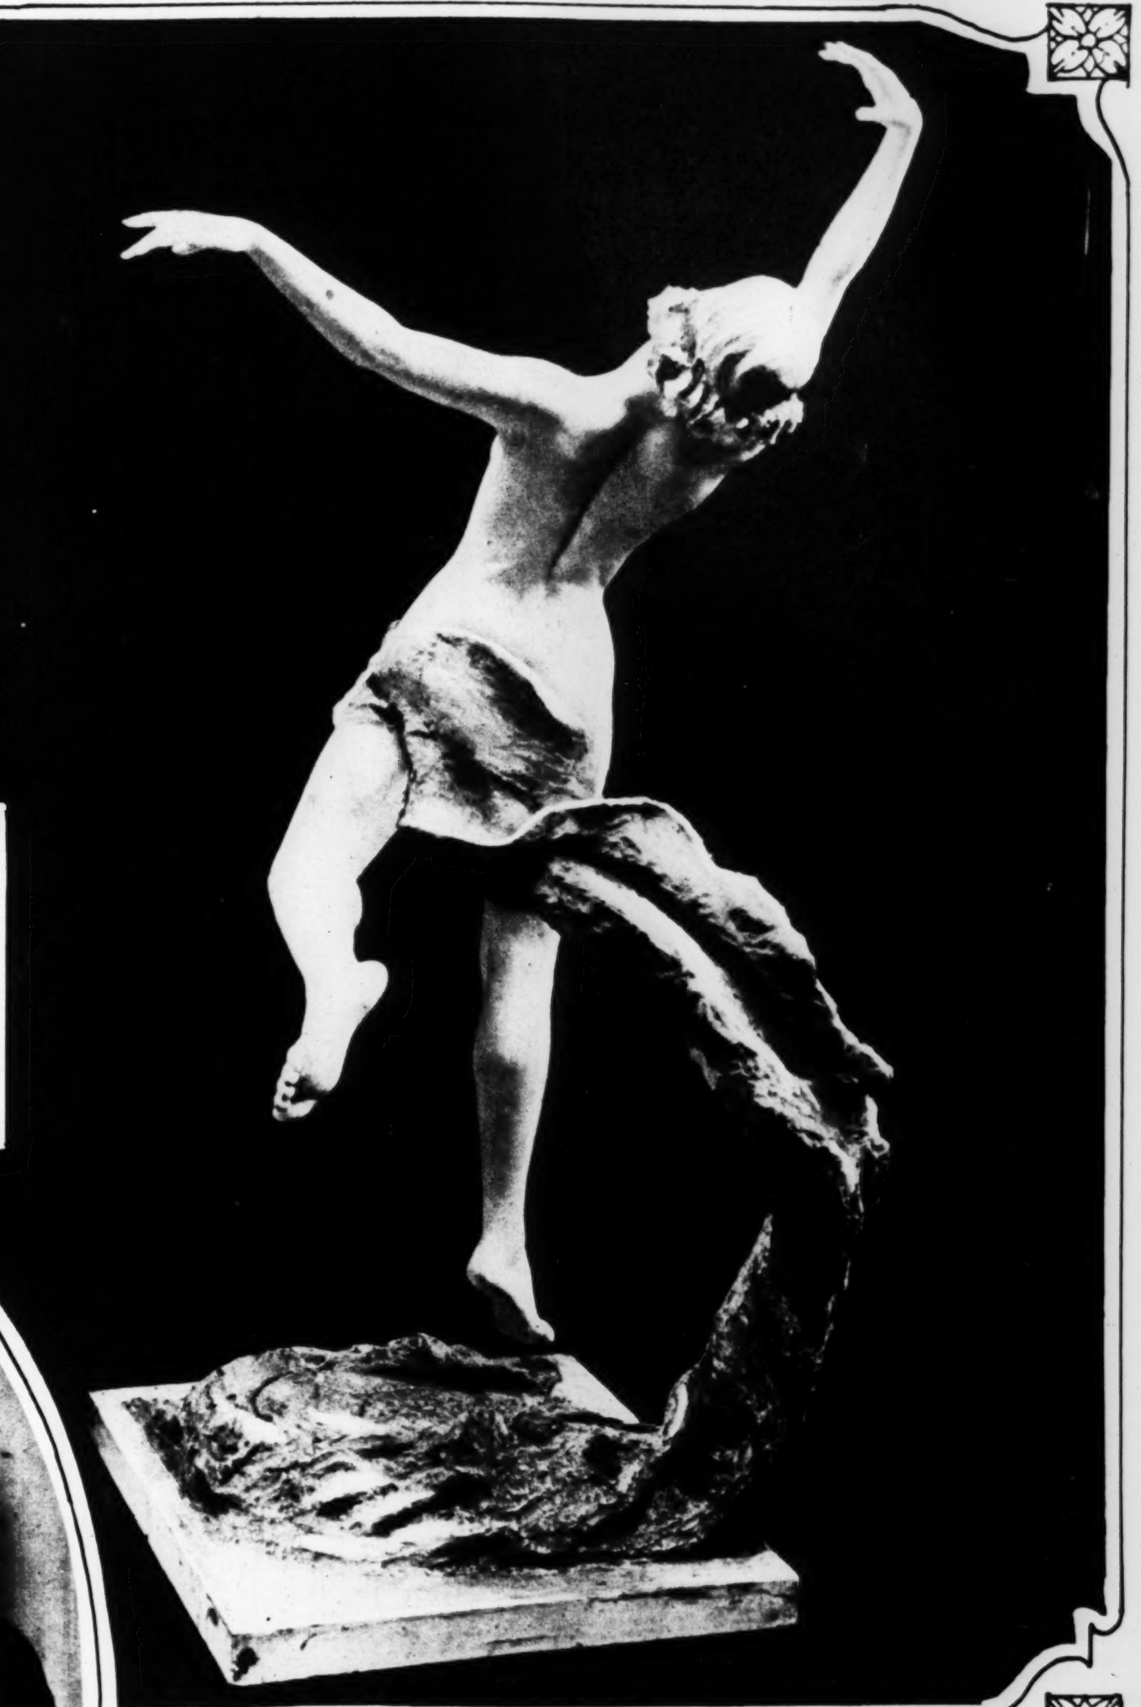
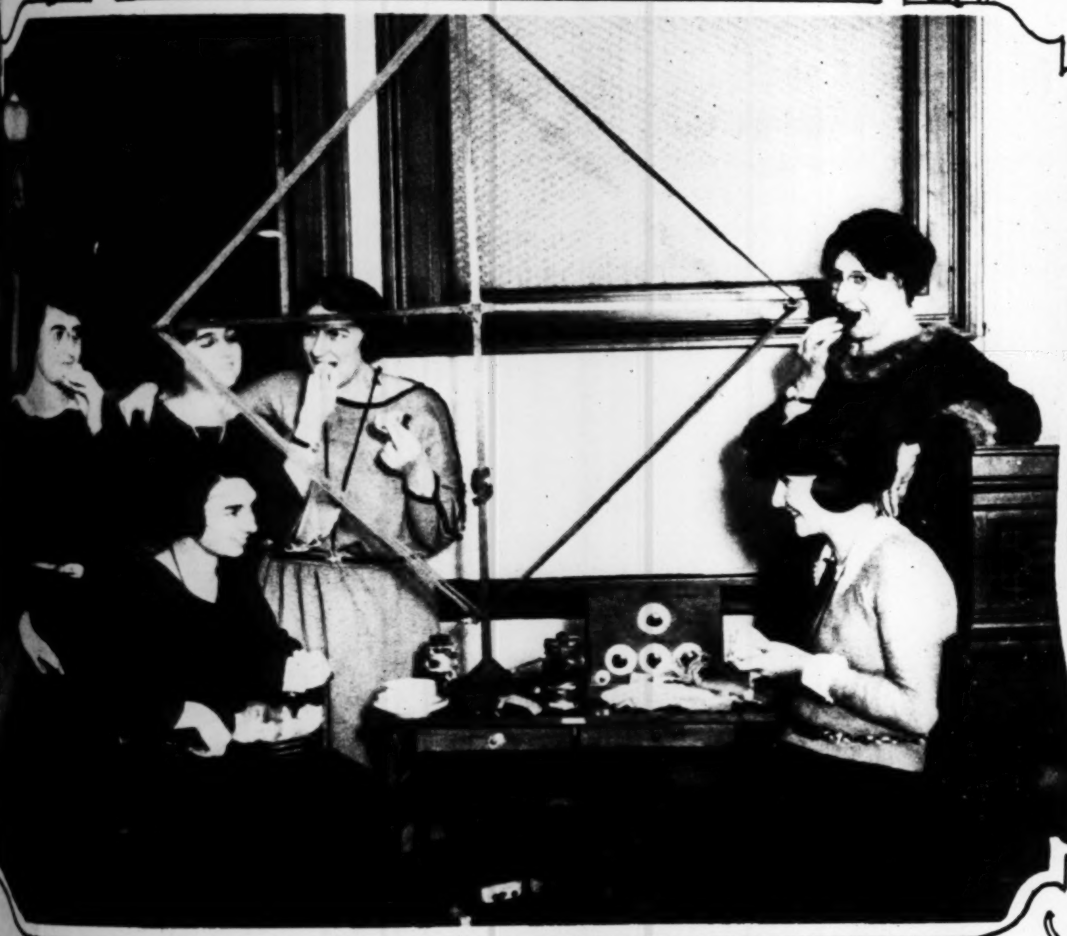
Remarkable new view of Vesuvius in eruption as photographed from an airplane. —Underwood & Underwood.



This wonderful sculpture, "The Dancer," by Alexander Zeitlin, is unique in that the 900-pound weight of the figure is supported altogether by the structure of the flowing drapery. —Wide World Photos.



The radio lunch is the latest. These stenographers and office girls, instead of going out at noon, eat to music from the ether. —Kadel & Herbert News Photo.

Comedian Eddie Foy, at 64, has taken to wife pretty Mrs. Mary Coombs, a divorcee, 29, and from Missouri. This is Foy's fourth marriage. He has had fifteen children, and says he's going to raise another family. —P. & A. Photo.

These Junior Players will appear at the Artists' Guild in "The Cricket on the Hearth," Jan. 26 and 27 and Feb. 3, directed by Alice Martin. From left to right, they are: Edmee Schmitz as Mrs. Fielding; Ruth Lee as Mrs. Dot, and Dorothy Hughes as May Fielding.

At the hour of prayer in India, thousands of devout Mohammedans thus bow themselves to the ground. —Underwood & Underwood.

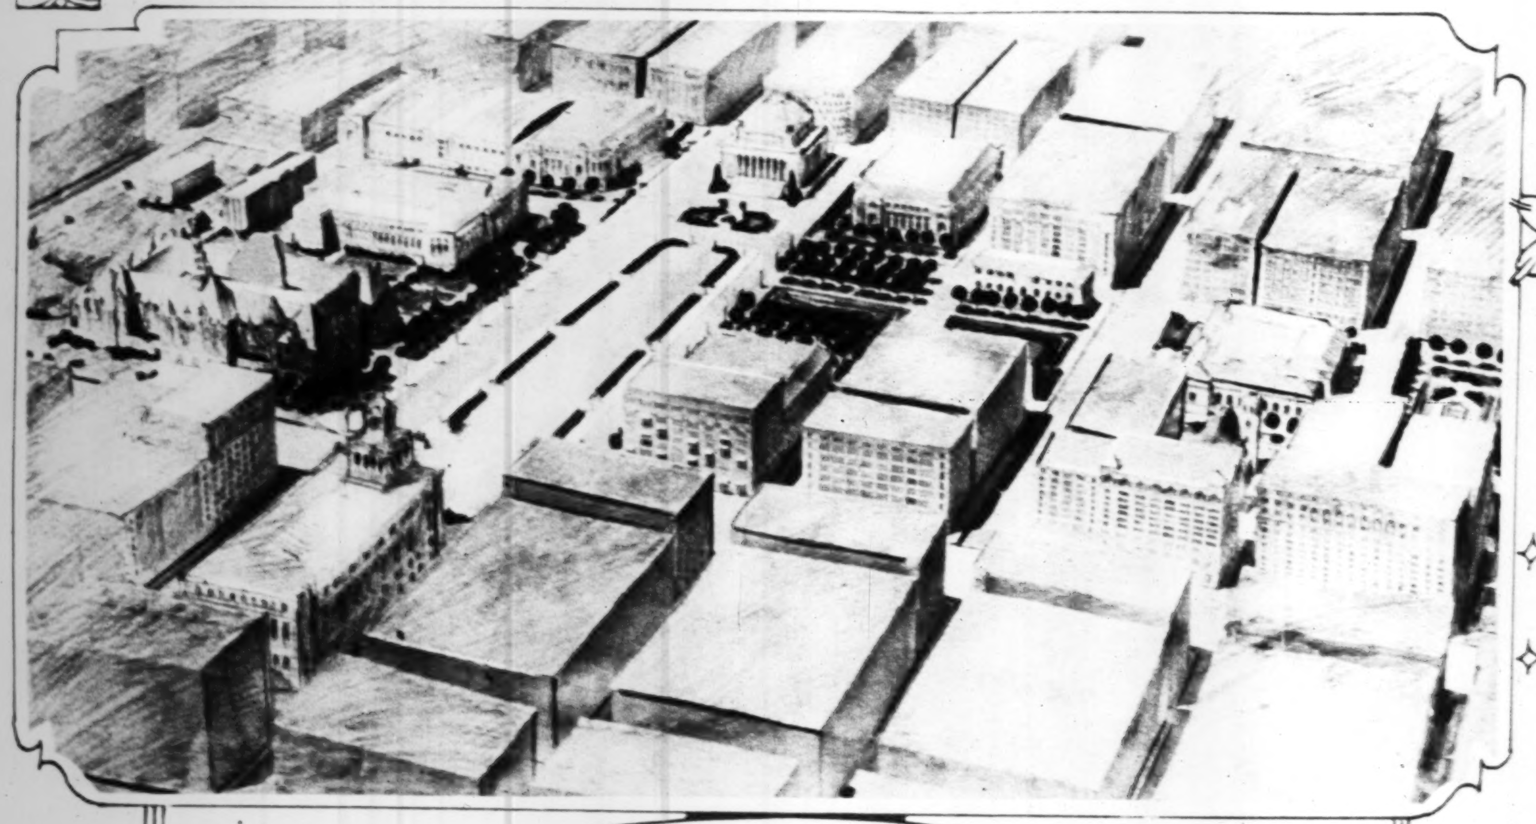
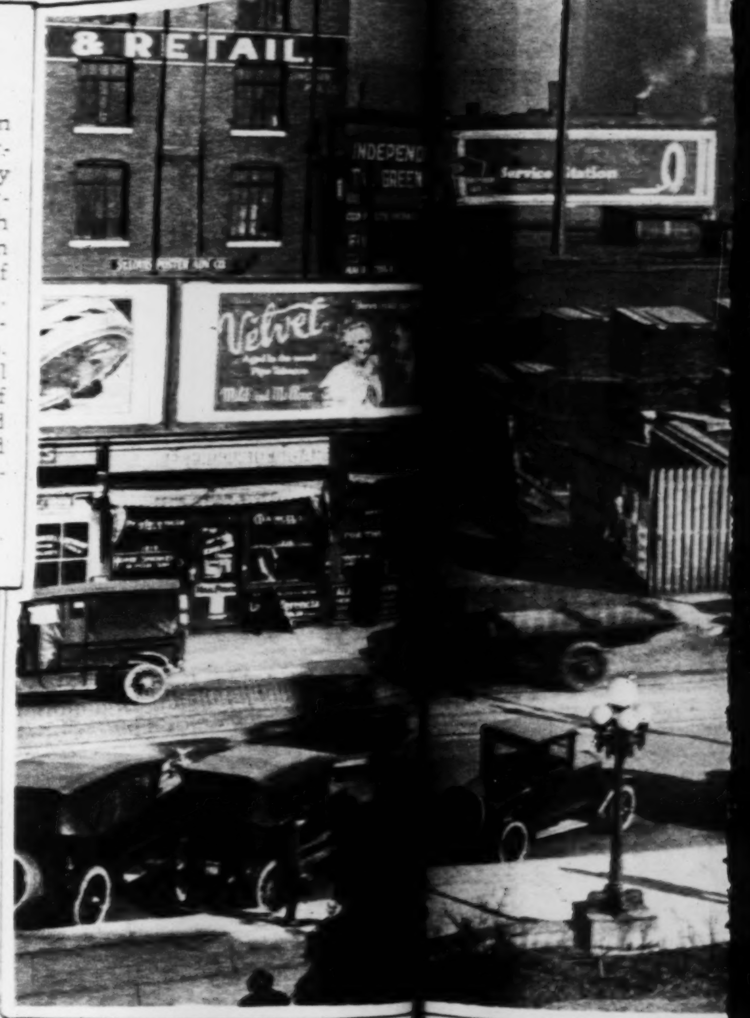
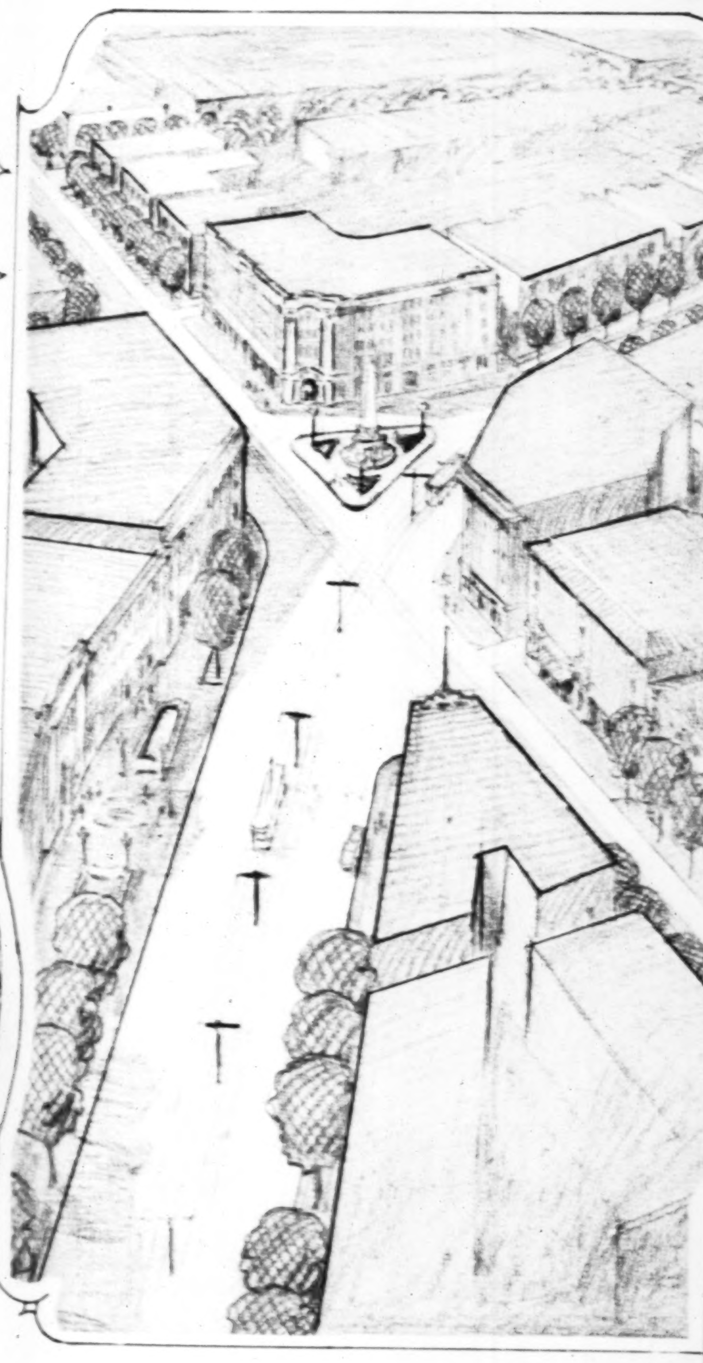
Improvements planned under the bond issue. Above: Three principal buildings in proposed City Hall Plaza. From left to right, Municipal Auditorium, Soldiers' Memorial and Hall of Records. Below: A general view of the proposed plaza system, extending from the City Hall to the Public Library.



A striking contrast in the locations and surroundings of City Halls. To right: Market street at Twelfth street, the view seen from the front door of the St. Louis City Hall. Above: The civic center of San Francisco. There is a beautiful parked plaza in front of the City Hall and around this are ranged the other public buildings.





"The bond issue would solve many traffic problems. It would, for instance, make possible this proposed cutoff at Gravois avenue and Grand boulevard."

Sewer improvement is an urgent need. Above: The bed of the River des Peres, which is, in reality, a noxious open sewer running through the West End residence district. Many of the older sewers are crumbling away. At right: A view in the Trudeau street sewer, showing break in wall. At left: A break in the wall of the Elliot avenue sewer, which was built more than 40 years ago.

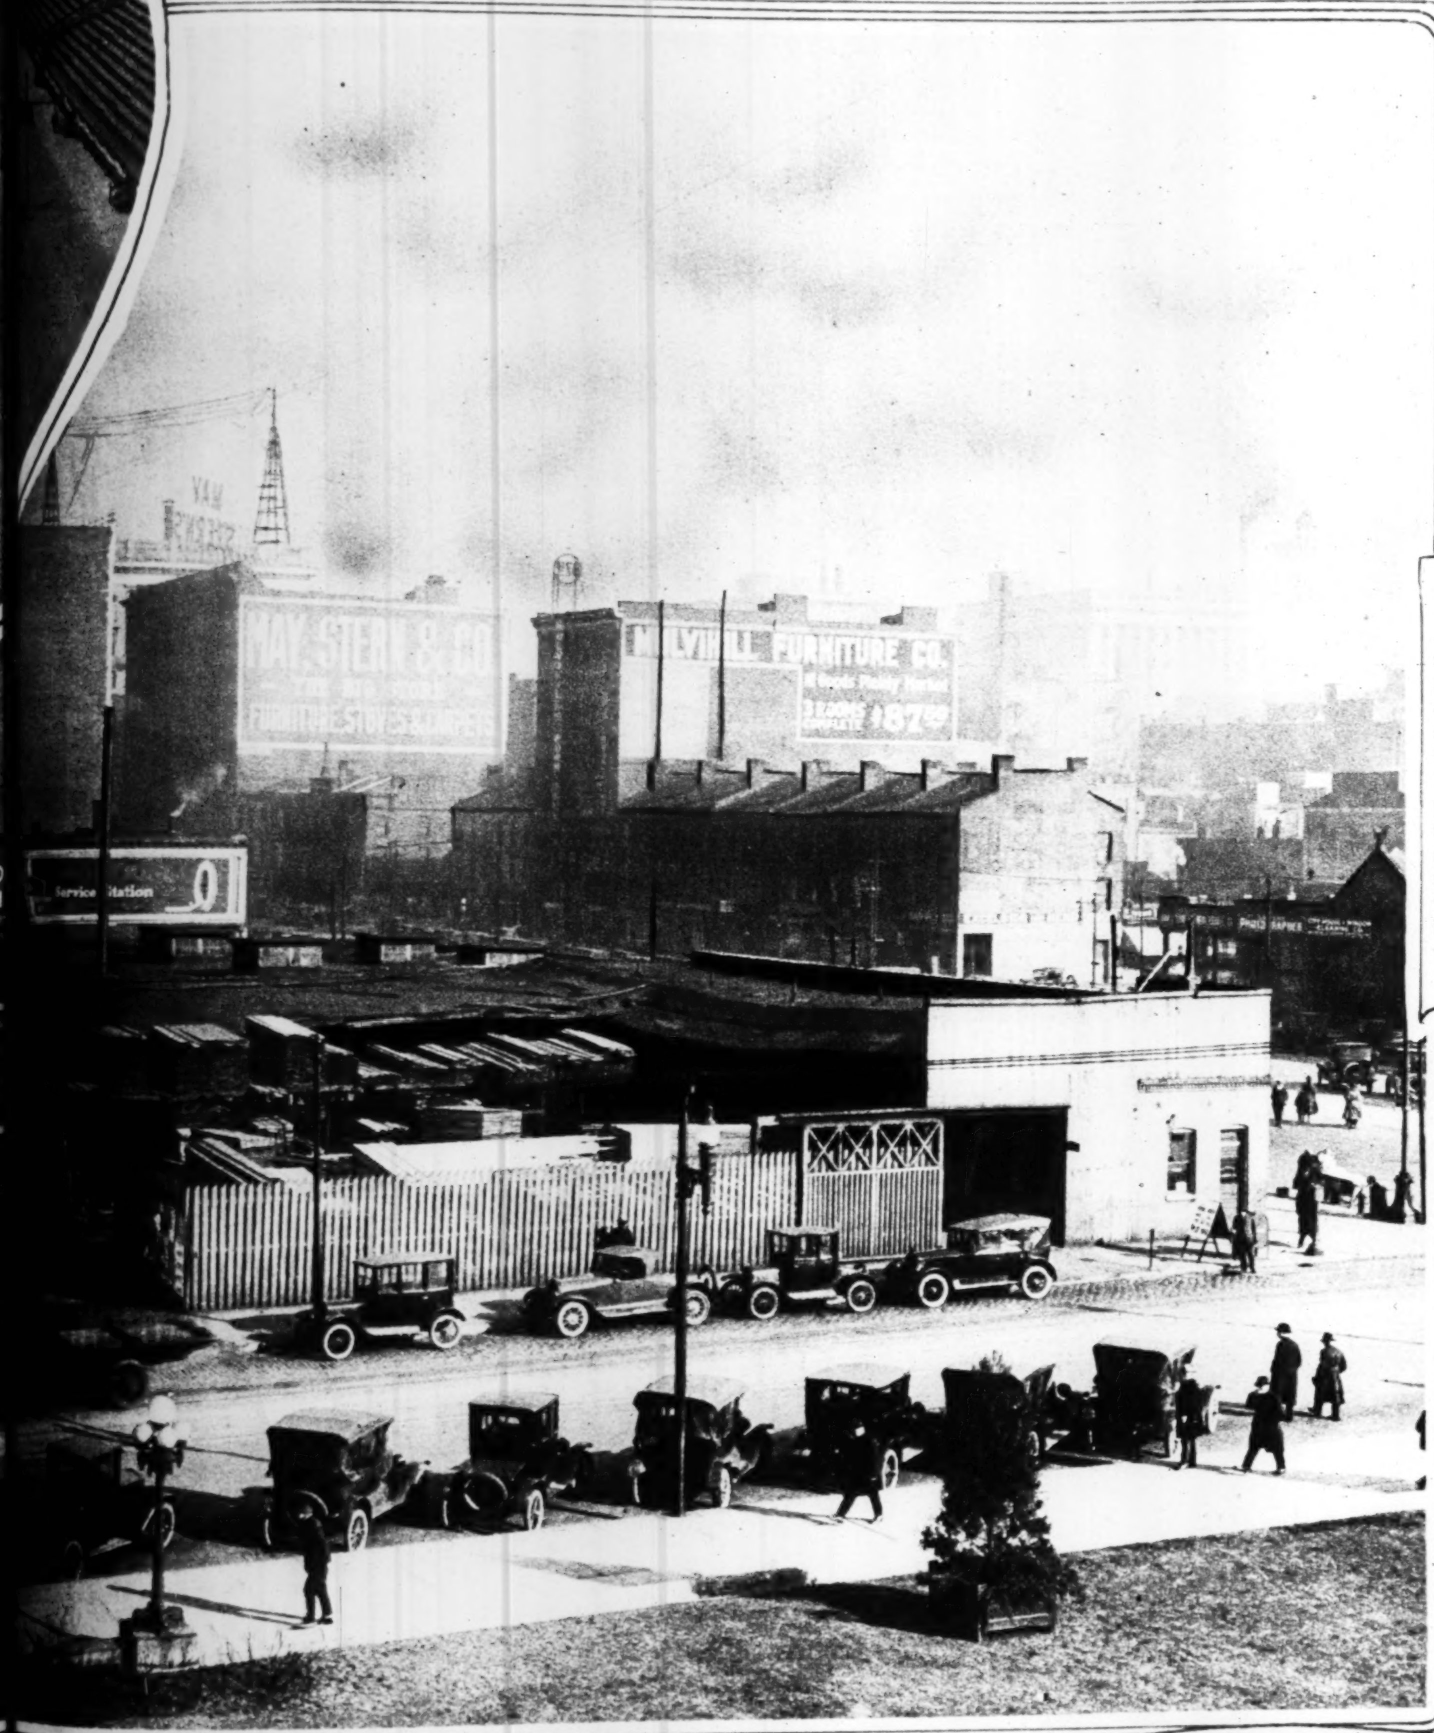
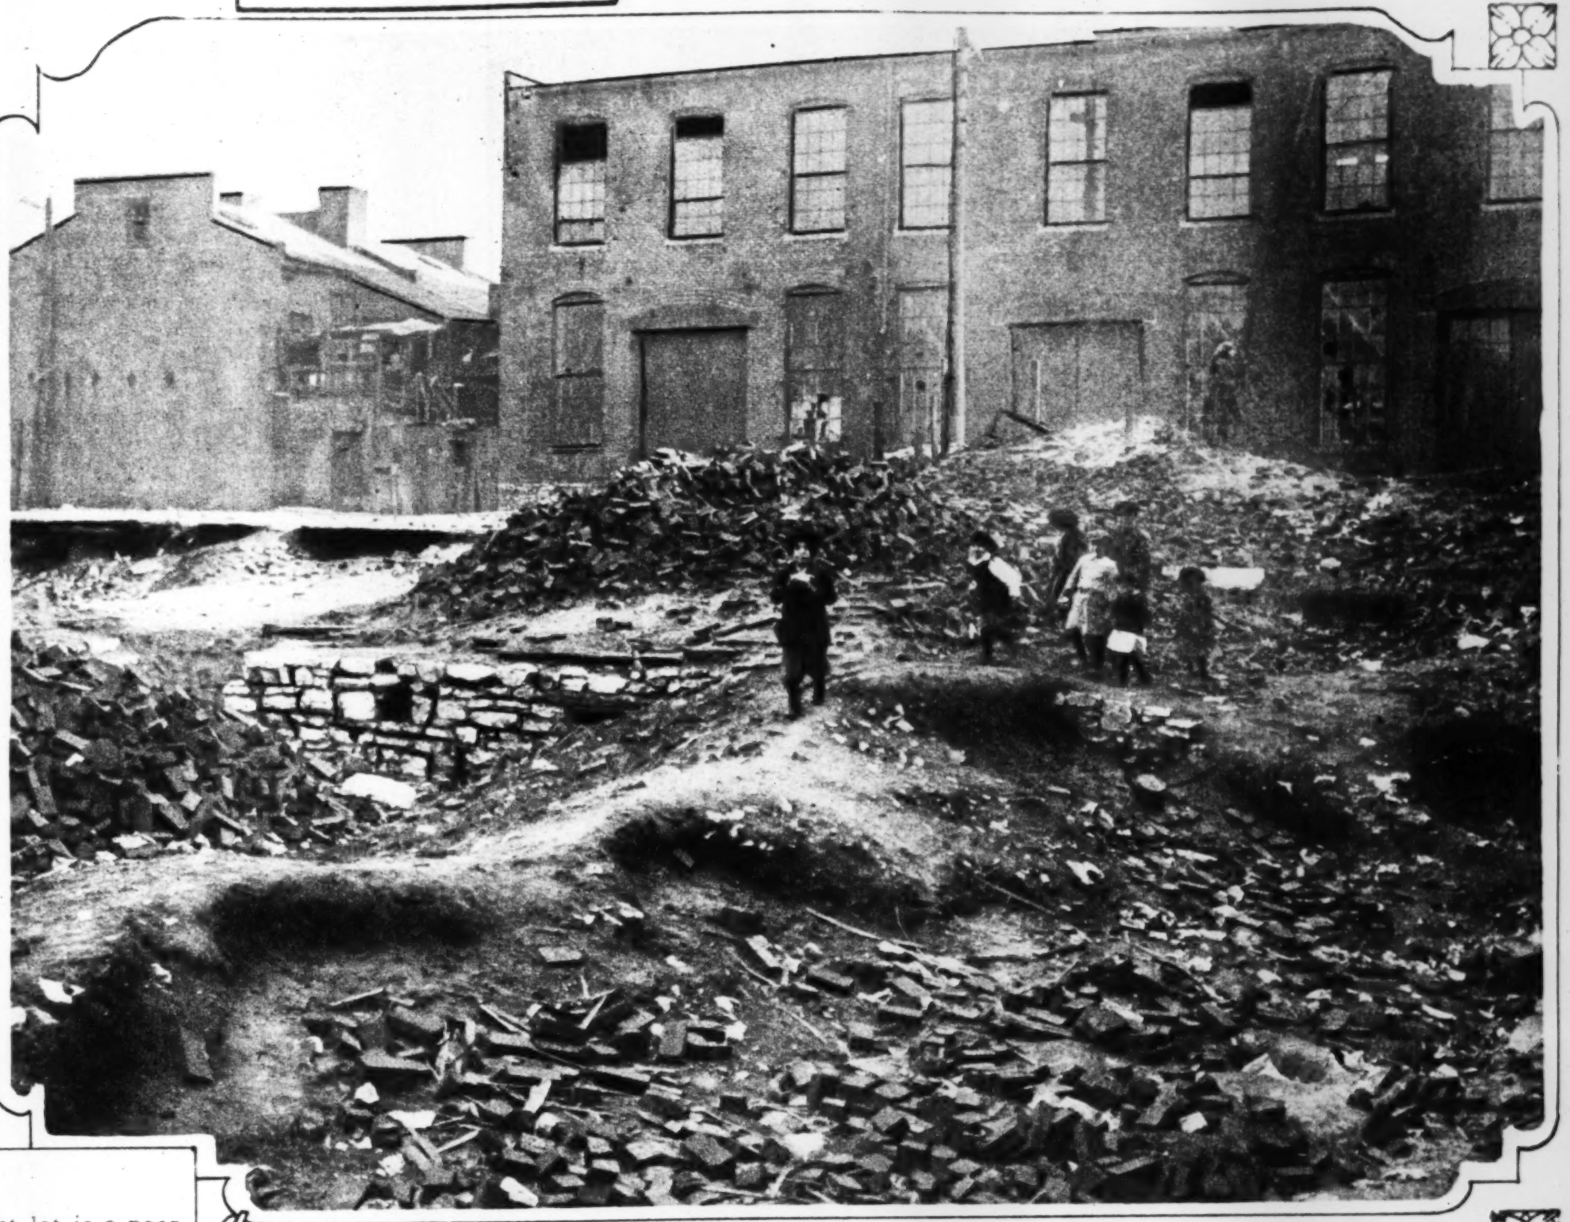
PICTURES THAT SHOW WHY ST. LOUIS NEEDS BOND ISSUE

With a smaller outstanding debt than any other large American city, St. Louis has long been doing without those civic facilities and improvements enjoyed by many other large centers of population. The pictures on these pages show some of the things of which St. Louis is not proud, some of the defects which could be remedied through the voting of a bond issue at the election, Feb. 9, and comparative views of conditions here and in other cities.





A vacant lot is a poor substitute for a playground. The picture above was taken in a section of St. Louis into which, because of lack of funds, the playground system has not been carried. At right: A scene in a more fortunate district, where children have playground advantages.

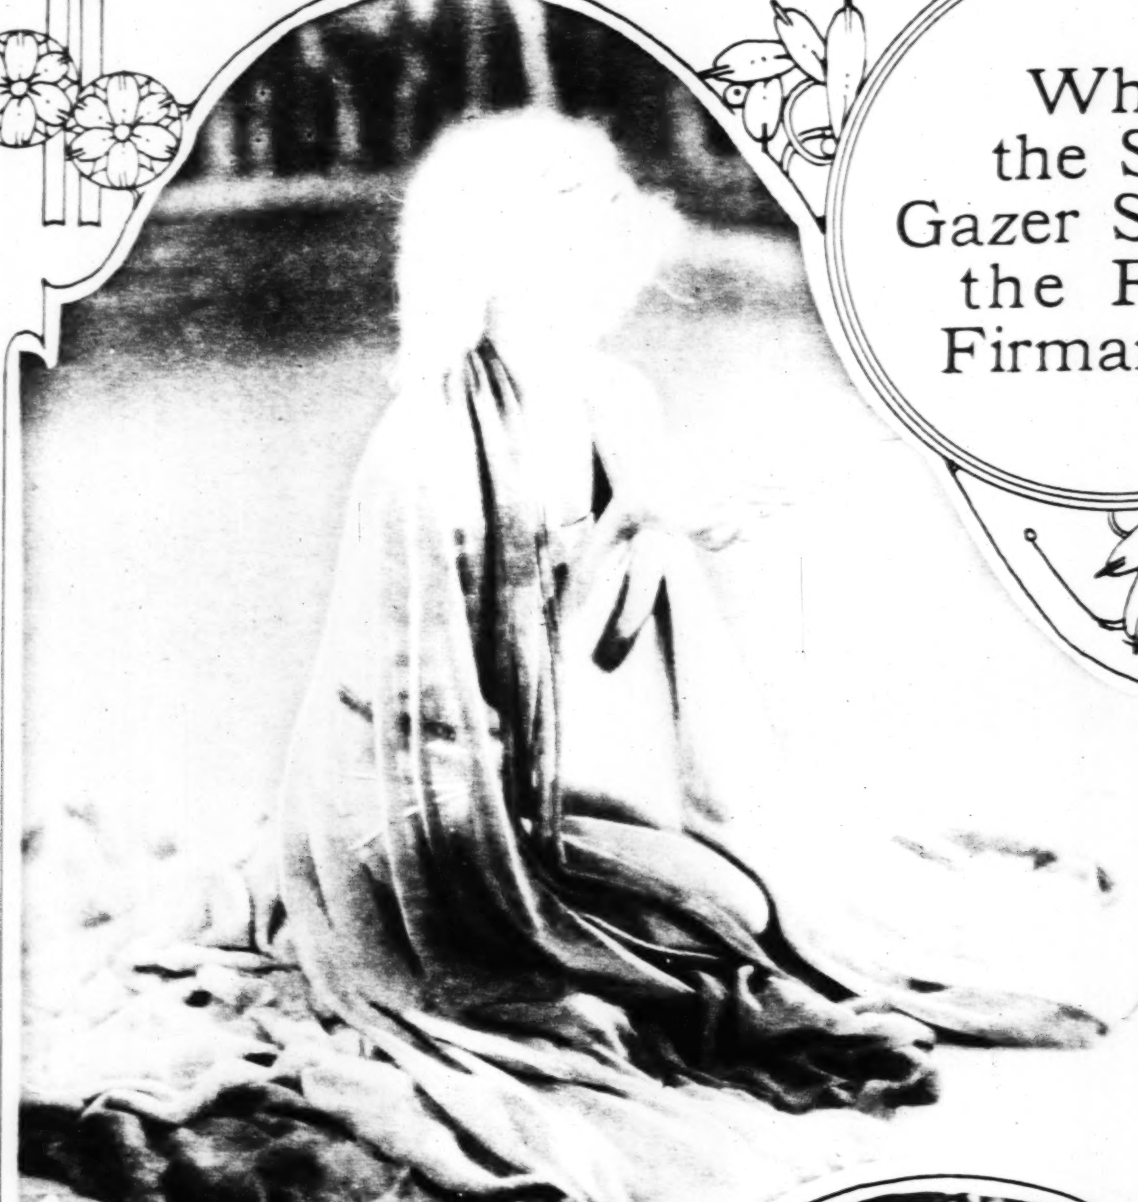
Electric lighting of all streets would be made possible by the bond issue. Only the downtown streets are now electrically lighted. At right: A night view on gas-lighted Beaumont street at Locust street. Above: Electrically-lighted Sixth street, looking south from Olive street. In each case the photographer's plate was exposed 10 minutes.

What the Star Gazer Sees in the Film Firmament

The intriguing Bebe Daniels has a penchant for odd and exotic gowns. This one has a distinctly Oriental appeal.



A blonde Salome. Herod's daughter may have had dark hair. So has Nazimova, but a white wig has transformed both Salome and the screen actress who is now portraying her.

Pola Negri is a versatile poser. This particular attitude seems none too comfortable, but it is odd and effective.

How artistic lighting may add to the beauty of woman's crowning glory. Jacqueline Logan is the subject of this odd portrait study.

Dignity and poise, as the picture shows, are two of the leading characteristics of Leatrice Joy, a star recently discovered.

Lila Lee and a picture hat make an irresistible combination. This star's raven hair and liquid eyes are the envy of many screen rivals.

-Youth and a full moon. There is a fine touch of romance in this scene in which Billie Dove and Malcolm McGregor are the principals.

Yes, they used to hook them up the back. In this scene, from a forthcoming picture, Charlie Ray is performing an ancient rite.

Carol Dempster, the latest Griffith star, is seen here in a pose which suggests that something is mysteriously missing from the family jewel box.

Miss Maude Royden,

The bird in the picture to the left is the golden eagle, which looks so handsome on the dollar. The specimen here shown was photographed near Oakland, Cal. Above are shown two long-billed curlews, snapped on the shore of Malheur Lake in Southeast Oregon.

This desert bird hunts lizards. Note the one in its bill. In the desert country of the West the bird is called the road runner.

That Any Woman Ever Tried

PUT the juice of one lemon into a quart of water and pour over the hair after shampooing — the best "Beauty Shops" do this.

It removes a curd formed by soap which is otherwise always left on the hair afterward. The hair is sticky and unclean in comparison when the lemon rinse isn't used. Note the difference. Simply feel the hair. Also note its lustrous, fine appearance.

That test will convince you. You'll always use the lemon rinse. It is harmless and most effective. Try it now.
